Dear Helen:

Thank you for your letter regarding Lorenzo Root. It made its way from the Paw Paw Library to our society for response.

Enclosed please find a copy from Lakeside Cemetery, Decatur records listing Lorenzo Root. You will note that he has an unmarked grave, and that he does not appear to be buried with anyone, at least not by the name of Root. To find out who else may be buried in lot 298 with him, you would need to contact the sexton, Richard Rice, (616)423-7643.

I looked up in the Decatur newspaper for 1888 and found the only write-up for him that there appeared to be:

"Lorenzo Root, age 74 years died at home of Hiram Lee where he resided for 3 years. Mr. Lee was his brother-in-law. Funeral Monday at 3 p.m. Mr. Root had resided in the area for 30 years."

I found him in the 1870 census in Bangor Township as follows:

Lorenzo Root, age 56, Laborer, born in NY
Mercy Root, age 49, born in NJ
Edgar Bresley, 20?, Laborer, born in MI

Since I began this letter I found that Lorenzo was buried in the same lot as High and Sophia Lee in Lakeside Cemetery, copy enclosed. This should be the same gentleman that was listed as his brother-in-law in Lorenzo's death notice.

I also looked briefly in the Bangor Cemeteries for Mercy Root, and even though there were other Roots, not her. I also looked in our County Histories for anything on Lorenzo, also nothing. There are other things that can be done, vital record search, probate records, and more census work. I have enclosed a copy of our brochure. Please note that upon joining our group, you would be entitled to an hour of free research. Our flat rate is $8.00 per hour.

I hope the information that I have enclosed is helpful to you, and I further hope that you will decide to join our group and benefit from group research.

Good luck to you in your search.

Sincerely,

Toni I. Benson

was so good a blacksmith that he was sent back to operate the shop. His ledger was in the possession of Rev. David N. Beach until his death and probably now in the possession of his son, John T., both of whom are direct descendants and from whom this data was obtained. They in turn having obtained it from family records, deeds and certified copies of wills. The old ledger shows many entries of bayonets made for different companies in the Continental Army. Other authority says he served as a private in Captain Gillan's Company in the 2nd Regt. of Essex County, Militia, and also in the state troops and in the Continental Army but this service may have been for another Joniah or a Josiah. The tradition in one branch of the family is that Washington sent his watch to him to be fixed.

THE BIOGRAPHICAL FEATURE

The magazine for 1927, will, in addition to the material heretofore carried, be open to Beaches to place therein, at a small extra charge, pictures and biography of their particular branch of the family. Portraits before 1850 will be carried for the cost of the cut ($5.00). There are many interesting pictures of older members of the family which ought to be preserved in some sort of permanent form. Many requests have come to us for an opportunity to place these in the magazine.

The cuts will be 3½x4½ and will be made by us and become our property. Photographs will be returned. Orders for extra copies other than those provided herein must accompany the order. Biography should be limited to 300 words but more may be published if of general interest to a large branch of the family and without extra cost. The price for this service will be $15.00, including six extra copies of the magazine.

NATHANIEL BEACH

Nathaniel Beach on the 7th of April, 1818, was a resident of Liberty, Sullivan County, N. Y.

He made application for a pension, No. W 21,655, and says that he enlisted as a private in the Company of Captain James Beebe in Colonel Charles Webb's Regiment. That at the time he was living at Trumbull, Fairfield County, Conn. That this first enlistment was in 1776 and that he was at New York, White Plains, in the Jersey campaign and was with Washington when he crossed the Deleware and fought in the Battle of Trenton. That after this battle he guarded Hessian prisoners until he received his discharge from General Washington on the 1st day of January, 1777. That in April at the time of the Danbury Alarm with the same Captain and under the same Colonel he again entered the service for a period of two years. He then went with Colonel Butler and was with him in the Battle of Monmouth after which he joined General Scott's Artillery. He then was transferred to the command of General DeLafayette and was at the seige of Yorktown after which he went with the sick and wounded to Baltimore. He was wounded in 1778 and when peace was declared he was given a Badge of Honor by General Washington.

He had at the time of the filing of a supplemental application a wife and seven children and at that time three of the children still lived with him. He says in this affidavit that he was a tailor by trade and that his eyesight was failing him. On the 14th of June, 1820, he files an affidavit showing the age of his wife as 54; Nathan, 20; Sally 17, and Nancy, 12.

The pension certificate of both himself and his wife are in file in an excellent state of preservation. Ruth, the widow, makes affidavit on the 10th of August, 1838, that Nathaniel, her husband, died October 5, 1825 and that they were married at her father's house in Trumbull, Fairfield County, Conn., on January 31, 1788, and that her father's name was Thomas Porter. On the same day Louisa Jackson gives affidavit concerning the marriage and the ages of the children are found in leaves from a note book in the hand-writing of Nathaniel.

These papers show they moved to New York in 1812. He was the son of Thomas (4) Nathaniel (3-2) John (1).

OBIL BEACH

On the 17th of June, 1819, Obil made application for pension No. S 4264. He says he enlisted in September, 1777, in Capt. Chapman's Company, Col. Heman Swift's Regiment from Goshen, Conn., and was discharged in October, 1780. His pension was granted. On page 28 of this magazine, are the notes of his gradson, Dr. William Morrow Beach, which give the family migrations and matters of interest concerning him. He was son of Amos (4) John (3-2) Thomas (1).

Benoni Harris Beach
and Nancy Root

Presidents during this time were Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and J.Q. Adams.

Benoni Beach was born in Genoa, Cayuga Co. N.Y. on March 21, 1808. [1] (Genoa is about 20 miles due south of Auburn.) Benoni's father, David, died 1824 leaving his widow, Mary Tompkins Beach with three sons, Benoni, 16; Moses T,. 14; and Zenas W., 11. Benoni had three older brothers and three sisters whose ages are unknown.[7] After David's death it is assumed that Mary moved to Monroe County, N.Y. with her young sons.

Nancy Root was born in Penfield, Wayne Co. N.Y. on January 18, 1812. (Penfield is just east of Rochester.) Her mother, Sally Sprague Root, died in Brighton, N.Y. some time before 1829. (Brighton is just south of Rochester.) Nancy was the oldest of three sisters. She had three brothers, two older and one younger. At age 12, in 1824, Nancy completed a sampler of her family register which lists her brothers and sisters and their ages. Ruth Hinton Cooper, Nancy's great granddaughter copied the information from this sampler in 1939. Ruth noted the following: "The beautiful and carefully done handwork on this sampler is an evidence of the fine, lovely and intelligent girl and woman Nancy W. Root must have been."[16]

We have two accounts as to how Nancy and Benoni met. Bertha Hinton, Nancy's granddaughter, gives us this version: "The Beach family were snowbound somewhere around Buffalo and sought to stay overnight at Nancy Root's home and were welcome as was the custom in those arduous days. A romance ensued from this meeting, culminating in marriage."[12]

Vandosto Root, Nancy's older brother, writes this version which is probably closer to the truth: "Sister and I went to a camp meeting at Elby, a few miles from Niagara Falls. From many invitations on the way home, we called at a little town called Sweeden, (now known as Brockport.) There we made the acquaintance of the Beach family. My sister and Benoni H. Beach were married December 31, 1829 at Brighton, N.Y."[17] In a box of family keepsakes preserved by Ruth Hinton Cooper there is a scrap of Nancy's wedding dress and a piece of her everyday dress. The wedding dress is a chocolate brown cotton with a small lighter brown floral pattern woven in the material. The everyday dress is of coarser cotton. The light brown background seems to be printed as does the small pattern of rust flowers and black leaves.

Presidents during this time were Jackson, Van Buren, Harrison and Tyler

From the Beach Bible we learn that Benoni and Nancy had six children:

WILLIAM BENONI HARRIS BEACH was born June 10, 1832 in the Town of Gates, Monroe Co. N.Y. He died in Cheshire, Ontario Co. N.Y. on Jan. 13, 1875, age 42.

Henry Milton Beach was born April 17, 1834 in the town of J(a)rusalem, Yates Co. N.Y. He was alive in 1874 but the date of his death is unknown.[9,1]

John R. Beach was born Feb. 6, 1836 in the town of Riga, Churchville, Monroe Co. N.Y. He died at age 18, May 24, 1854 of typhoid fever in Cincinnati Ohio.

Emily Eliza Beach was born July 26, 1837 in the town of Riga, Churchville, Monroe Co. N.Y. She died Dec, 1901, in Livonia (East Avon) Livingston Co. N.Y. at age 64.

Sarah Elizabeth Beach was born Nov. 22, 1840 in the Village of Medina, Medina Co., Ohio. She died May 14, 1841 at the age of six months.

By checking the birth places of the children one can see that Benoni and Nancy moved from place to place rather frequently. Benoni's mother, Mary, died in Churchville in 1837. Perhaps she was living with Benoni and Nancy. We do know that Benoni and Nancy were living in Medina, Ohio in 1840.[3] Perhaps they moved to Ohio to be near other relatives. Nancy's brother and father, Vandosto and John Root, were living in Medina as was Benoni's brother, Moses T. Beach.

Vandosto writes in one of his letters: "Father and I, with our families, emigrated to Medina Co., Ohio. Benoni had, by this time, run thru his property, learned to make shoes, and we find him in a shoe shop at Medina. Then he died. My sister settled up his affairs, educated the children as best she could, married again and died leaving an infant a few hours old who died the same night."[16]

It is said that our great grandfather, WBH Beach, was left a penniless orphan at the age of 12.[10] This could well be true. In his will Benoni left two pieces of land and his household goods to his wife Nancy, and his children. Benoni died April 14, 1841, probably of T.B.,[16] leaving Nancy with WBH age 10; Henry age 7; John age 5; Emily age 3½; and Sarah, age 5 months. This six-month old daughter died one month after Benoni's death. So at 29, Nancy had

WILLIAM HENRY HARRIS BEACH was born June 10, 1832 in the Town of Gates, Monroe Co. N.Y. He died in Cheshire, Ontario Co. N.Y. on Jan. 13, 1875, age 42.

Henry Hilton Beach was born April 17, 1834 in the town of J(e)rusalem, Yates Co. N.Y. He was alive in 1878 but the date of his death is unknown. 9.1

John H. Beach was born Feb. 6, 1836 in the town of Riga, Churchville, Monroe Co. N.Y. He died at age 18, May 24, 1854 of typhoid fever in Cincinnati Ohio.

Emily Elisa Beach was born July 26, 1837 in the town of Riga, Churchville, Monroe Co. N.Y. She died Dec. 1901, in Livonia (East Avon) Livingston Co, N.Y. at age 64.

Sarah Elizabeth Beach was born Nov. 22, 1840 in the Village of Medina, Medina Co., Ohio. She died May 14, 1841 at the age of six months.

By checking the birth places of the children one can see that Bennet and Nancy moved from place to place rather frequently. Bennet's mother, Mary, died in Churchville in 1832. Perhaps she was living with Bennet and Nancy. We do know that Bennet and Nancy were living in Medina, Ohio in 1840.[7] Perhaps they moved to Ohio to be near other relatives. Nancy's brother and father, Vandoote and John Root, were living in Medina as was Bennet's brother, Moses T. Beach.

Vandoote writes in one of his letters: "Father and I, with our families, emigrated to Medina Co., Ohio. Bennet had, by this time, run thru his property, learned to make shoes, and we find him in a shoe shop at Medina. Then he died. My sister settled up his affairs, educated the children as best she could, married again and died leaving an infant a few hours old who died the same night."[15]

It is said that our great grandfather, WHH Beach, was left a penniless orphan at the age of 12.[10] This could well be true. In his will Bennet left two pieces of land and his household goods to his wife Nancy, and his children. Bennet died April 14, 1841, probably of T.B.,[16] leaving Nancy with WHH age 10; Henry age 7; John age 5; Emily age 3½; and Sarah, age 5 months. This six-month old daughter died one month after Bennet's death. So at 29, Nancy had a heavy load of responsibility. She sold the property and paid off most of Benoni's debts. As I looked over the inventory included with the will, it seemed to me that Benoni owed more than Nancy was able to raise. The court allowed Nancy $130 for maintaining the children for one year. Some property was sold for $260. Expenses were in excess of $280, and Benoni owed 14 other private notes amounting to about $180. (One of these notes was to his father-in-law, John Root.) I don't know how these notes were paid. There is this statement in the inventory: "There are no assests in the hands of the Executor to pay the following demands:......"

The personal property that was given to Nancy seems rather meager:

> The family Bible and school books used by the family of the deceased - of little value
> one cow
> wearing apparel of the deceased
> wearing apparel of the widow
> three beds and bedding
> one common and one male bedstead
> one brass kettle, one tea kettle, one iron pot, one spider (black frying pan,) one dish kettle, one iron basin, two flat irons, six chairs, one table, six knives and forks, six plates, one set tea-ware, twelve spoons.

On November 13, 1842, Nancy W. Root Beach married Benjamin H. Northrop. (The Northrops were among the very earliest settlers of Medina County.) Their first child, Nancy, was born November 12, 1844. Nancy Root Beach Northrop died two days later, November 14, 1844 at age 32. Her child Nancy Northrop died the next morning, November 15, 1844, just three days old. In the Beach Bible Nancy's birth and the deaths of the two Nancys are entered with a different hand, perhaps that of Benjamin Northrop. Nancy Root's name is blotted as if by a tear drop.

So at age 12, our great grandfather, William Benoni Harris Beach, finds himself the oldest of four orphaned children, Henry, 10; John, 8; and Emily, 7. Their stories will follow.

Mrs. W.B.H. Beach

I write to you to say yours is recieved and although same brings me sorrowful tidings, yet I thank you for your very kind letter. I had anticipated all the sad intelligence yours brings me concerning Wm. for I was convinced that he was my nephew before I wrote you but I had not seen Wm. since the year 1843(?) as near as I can remember, but I have in my mind's eye just how he then looked as the last look of his then youthful pg 1 person lingers on my mind. He was then standing extended to his full height, his head thrown a little back, his eye lifted toward Heaven and he was singing "Oh Canaan, Oh Canaan etc." for he had embraced the doctrine of — Mr. Miller and to him, boy as he then was it was a very good religion, but as he matured his manhood and as his judgement matured it seems his full Soul soared away to know the mysteries of the Gospel and the hidden riches of the revealed Grace of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ.

Yours informs me you love to talk of him and it seems your pen would like to delineate the good and noble facilities of his soul under the influence of inspiration of the Spirit of God, but human intellect is so clouded and words so weak we can only realize the shadow. The soul alone can converse with the Soul. It alone can realize and receive those impressions. It is written other foundation can no man lay than that is laid and he that buildeth there on gold, silver and precious stone shall pg 2 receive a reward, and these light afflictions which one for but a moment shall work out for us a far more Exceeding and Eternal Might of Glory and he is gone to his reward and in as much as you, my Niece, aided him and — shared with him in his labors, divided his sorrows and shared in his comforts you are also to have a star in the crown of your rejoicinng. It would be saying but little that you are one day to meet your William on the Elysian fields, but that same Jesus whom your loved one served promises you with him Immortality Exquisite and infinite joy and gladness at the right hand of the Redeemer's glory.

I love to think of William too, not so much because he was my nephew but also because he was a minister of the Christian Church and magnified his office and then it is so comforting too, to know that he was of our race. You promise me Wm's photograph and I shall indeed be very grateful pg 3 to receive same, and I thank you for your very kind invitation to me to visit, but distance and other circumstances prevail. It will also be very acceptable could you find in your heart to send me with William's a picture — of my Niece and I promise you to preserve them both as cherished and sacred mementos until the day of my death.

If you see Emily Beach, my Niece, please tell her Uncle Vondosto has not forgotten her and that you and Emily are invited to visit that Uncle and his family. Tell her Grandpa Root died April 10, 1863. We think it is well with him. Please ask her if she loves Jesus and say to her that Uncle now belongs to the Christian Church and in answer to your question - are there any Christian Churches near - have to say the nearest that I know of pg 4 is about ninety (?thirty?) miles from us. But I love that people and propose to attend their meetings as often as I can. I will write to Emily at once. Should write your children a letter a few words. At all events you find a great responsibility upon yourself with regards to your children, for the hand that was your stay in the day of your weakness and his counsel and advice are no longer ours. But Our Heavenly Father will — temper the winds to the body of the shorn lamb and he is the widows' God and the Father to the fatherless.

Now I write your children to say I hope they all love Jesus. I had a son named Morgan and he grew up to be a man and he went to the war and died. I have shed many tears on account of his premature death in the army and the only consolation I find in this matter is that my Morgan, I pg 5 believe, loved Jesus. Then I had three sons-in-law who died in the war.
This left me twelve Fatherless grandchildren. Thus I have seen how Mothers have to struggle with the world to care for and bring up children who have no father. But one can truly realize the benefit it is to children to have Pious Praying Mothers. They are surrounded by Christian influences and are not so likely to become a prey to Evil influences. They despise the low haunts of intemperance which lead souls down to death. Every feature of sin is a Deformity and leaves a hideous stain upon the Soul. Disobedience to parents is a ruling evil of our day, but this is a sort of evanescence- pg 6 a foul blot on the fair face of the virtuous youth of our land and it often leads its victim down to death.

Receive then the counsel of your Mother, my Dear young friends. Her advice is your life. Her words are fitly spoken and children who have no father may also be very careful and judicious in the choice of associates and friends. Young people will rise or sink to the level of the company they keep. You then should meet good company or none. The Sunday School and church are blessed places to the youth of our land. The Hallowed associations of those places are life to the soul. They bring inward peace. They decay not in time. They never decay or perish with their pg 7 using. They retain their hold on our memory and mind. They in our Souls live through all life and elevate our raptured Soul to all Eternity. To the same extent vice lays its foul hand upon the human Soul and with its withering blight and milldew, scars and sears, dethrones virtue, and lands its victim in a ?vortex? of inevitable woe. But that child who follows the Counsel of a Praying Mother has nothing to fear. In her counsel all is well for her advice is life and health and peace. From the ?promises?
before us our real interest is visible and apparent. Our only ??inquiry?? then need to be how we can best shun the various temptations in life and do most good to our surviving parent. But this question has been already with us under contemplation and the answer is at hand: take Mother's advice.
And so I take leave of you as children, saying to you Farewell.

The Mother will excuse these broken thoughts written to her Children.
At the onset I only intended to write them a line or two but I did not know how to write or when to stop and can only offer it as it is. If you find pg 8 it worthy of it you can show it to your children. If you find anything in the whole of this lenghty letter that is worthy of it, please reply and then you may consider me under obigation to write you and your children a better letter. Good Bye for this time.

The Beach Line

At about 1850, 85% of the Beach families in the United States were probably descended from the three Beach brothers, Richard, John and Thomas who came to New Haven, Conn. 1639 - 1643. The Beach name may have been "de la Beche," a Norman family name. They may have descended from Viking Norseman who came to the Seine River Valley in France with Rolf or Tollo, Red Wolf. Then these knights accompanied William the Conqueror to England in 1066. They were described as "war like, vigorous and a most brilliant race."

Richard and John Beach came to the New Haven Colony in 1639 and were original proprietors and grant owners in New Haven, Milford, Wallingford and Stratford Colonies. The third brother, THOMAS, probably came to New Haven in 1643. It is thought that their father was Reverend John Beach of Devonshire or Derbyshire, England. (Hertfordshire.)

Our ancestor, Thomas Beach, first appears in the New Haven records in 1646. He was fined for not having his gun in proper working order. In 1653, Thomas married Sarah Platt of Milford. In 1654, Thomas and Sarah moved from New Haven to Milford where he practiced his trade, shoemaking. He died in 1663, leaving his widow with five children: Sarah (1653-4) 10; John (1655) 8; Mary (1657) 6; Samuel (1660) 3 and our ZOPHAR (May 27, 1662) 1 year old.

The dates on the inventory of Thomas's estate are a bit confusing, but the facts seem to be that there was not much left for Sarah. "...house being built with round stones and standing without tennant it was like to fall and ye fence much decayed...." Thomas's house and land were sold and the money was put in trust until the sons became of age. Sarah's father, Deacon Richard Platt, helped support the family and he settled the estate. Later Sarah married Miles Merwin, a second marriage for each. She had four more children.

Sarah Beach, Zophar's older sister, married Samuel Lyons. They moved to Newark, N.J. with a group of people from Milford who had become dissatisfied with some of the religious changes - "the half-way covenant." Only by church connection could one vote, but the "half-way covenant" modified this requirement. Those who were against this change moved to the area around Newark. The site they chose had geographical features similar to those of New Haven and Milford.

Samuel Lyons gave Zophar, age 21, two acres of land. Zophar traded this for some other property on which he built. He was Newark's town assessor from 1695-1697 and again in 1699. He was a townsman from 1691-1693. He married Martha Pratt of Milford, Conn. They had four children, all born in New Jersey. Their third child, SAMUEL, was born in 1698. He was married to Hannah and then to Sarah. In 1747 he was the Overseer of Highways in Newark. He had five children, one of whom was SAMUEL JR., born in 1730. Samuel lived in Jefferson Village, N.J. His first son, DAVID, was a private in the Essex County Militia in the Revolution. After the war, David moved to the Lakes - Cayuga County, N.Y. He had ten children and died in Springport, Cayuga County, N.Y. in 1824. One of his sons was BENONI H. BEACH whose story follows.

Beach Family Magazine by Alfred Holmes Beach, 1926.

Beach Family in America by Elmer Taylor Beach, 1923, Kalamazoo, Mi.

Beach Family Reminiscences and Annals by David Nelson Beach, 1931, Meriden Conn.

The Descendants of Thomas Beach by Mary E. Beach.

and Nancy Root

Presidents during this time were Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and J.Q. Adams.

Benoni Beach was born in Genoa, Cayuga Co. N.Y. on March 21, 1808.[1] (Genoa is about 20 miles due south of Auburn.) Benoni's father, David, died 1824 leaving his widow, Mary Tompkins Beach with three sons, Benoni, 16; Moses T,. 14; and Zenas W., 11. Benoni had three older brothers and three sisters whose ages are unknown.[7] After David's death it is assumed that Mary moved to Monroe County, N.Y. with her young sons.

Nancy Root was born in Penfield, Wayne Co. N.Y. on January 18, 1812. (Penfield is just east of Rochester.) Her mother, Sally Sprague Root, died in Brighton, N.Y. some time before 1829. (Brighton is just south of Rochester.) Nancy was the oldest of three sisters. She had three brothers, two older and one younger. At age 12, in 1824, Nancy completed a sampler of her family register which lists her brothers and sisters and their ages. Ruth Hinton Cooper, Nancy's great granddaughter copied the information from this sampler in 1939. Ruth noted the following: "The beautiful and carefully done handwork on this sampler is an evidence of the fine, lovely and intelligent girl and woman Nancy W. Root must have been."[16]

We have two accounts as to how Nancy and Benoni met. Bertha Hinton, Nancy's granddaughter, gives us this version: "The Beach family were snowbound somewhere around Buffalo and sought to stay overnight at Nancy Root's home and were welcome as was the custom in those arduous days. A romance ensued from this meeting, culminating in marriage."[12]

Vandosto Root, Nancy's older brother, writes this version which is probably closer to the truth: "Sister and I went to a camp meeting at Elby, a few miles from Niagra Falls. From many invitations on the way home, we called at a little town called Sweeden, (now known as Brockport.) There we made the acquaintance of the Beach family. My sister and Benoni H. Beach were married December 31, 1829 at Brighton, N.Y."[17] In a box of family keepsakes preserved by Ruth Hinton Cooper there is a scrap of Nancy's wedding dress and a piece of her everyday dress. The wedding dress is a chocolate brown cotton with a small lighter brown floral pattern woven in the material. The everyday dress is of coarser cotton. The light brown background seems to be printed as does the small pattern of rust flowers and black leaves.

Presidents during this time were Jackson, Van Buren, Harrison and Tyler

From the Beach Bible we learn that Benoni and Nancy had six children:

WILLIAM BENONI HARRIS BEACH was born June 10, 1832 in the Town of Gates, Monroe Co. N.Y. He died in Cheshire, Ontario Co. N.Y. on Jan. 13, 1875, age 42.

Henry Milton Beach was born April 17, 1834 in the town of J(a)rusalem, Yates Co. N.Y. He was alive in 1874 but the date of his death is unknown. [9,1]

John R. Beach was born Feb. 6, 1836 in the town of Riga, Churchville, Monroe Co. N.Y. He died at age 18, May 24, 1854 of typhoid fever in Cincinnati Ohio.

Emily Eliza Beach was born July 26, 1837 in the town of Riga, Churchville, Monroe Co. N.Y. She died Dec, 1901, in Livonia (East Avon) Livingston Co. N.Y. at age 64.

Sarah Elizabeth Beach was born Nov. 22, 1840 in the Village of Medina, Medina Co., Ohio. She died May 14, 1841 at the age of six months.

By checking the birth places of the children one can see that Benoni and Nancy moved from place to place rather frequently. Benoni's mother, Mary, died in Churchville in 1837. Perhaps she was living with Benoni and Nancy. We do know that Benoni and Nancy were living in Medina, Ohio in 1840.[3] Perhaps they moved to Ohio to be near other relatives. Nancy's brother and father, Vandosto and John Root, were living in Medina as was Benoni's brother, Moses T. Beach.

Vandosto writes in one of his letters: "Father and I, with our families, emigrated to Medina Co., Ohio. Benoni had, by this time, run thru his property, learned to make shoes, and we find him in a shoe shop at Medina. Then he died. My sister settled up his affairs, educated the children as best she could, married again and died leaving an infant a few hours old who died the same night."[16,]

It is said that our great grandfather, WBH Beach, was left a penniless orphan at the age of 12.[10] This could well be true. In his will Benoni left two pieces of land and his household goods to his wife Nancy, and his children. Benoni died April 14, 1841, probably of T.B.,[16] leaving Nancy with WBH age 10; Henry age 7; John age 5; Emily age 3½; and Sarah, age 5 months. This six-month old daughter died one month after Benoni's death. So at 29, Nancy had a heavy load of responsibility. She sold the property and paid off most of Benoni's debts. As I looked over the inventory included with the will, it seemed to me that Benoni owed more than Nancy was able to raise. The court allowed Nancy $130 for maintaining the children for one year. Some property was sold for $260. Expenses were in excess of $280, and Benoni owed 14 other private notes amounting to about $180. (One of these notes was to his father-in-law, John Root.) I don't know how these notes were paid. There is this statement in the inventory: "There are no assests in the hands of the Executor to pay the following demands:......"

The personal property that was given to Nancy seems rather meager:

The family Bible and school books used by the family of the deceased - of little value
one cow
wearing apparel of the deceased
wearing apparel of the widow
three beds and bedding
one common and one male bedstead
one brass kettle, one tea kettle, one iron pot, one spider (black frying pan,) one dish kettle, one iron basin, two flat irons, six chairs, one table, six knives and forks, six plates, one set tea-ware, twelve spoons.

On November 13, 1842, Nancy W. Root Beach married Benjamin H. Northrop. (The Northrops were among the very earliest settlers of Medina County.) Their first child, Nancy, was born November 12, 1844. Nancy Root Beach Northrop died two days later, November 14, 1844 at age 32. Her child Nancy Northrop died the next morning, November 15, 1844, just three days old. In the Beach Bible Nancy's birth and the deaths of the two Nancys are entered with a different hand, perhaps that of Benjamin Northrop. Nancy Root's name is blotted as if by a tear drop.

So at age 12, our great grandfather, William Benoni Harris Beach, finds himself the oldest of four orphaned children, Henry, 10; John, 8; and Emily, 7. Their stories will follow.

My Dear Niece. Your favor at hand. I am exceeding thankful to you for same. For a long time past I have been thinking of you and of Emily and wondered where I should direct a letter for either of you. I never have forgotten our correspondence while I lived in Ohio. I wrote you from Locust Point. Your goodness will not permit you to say my neglect is unpardonable. I sold my possessions in Ohio thinking to go where I could do more good in the Church but I shortly recieved a broken limb and my surgeon made it crooked. I have seen much trouble, hence your Excuse. You inquire concerning our nativity. My ancestors descended from the Anglo Saxon Race. My grandfather's name was Nicholas Root. His wife, my grandmother's maiden name, Eunice Crippin. Page 1 They lived in the Eastern Part of the State of New York. They both died at the Town and county of Chenango. Grandma was his administratrix. After her death, my parents went from Rochester, NY down to the place of grandma's death. They went on a sleigh drawn by two horses. There was no railroad then. They returned with some goods that my good grandma in her lifetime had called hers. That I remember which my boyish mind treasured most were two little books. The one repeated the cruelties of a Roman Catholic Clergy upon an accomplished young lady because she would not recant the faith she had in Jesus. The other little book was entitled the Life of Judas Iscariot. Now I intended that I wrote as a consideration for Bro Shreve ? who had asked questions of the editor (I write this to you that I may show where I am misunderstood.) I wrote or intended to - Judas was the only disciple who dared to face the Sanhedrin and say Jesus was innocent. Again I did not see that book within the last quarter century--it should say more than three quarters of a century ago. 77 years since I saw that book. 77 years ago I was a young boy. My father's house was then burned. I have not seen that book since. It was an ancient ledgend. Again I indite that like the father of the Baptist wrote his name is John, so the wife of Simon speaking for her child wrote my name is Judas, Again Iscariot says it is all my own they (that is the cons????of such ???? ???? what is all your own) For brevity sake,I merely wrote what the King replies that I see floating yonder,countriers reply unless, etc, etc. Querry-is there room in Heaven for the repentance of the Son of Perdition? With these corrections I leave it in the hand of my Niece. After all I do not regret it for it has been productive of good.

Now I can say nothing to you of William or Emily but that I wrote you in the long ago, William was at my house, stayed a while in the year 1862??(Note incorrect date) Millerism was rife at that time. I can still see how he looked while singing at that time. Page 2 Henry and Emily made us a visit of one week in the year 1856 or 7. About that time it seems he then returned to some service on the Mississippi and Emily to the East where William was. It was rumored that William was preaching for the Christians.

My sister, Nancy W. Root was born in the county of Wayne at or near Penfield NY. My father brought us into Rochester before it was a city. My sister Nancy was raised there. My father and mother were charter members of the first ME Church of that city. We afterwords removed to Brighton. There mother died. Sister and I went to a camp meeting at Elby, a few miles from Niagara Falls. From many invitations while on the way home, we called at a little town called Sweeden. There we made the acquaintance of the Beach family. My sister and Benoni H. Beach were married at Brighton NY. Father and I with our families emigrated to Medina Co. Ohio. Benoni had by this time run thru his property, learned to make shoes and we find him in a shoe shop at Medina. There he died. My sister settled up his affairs, educated the children as best she could, married again and died leaving a young child a few hours old which died the same night.

My father became old and feeble. He lived with me at Locust Point, Ohio and he died there. At the time of father's death he left three of us brothers. My younger brother Lorenzo died at ?Decatur Michigan. Now at the time of his death there two of us left. My older brother, Simon--I think he used to write Emily sometimes, he was in his 93rd year, died just across the river from you at Leamington, Ont. Canada, Sept 20, 1899. Now I am left alone of my father's family. I am in my ninety second year. The Ever Blessed Lord has thus far stood by me in all my troubles and difficulties. I have a numerous family, some in Michigan, in Ohio, one in California. I once prayed that I might live to see my children old enough to care for themselves. Some of them carry gray hairs, some are broken down from hard work.

But you have not told me of your other children besides your second son. Are you a member of a Christian Church? Is there one at Detroit? What station do your children occupy in the church? Is your son with whom you live a mechanic or what business is he in at Detroit? Hope for no offense from these questions. Only hope you are well supplied with all your needs in the present life. I have been thinking of our relation to the unseen world. Is there a world about us invisible to us or what relationship have we to the author of our being? I have said there is more of man than that we can see of him, a sort of compound Supernatural being working erect in the image of his God. I do not know how to write. It is not fancy that a supernatural ?agency overshadows and abides about us and protects our steps. So he cares for us. You must excuse the length of this letter and after saying you will reply to same when you have read this. I close. Await your reply.

With Prayerful Regards, Sincerely Yours,
Vondosto S. Root

Dear Mr. Tieman:

I apologize for the inconvenience caused you. I have been fighting recurrent health problems this past spring and summer, aggrevated by car troubles. Thus my research schedules have been shot to pieces. Thank you for your patience and understanding. During this period I was able to do the research for you if only in fits and starts.

My report is going to be disapponting. First there is no record of the grave of Sally (Sprague) Root, since she died in Brighton she would have been buried in the old Brighton Cemetery, these graves were all moved to Mount Hope Cemetery in Rochester. There is no record of her in the MT Hope Cem. records, there are serveral unidentified re-interrments it can not be determined if she was one of them. I checked the cem records for both Brighton and Mt Hope. I also checked for John Root, there are no Deed records for him in Rochester now does he appear in any of the oldest of the city directories, nor is there an obituary for Sally Root, nor any mention of Vandesto S. I did not find them in the 1830 Fed. census for Monroe Co. the 1820 Fed Cen was unavailable, monroe Co being formed from Ontario Co in 1821, if they were here they would appear under Ontario County. If there are any deed records they also would be in the Ontario Co. records for Brighton I did not extend the search to Ont. Co.

For Calvin Foote here in Brockport I could find no cemetery record for him in the village cem. nor in the old part of the Beach Ridge Cem. (Lakeview), also checking the headstones. Without the year of his death it will be next to impossible to find him. There is no mention of him in the published histories- Landmarks of Monroe Co. Peck, Raines, Fairchild, 1895 and History of Rochester and Monroe Co. NY, Peck, 1906 and the Hisoty of Brockport, Martin 1929. Landmarks does mention Henry, Frederick and Seymour H. Root of the town of Sweden, they were sons of Abel, Aaron and Andrew Root respectively brothers of Saratoga Co. NY I could determine no relationship to your John Root to any of them. Given this lack of information I was hestitant to take the search any further.

What is needed is a census search for Genesee and Onatario 1800 to 1820, if your Roots were living in the Ontario, Livingston, Monroe county areas they would appear thereon, these census are not available to me here. If John Root served in the War of 1812 records would be available via State of NY, Div, Military & Naval Affairs, State Campus, Albany, NY 12226, which do not duplicate the Nat'l Archives records. I regret to say it but any further research is going to prove fruitless unless an exact residence can be established for a definite period of time. Church records were not available it being the only possibility I was unable to check for you. It would appear that if there are any records for your people in this area it would have to be in the Ontario Co deeds and perhaps census, given the info we had to start with all other possibilities have been eliminated.

My time and travel do exceed that allowed by your retainer. Circumstances made it necessary for me to consult the deed and probate records at the County courthopuse and the County clerks office, sources at the Rundell Library Rochester-newspapers, city directories, census etc.; and cemetery records on three separate occasions and here in Brockport and mileage, that be my fault I will not assess that. My actual research and office time did exceed your retainer. Again I'm sorry about the inconvenience and trust you will understand. It did think it important to check each possibility in the hope of finding something for you. If there were records here I feel sure that I would have found them thru one of these sources.

With best Holiday wishes to you and yours

Sincerely,

Roy Gould

Bob Gustafson

The period since the summer of 1985 has been unusually productive for two very different reasons. The Department of Parks and recreation of the town was able to put crews to work at the task of excavating the northwest portion of the cemetery to a depth of ten feet, as previously noted, and this resulted in a number of fragments and entire markers, representing interments not previously known. Fragments must still be joined to others, and even then legibility will be questionable at best. Because excepting the veterans' sites and those of the Hooker and West families family plot sites are not known, future restoration will see the cemetery as a memorial park with the town's pioneer families being recongnized through the establishment of plots in which the markers and footstones for each particular family group will be placed. Some vidence exists as to the chronological sequence of interments, and this will be used to asure as much historical accuracy as is possible under the circumstances. Two separate problems arose: first, it was absolutely essential that no remains be disturbed, and second, that extreme caution be exercised to avoid damaging the fragile stones and also to avoid personal injuries.

The second major impact came from an unexpected source: the 1837-1860 register of Mt. Hope Cemetery in the city of Rochester. Here it was found that in this first register the interments in more than thirty cemeteries other than Mt. Hope were recorded, including thousands in the early Catholic cemeteries, St. Patrick's and St. Joseph's. Include, too were a number from Hooker, often referred to simply as 'Irondequoit', as there was no other public burying ground in the town at that time. From this it is apparent that Hooker was used by residents of the city of Rochester, as well as surrounding towns such as Brighton and Webster.

This must be considered as an on-going project; this is the fourth version of this monograph, and the reader's assistance is solicited. Any bit of information about Irondequoit's pioneers will help to improve the completeness and accuracy.

Note: Reader should refer to HEARYE issues vol. 5, no. 2, vol. 6, no. 1 & 2, and vol 8, no. 2 & 3 for additional information about Hooker Cemetery interments and the Blackhawk War by Mr. Gustafson. Also for out-of-town members, Hooker Cemetery is located in the Town of Irondequoit, Monroe County, New York between the city of Rochester and Lake Ontario on the east side of the Genesee River.

RELOCATED CEMETERIES IN MONROE COUNTY, NY

Dick Halsey

After the October, 1987, meeting of the Rochester Genealogical Society, I was asked to write up my talk for the "HEAR YE" so that others could share in my research. Also, I've added some notes on other Monroe County cemeteries that have been moved.

Like most genealogists, my interest in cemeteries was limited to the inscriptions and family information on the stones. On July 25, 1984 something happened that changed my outlook on cemeteries. On that date a bulldozer, grading part of Highland Park in the southern part of Rochester, unearthed some human bones from a long abandoned cemetery. As the day went on more bones were uncovered. The Rochester Museum and Science Center was called on to excavate the site and archealogical students very carefully uncovered three hundred and five skeletons. The site was later found to be the cemetery for the Monroe County Poor House. I heard about the discovery early and visited the site. The day I visited, it was found that sometime in the late 19th century a sewer line was installed through part of the cemetery. Question: what happened to the bodies that were dug up at that time? There have been other cemeteries in Monroe County that have been moved from one place to another. Was good care taken to move the remains?

The first part of my story is about the early cemeteries in Rochester as there is much more information available on them.

The first cemetery in Rochester was on a half-acre lot set aside as a place to bury the dead by the proprietors of the village, Nathaniel Rochester, Charles Carrol and William Fetzhugh, when they laid out the village. This lot was on the east side of what is now South Plymouth Avenue. It is said that the first burial in that cemetery was the wife of Dr. Gibbs. That small cemetery was considered by many to be too close to the homes and in June 1821 a new larger cemetery, called West Cemetery, was opened farther to the west on Buffalo Street (now West Main Street) outside of the village. The old cemetery on South Plymouth Avenue was soon built on so it was supposed that the bodies were moved to the Buffalo Street cemetery.

By 1837, 570 of the 579 plots in the West Cemetery had been sold and Rochester needed a larger cemetery. Fifty-four acres were bought in the Town of Brighton, and Mt. Hope Cemetery came into being. Although there were no more sales of lots in West Cemetery, family members of lot owners were buried there until August 1848. Even before then the cemetery was suffering from neglect. In November 1844 it was reported that the fence around the cemetery was broken and cattle were grazing in the cemetery. In 1851 the West Cemetery lot was sold to Rochester City Hospital on the stipulation that they either fence in the cemetery, or if they wanted to build on that part of the lot, they must find a suitable place for the bodies. It was not until the latter half of 1859 that the remains were moved. There were probably about one thousand bodies moved from West Cemetery to Mt. Hope Cemetery. Many were moved to family owned plots and the remainder were put into a section along Indian Trail Road in Mt. Hope. The tombstones were also moved and many are still readable.

You would think that would be the end of the story of West Cemetery, but during the building of an addition to the Hospital in March of 1906 workman discovered two large boxes buried in the eastern lawn. When opened, one box contained thirty seven skeletons, all neatly arranged in a row and the other contained seventy one skeletons. These remains were probably the remains of the persons that were originally buried in that first cemetery on South Plymouth Avenue. Then again while building another addition to the hospital in October 1959, workman dug up a skull but failed to find any more bones. One must wonder how much care was taken to move the bodies from West Cemetery to Mt. Hope.

Enos Stone gave a small plot on the east side of the Genesee River to be used for burials. It was on the south side of East Avenue, opposite Gibbs Street. This small plot quickly filled and on June 10th, 1827 the Village of Rochester bought two acres of land on Monroe Avenue. This cemetery, called East Cemetery, may have been used for burials before the date of sale. Eventually 200 bodies were moved from the small cemetery on East Avenue to the East Cemetery. The first recorded grave sold in East Cemetery was sold to Simss Joy who paid $5.00 for the plot. In the 1840's some bodies were being moved from East Cemetery to family plots in Mt. Hope. Still, new burials were made in the East Cemetery until the 1860's. In 1872 the City of Rochester wanted to move the rest of the bodies and use the lot for a school. The remaining bodies were moved in 1873 to a very small plot in Mt. Hope Cemetery west of the lot of the removals from the West Cemetery. The tombstones were also moved. Then while building an addition on the school in July of 1926, workman dug up some bones, which were later pronounced to belong to a 12 year-old girl. One wonders if bones could still be found on that site today .

There were also other smaller cemeteries in Rochester that were moved. Frankfort Cemetery on the eastern corner of Frank and Smith Streets. A Methodist Church was built on that site in 1853 so the graves must have been moved before that time. There was a cemetery in McCrackenville, on the west side of the river near the Driving Park bridge. This cemetery probably contained no more than a dozen graves. Recently I found records that at least three of the McCracken family were moved from this cemetery to Mt. Hope in April 1846. A cemetery for the old village of Carthage was located on Tyler Street near the Veteran's Memorial Bridge. When it was moved is not known. Two other small cemeteries were on the east side of Mt. Hope Avenue, across from Mt. Hope Cemetery . The West Brighton Rural Cemetery was moved toMt. Hope in 1893 and some bodies were moved to family plots. The remainder were moved to a very small plot along Indian Trail in Mt. Hope. Some records remain of this cemetery including a map of plot owners. Next to West Brighton Cemetery was the Friends, Quaker, Cemetery. It is not known when or to where these graves were moved.

The old Catholic cemeteries didn't have any better fate. St. Patrick's was the first Catholic Church in Rochester to have a cemetery. At first there was a small graveyard behind the Church. Then in 1838, St. Patrick's bought a large lot on the corner of South Clinton and Field Streets, on part of Pinnacle Hill. After Holy Scpulchre Cemetery was opened in 1872, no more lots were sold in St. Patrick's Cemetery, and some bodies were moved to family plots in Holy Sepulchre. The last recorded burial in St. Patrick's was on December 4, 1900. The cemetery was abandoned and became overgrown. There were about 6000 persons originally buried there. A newspaper account of 1929 said some of the graves had been moved. In 1935 the remaining 4769 bodies were moved to Holy Sepulchre. A photo in the Democrat & Chronicle of September 2nd, 1935 show a steamshovel digging off the top layer of dirt. Another photo dated September 17, 1935 shows workman setting up a tombstone. But what happened to the tombstones? In the plot in Holy Sepulchre, to where the graves were moved, there is only one stone memorializing the dead from St. Patrick's Cemetery.

The St. Patrick's Cemetery was sold for $40,000 in 1960 but still remains vacant. I had heard about tombstones remaining there so I went to check it out last summer. I found many bases of tombstones and one whole stone still there with the inscription; "Eleanor Agnes, wife of Amos H. Greeno, died August 23, 1864 at 35 years." Also part of another stone of someone who died aged 72 years. Are the rest of the tombstones buried on the lot? Time may tell. The lot owner wants to sell it to the City of Rochester for $5,700,000 to be used as a park.

1 The Northfield Pioneers

Although it lay northwest of the seven-year-old settlement at Canandaigua, the term: "field" was a touch of sheer optimism. The heavy forest of hardwoods and pine growing close to the lake shore was almost unbroken. Any trails into this dense region had been hewn out by the slow and laborious wielding of many broadaxes, or followed footpaths along ancient Indian portages between waterways.

Northfield included the northernmost towns in Ranges 4, 5 and 7, including the present areas of Webster, Penfield, Perinton, Irondequoit, Brighton, Pittsford and Henrietta, plus the eastern portion of what is now the city of Rochester. Lake Ontario was at the north boundary, the Genesee River at the west. The eastern boundary of the County of Monroe and the southern boundaries of Perinton, Pittsford and Henrietta follow the eastern and southern boundaries of this vast early township which changed its name to Boyle in 1808. The area of Rochester, not settled until 1812, then lay in Brighton and Gates.

Now this 220-square mile block of land has a population of about a third of a million — comprising nearly half of Monroe County. The first census of Northfield, taken in 1800, showed 398 individuals. But, it was a rapidly growing area. In a decade, its population increased to 2,360.

Settlers were flocking into the whole Phelps and Gorham Purchase as the 19th century dawned. The Purchase was a two million acre tract bought and developed when investment and settlement finally became a safe venture after the Revolutionary War. The tract reached from the Pennsylvania border to Lake Ontario, with its eastern boundary line passing through Seneca Lake and the Genesee River forming its western boundary. Its division by surveyed ranges running north and south and by town lines going east and west, created 102 geographical divisions called "townships", each being six miles square. These were sold by Oliver Phelps and Nathaniel Gorham and successive owners of the Purchase.

All of the land in Township Number Thirteen on the Genesee River was sold to a group of speculators — lawyers, politicians and judges — from Berkshire County, Massachusetts, in January, 1789. In less than two months, Israel and Simon Stone and Seth Dodge from Salem, Washington County, N.Y. had acquired the land that would become Pittsford, and Perinton was sold to an assortment of purchasers the same year. By summer of 1789, parts of those lands had been resold, and the land lying at the strategic Indian Landing on Irondequoit Creek (now located in Ellison Park, Brighton) was sold to John Lusk, whose family journeyed from Richmond, Berkshire County, Massachusetts, to become the first white pioneers in present-day Monroe County. When he arrived with his son, Stephen, and a hired man, Seely Peet, he found a mulatto squatter, Asa Dunbar, living with his family at the Landing.

3 Land Development

The opening of the western lands of New York State for settlement, specifically the Phelps and Gorham Purchase, stimulated investment of both eastern and foreign capital. The account of the development of the Phelps and Gorham Purchase need not be related here except as it applies to seven towns in the northwest corner, east of the Genesee River, which became the governmental unit of Northfield in 1796. They were Towns 12, 13 and 14 of Range IV, Town 12 of Range V, and Towns 12, 13 and 14 of Range VII. Settlement had been made only in Town 12 of the Fifth Range (Pittsford) and Town 13 of the Seventh Range (Brighton) when the Federal Census was taken in 1790, but speculators had already bought four of these seven towns.

The surveyors of the Phelps and Gorham Purchase laid out 102 towns. Between July 8, 1788, when the Treaty of Buffalo Creek cleared the Indian title to the land, and November 18, 1790, when the remainder of the tract was sold to Robert Morris, about 50 of these towns had been sold.

Township 12, Range IV (Perinton) had been sold to Capt. William Walker from Lenox, Berkshire, Massachusetts, an agent of Phelps and Gorham. The deed for this sale to Judge Walker is dated August 31, 1789, conveying 36 square miles or 2,112 acres, to him for £1,056. Walker, his brother Caleb and cousin Glover Perrin surveyed the town into 54 lots of equal size plus another dozen of somewhat larger size along the western edge, through which the Irondequoit Creek flows. Glover Perrin was the first permanent settler and gave his name to the town that was established August 26, 1812. His aunt, Elizabeth Perrin, was Judge Walker's mother.

The Association of Stone and Dodge, a family group from Washington County, N.Y., bought 12,296 acres of Town 12, Range V (Pittsford) on August 24, 1789 for $4,786.56. The survey of the land divided it into about 70 lots which in the southern part of that township are nearly equal in size, but which are quite unequal north of Pittsford village. On March 25, 1814, this became the Town of Pittsford and took its name from the native home of Caleb Hopkins, a local war hero from Vermont.

Townsmen of Lenox, Berkshire County, Massachusetts headed by Caleb Hyde purchased Town 13, Range VII "on the Genesee" which became Brighton on March 25, 1814. This group of investors included Joseph Chapin, Senator Caleb Hyde, Col. Elijah Northrop, Prosper Polly and Judge Enos Stone. The survey of their township was made by Job Gilbert, who laid it out in three divisions. The first division included small lots 13-20 in the northeast and 25-35 in the southwest. The second division had large lots 3-80 and the third division was for small lots 26-32 on the river. The purchasers divided it by random drawing lots, soon after their purchase from Phelps and Gorham on January 17, 1789. The purchase price had been £1,584 for 18,090 acres. It was named for Brighton, England.

A single speculator, General Jonathan Fassett of Pittsford, Vermont, became the owner of Town 13, Range IV (Penfield). He bought the entire 25,030 acres for about $4,160 on September 14, 1790. He had Augustus Porter survey it into lots of about 400 acres each, with a few smaller lots overlooking Irondequoit Creek. It passed through the hands of several speculators until bought by Daniel Penfield. On March 30, 1810, it separated from Boyle and became the Town of Penfield.

Irondequoit and Webster were among those

tion. For a total of 1,300,000 acres, he paid $75,000.00, approximately 6¢ per acre. Henrietta's surveyor, Ezekiel Scott, bought a tract of 900 acres on November 1, 1790 from Phelps and Gorham. The rest of the town was included in the lands sold by them to Robert Morris.

That fall, Morris sent William Temple Franklin, grandson of Benjamin Franklin, to England as his agent to find purchasers for these American lands. Three Englishmen agreed to purchase them: Sir William Pulteney, William Hornby and Patrick Colquhoun. Pulteney was the largest investor, with ownership of three quarters of the enterprise. The others shared the remainder. Because at that time New York State laws forbade foreigners from owning land, they selected a Scotsman, Charles Williamson, to come to the United States, become naturalized, and then act as their agent. Williamson sold the lands of Henrietta in three parcels to James Wadsworth. A deed of 1794 shows the purchase price for an undivided third to be $2.00 an acre. In 1799, the sale of two pieces of 10,000 acres and 11,412 acres was completed for about $1.00 per acre.

Wadsworth went to Europe in 1796. He contracted with Dr. Willem Six and Associates to purchase land for them in the Genesee Country and to represent them as their agent. Wadsworth transferred his land in Henrietta to them in two large tracts the day after he completed the purchase of the last portion of the land from Williamson. In this deal, he about doubled his purchase price.

Dr. Willem Six died in 1811 and his brother, Cornelius Charles Six, became owner of the lands of Henrietta. It had been surveyed by Stephen Rogers into five ranges of 34 lots each, with a band of irregular sized lots along the river.

At this time, it was discovered that deeds to lands in Henrietta had not been properly recorded with the Secretary of State, as required by law. Many pioneers moved away rather than improve lands to which their right of title was in doubt. Those who stayed did receive good titles by the time Henrietta became a separate town on March 27, 1818. The name "Henrietta" was chosen to honor Henrietta Laura, Countess of Bath, daughter and heiress of Sir William Pulteney. He had died in 1795.

The Pulteney estate was likewise owner of the towns which until 1839 and 1840 were the northern portions of Brighton and Penfield. Settlement in these lowlands was slow.

Caleb Lyon in 1805 became the first purchaser of land in Webster. It was located at the mouth of Four Mile Creek. He intended to lay out a settlement there. Lyon became one of the early purchasers of land in Irondequoit, also, when he bought 1,000 acres at the site on the Genesee River later called Carthage. Neither place developed as he had believed and hoped they would, so he moved on to a home near Boonville in the Adirondacks.

Lands in Webster lie in sections numbered 10-15, in Town 14, Range IV and 77 small lots in the Gore, a pie-shaped piece of land lying east of Irondequoit Bay and part of Town 14, Range VII. These became the Town of Webster on February 6, 1840, named to honor Daniel Webster.

Land in Town 14, Range VII (Irondequoit) lying west of Irondequoit Bay was particularly hostile to settlers. Gullied sandy wastes were subject to severe sand storms in winds that blew from Lake Ontario. Great egg-shaped boulders of granite had been left by the pre-historic glacier, and the Ridge (road) itself was a remnant of early geological changes. About 4,000 acres at the south end of that town were excellent farmland and settled before the Town of Irondequoit was set off from Brighton on March 27, 1839. In the pine barrens along the lakeshore, all remained wilderness.

Lake Avenue, which had been roughly cut out by pioneers to connect Simon King's path to the landing place below the lower falls (Hanford Landing Road) and Allan's mill at what is now Exchange and Broad streets. The Ridge Road went as far as Clarkson. Or travelers might proceed down the wilderness highway leading from Scottsville, following the route which the Sheffers cut from their homestead to the river and its lone mill. The Ridge Road had been made passable for wagons about the time of the War of 1812, and legislation to improve it followed in 1813. Under the act of February 10, 1815, Philetus Swift and Caleb Hopkins laid out a new, six-rod Ridge Road. Dan Arnold, of Ogden, Son-in-law of James Latta of Charlotte, had cut a road from that lake port to the old Atchinson Settlement in Parma. It still bears the name "Latta", now U.S. highway 18, intersecting Route 259, a modified version of the old Braddock Bay Road, cut in 1800 to connect Buffalo Road, Route 33, with Braddock Bay and the Atchinson Settlement.

Before the building of roads and bridges, communication between the areas east and west of the Genesee River was difficult because the nearest crossing was at Hartford. Thus, settlers of Northfield on the east were quite separated from those at Northampton west of the river, and there were few marriages between families or migration from one shore to the other until after the erection of the 1812 bridge. Although this was destined to be the forerunner of the present Main Street bridge, its site was ridiculed by legislators sitting in Albany as: "a God-forsaken place, inhabited by muskrats, visited only by straggling trappers, and through which neither man nor beast could gallop without fear of starvation, or fever or ague."

Examination of the road records found in the Northfield town minute book provides positive proof that on September 10, 1800 a road was surveyed that began at a stake in the Landing Road south of "Deep Rattlesnake Spring" and ended twenty courses later at a stake on the east bank of the Genesee River. One can assume that more than muskrats were established nearby, for Indian Allen had built his mills opposite this site, even though the rock ledge north of it was infested with rattlesnakes. He had sensed the value of the water power from the falls there, and the fact that it marked the end of navigation, since the falls impeded the stream at that point.

In the 18 years encompassed in Northfield's town minutes, 115 road descriptions are included. Some roads, as the above example of East Avenue and its continuation to the Genesee, are meticulously described and reasonably easy to identify with present-day roads. Others, such as that laid out and recorded December 17, 1801, started as a now unidentifiable spot "at a walnut staddle on the road a little south of Samuel Smith's old house" to end on "the other road a little north of William Agate's road". Such descriptions pose an enigma, certainly, yet nearly all have been solved as identifications of the road surveys in the minutes were developed through careful studies of the locations of the early settlers (shown by deeds to their lands), and through a study of a succession of maps dating from that period to the present, plus reference to other identifications in various town records.

Some of the modern names in these identifications are mentioned several times. It should be borne in mind that the roads were developed in sections, extended later, altered to suit individuals living on them, even abandoned. The identifications made in this volume are simply made for the interest of the reader, and are not to be construed as official designations for titles, deeds or government usages.

Clara A. Clapp

After an illness of several months duration, Miss Clara A. Clapp passed away at her home on West Maple street Sunday morning at 5:30 o'clock at the age of 72 years, 3 months and 11 days. Funeral services were held at the home Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. W. Edward Stokesberry and interment was made in McPherson Cemetery.

Among her papers were found the following facts of her life:

Edmund Clapp and Charlotte Foot were married at the home of Wm. Harrison on Maumee Pike (now McPherson Highway) April 7, 1851, by Amos Fenn, grandfather of Jay Fenn. They became owners of the Nelson Birdseye home, where Miss Clara and her brother, Robert Edmund, were born.

Mr. Clapp sold the home to Jos. Birdseye in 1854 and moved to a log house on the farm now owned by B. A. Becker on McPherson Highway, while the home now there was being built. The father died before the house was completed but the mother lived until 1885

At the death of her father she went to live with her aunt, Mrs. Hannah Kernahan where she made her home most of the time when out of school. During her school days she lived with her mother in the home now known as the Tiffany homestead on Buckeye street.

She attended the old school on Main street and has been very active in the Old School Association ever since it was founded. In 1904 she moved to Clyde, where she has since resided.

She appreciated the kindness and attention of her friends and was constantly remembering them with some choice bit of needlework. She had a deep interest in accumulating historical facts and has done much in that line of work to make her name remembered.

managing his large business, which he has built up through his own efforts.

On October 17, 1892, Mr. Marsh was united in marriage with Miss Clara Rosendale, of West Millgrove, the only daughter of Dr. Charles R. and Rebecca (Wade) Rosendale, and to them has been born one child—Earl R. A stanch Republican politically, our subject keeps himself well posted in regard to current events, and is one of the reliable and straightforward young business men of the community, well and favorably known.

Joel Foote, deceased. Among the straightforward, energetic and successful farmers in Washington township, none stood higher than the subject of this sketch. A native of Massachusetts, he was there born July 26, 1815, to Epaphroditus, a son of Epaphroditus and Eunice (Ringe) Foote. They were Connecticut people, and from that State our subject's father went with his parents to Madison county, N. Y., where he received his education. After his marriage he removed to the Bay State, but later returned to New York, this time locating in Genesee county. Leaving his family there, he, in 1825, came to Ohio, where he remained some four years, and then returned for them on an Indian pony. In the spring of 1829 he brought them to this State by water. From Utica, N. Y., to Black Rock they proceeded by the Erie canal, and at Buffalo they took passage on the schooner "Eagle," commanded by Capt. David Wilkison, but, on account of delays from ice, they were six weeks upon the journey before reaching Maumee. They located on Granger Island, where the mother died the same year. There the father operated a distillery two years, at the expiration of which time, in the spring of 1831, he bought eighty acres of land, and entered eight more one mile north of Haskins, Wood county. This he improved and cultivated, and in 1850 traded for the farm on which our subject now resides. In the meantime, from 1835 to 1841, he conducted a hotel at Miltonville, and after disposing of the hotel, he removed to the farm, which comprises 120 acres of rich and arable land.

By his first marriage, Mr. Foote became the father of five children, of whom our subject was the eldest. The others are Delos, who died and was buried at Lockport, N. Y.; Mary, deceased wife of James Blinn, a farmer of Perrysburg; Sarah Ann, deceased wife of John Arnold, of Iowa, where her death occurred; and Epaphroditus, who died in the fall of 1840, at the age of twenty years. In 1830, Mr. Foote wedded his second wife, Charlotte Smith, a native of Herkimer county, N. Y., and to them were born children, to wit: Leroy, a farmer in Canada; Oscar, deceased; Emily, wife of Freeman Smith, of Wayne county, Ind.; Frederick, a merchant of Kent, Portage Co., Ohio, where he is living with his wife; Eunice, wife of John S. Matthews, of Tontogany; one who died at the age of eight years; and Harriet, wife of Frank Yost, a merchant of Tontogany.

Our subject was fourteen years old when he arrived in this State, so his education had been acquired in New York before that time; and he remained under the parental roof until he attained his majority. In 1836 he began work for J. W. Smith, a brother of D. B. Smith, with whom he remained some three years, receiving $10 per month during the first year; $15 during the second; and $20 during the third. For the following two years he drove a stage for the firm of Neal, Moore & Co., the former, the builder of the "Neal House" in Columbus. Our subject was the first to run a boat over the levee between Providence and Miami, Ohio, and in 1842 began his farming operations, in which he met with excellent success.

In 1841, Mr. Foote was united in marriage with Margaret Canela, a native of Ireland, and to them were born seven children, three of whom still survive: Alice, wife of George E. Bliss, of Kendallville, Ind.; Albert Delos, postmaster of Tontogany; and Clara, wife of F. A. Baldwin, of Bowling Green. Those deceased were: Ella, who died when fifteen years old; Calvin, who was a veteran of the 100th Regiment, O. V. I., during the Civil war, and was killed by being run over by a team after the close of the struggle; Mary, who died when young; and James Knox, who died at the age of thirty-six. The mother of this family died in 1864, and in 1867 Mr. Foote wedded Emily (Soash) Oswald, widow of John Oswald, and four children graced this union; Eddie and Freddie (twins), the former o whom died when four weeks old, and the latter now conducts a livery stable at Liberty Center, Ohio; Frank Forest, a merchant of Rochester, Fulton Co., Ind., and Joel W., a clerk at Warsaw, Indiana.

another Calvin!

The death of our subject occurred February 22, 1896. In politics he was an ardent and loyal Democrat, and for several years he served as a trustee of Weston township, also, later, of Washington township. In religious faith he was a Universalist, while his first wife was a Catholicl his second a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Case #1825

In the Name of the Benevolent Father of All:

I Rhoda Simmerson of the Town of Clyde, County of Sandusky and State of Ohio,

Do Make and publish this My Last Will and Testament.

Item 1st. I give and devise to My Daughter Emerette, (now known as Emerette Jennery), during her natural life all My interest and Claim, Legal and Equitable present and prospective, in and to My House and Lot in Said Town of Clyde, and More particularly Known:

as Lot number Nineteen (19) of E. Suttons Subdivision of Said Town, and being the Same premises now occupied by Me as a Homestead.

And this property is given with this explanation and request that- Whereas I have frequently been Over persuaded, against My inclination, by My Husband Mr Joseph Simerson, and his Creditors, and upon various pretenses to dispose of all My other property and rights before investing in Said Lot (19) and have Subsequently by Similar Means beyond My Comprehension at the time been persuaded to incumber the back half of my said Lot nineteen by sundries Papers, to pay and discharge certain debts assumed by said Joseph, which papers seem, not only to have barred my dower interest, but divested me of my fee simple interest in the rear part of said Lot nineteen, and whereas, while my said interests were thus being incumbered, the said Joseph Simmerson repeatedly agreed that all my interests in the rear half of said Lot, should be secured to me in, and transferred to, the front part of said Lot nineteen, including all the money I first paid on the whole of said Lot nineteen, and what I subsequently paid on said Lot, to save the Title, it is therefore my desire that my said Daughter, Emerette, in lieu of the premises aforesaid, shall have all and singular my interests in the said property and further to secure and define my interests therein I hereby

For Item 2d give and bequeath to my said Daughter "Emerette" my account against the said Joseph Simmerson for money loaned to him at the times in said account stated and for my fee simple interest in the rear part of our Homestead ~~with the interest thereon to this date~~ amounting in all to Four Hundred and twenty five and 35/100 Dollars ($425.35) which account I have this day and do by these presents, for a valuable consideration sell assign and transfer to the said Emerette and authorize her to controll the same for her own use and benefit.

Item 3rd Whatever Clothing I may leave at my decease I desire shall be divided Equally with my two Daughters. to wit the said Mrs Tennery and Mrs Emeline Hayden, also all my Household Furniture, Bedding dishes, Pictures &c &c I desire shall be Equally divided between my aforesaid two Daughters, but my Bureau and Spinning Wheel, it is my wish that the said Emerett should keep. and with the further understanding that the Real Estate aforesaid willed to my said Daughter Emerett shall be for her during her natural Life and at her death, the same shall descend to her Children,

I do hereby Revoke all former Wills by me made. In Testimony hereof, I have hereunto set my hand and Seal, this 15th day of April in the year 1868

Signed and acknowledged by the said Rhoda Simmerson as her Last Will and Testament in Our presence; and signed by us in her presence

The dear delights which kindred give
Can make happiness to live
Can check each tear and bid to cease Those cares which would disturb our peace.

Wrought (fine) by (handwork)
Nancy (in here) W. Root

Rochester, Sept. 30th

This sampler measures 16¾" x 25" and is full of very finely done and intricate crossstitch work for a young girl of 12 years. The colors are yellow, green, pale blue and pink, though it is somewhat faded (Being 115 years old at this copying). There is a wide border completely around the sampler in a conventional design, in green and yellow. The family names are in blue and the verse is in pink, the flowers and other designs in various colors. The "Rochester" is Rochester, N.Y. as this branch of the family were from New York State, My mother tells the story of Nancy Root's meeting her future husband. The Beach family were snowbound somewhere around Buffalo, I believe, and sought to stay overnight at Nancy Root's home and were welcome as was the custom in those arduous days. A romance ensued from this meeting, culminating in marriage. Nancy W. Root was my great grandmother, she being the mother of William Benona Harris Beach, who was my grandfather on my mother's side. Grandfather was left an orphan at 12 years old. Nancy W. Root's first husband (Beach) died and she remarried and died in childbirth. The beautiful and carefully done handwork on this sampler is an evidence of the fine, lovely and intelligent girl and woman Nancy W. Root must have been. Her son, William Benona H. Beach, my grandfather, became a minister, taught Greek and Latin at Starkey Seminary in Lakemont, N.Y. besides being able to read many other difficult languages. He was quite a brilliant man.

This sampler is in possession at present of Mrs. Elizabeth Albin, 9501 Milton Ave., Overland (St. Louis) Missouri. She has two daughters, Margaret Elizabeth Albin, 24 yrs. old, and Dorothy Ann Albin (DiDi), 14 yrs. old.

I have written this out for the benefit of my children, Marian Ruth Cooper and Norman Frank Cooper.

Ruth Hinton Cooper,

Dear Helen,

I bet this letter will be a surprise to you! I know I haven't written for so long, its shameful. I honestly haven't been doing any genealogy for about 3 years. I have picked it up slowly again.

This time I have been trying to concentrate on just a few lines at a time, instead of trying to do many, as I did before. I have tons of info on many lines, and it seems my lines keep going farther back.

One thing I have noticed is it is hardier than ever for me to obtain vital records. So much for search alone, then I have to pay $1-$2.00 a page for a copy.

Right now I am working on my maternal line. I want to ask a favor of you. I know I haven't been in contact with you for so long, that you may have forgotten about me. I noticed in some of the info. you sent, that you had searched the 1900 census. I would like to know if you have access to the 1900 census indexes for Ohio or Penn, or others? If you do have access, how much would you charge to look up a couple of surnames for me.

I ordered 3 county censuses 6 weeks ago, and they just came in, but 1 won't be shipped until May! The particular counties were on 5 reels at a cost of $3.00 a reel. Now that may not seem like much to you, but when you do research you know you might need more than one county or year. I also am unable to get census indexes. Sometimes I can't find the person I am looking for because I don't know the county, but do know the state.

Frankly I don't know where to turn. I have answered some of the ads in the Gen. Helper for so much money per surname etc. but it gets expensive.

I have a rather elusive ancestor that deserted his family in Mich. much like Lorenzo Root did. My grandfather was his only child here in Mich. I have the divorce papers, stating a desertion. I have tracked him back tO Penn. I think! He was originally from there. I was sent a obit. from the county where he was born, and he was listed as being a surviving step-son in 1909. Unfortunately, the obit didn't mention where the children lived at the time. One of the censuses I borrowed was for the county, but I couldn't seem to pick him up on it. But I know one of the brothers was in a neighboring county. I picked up one or poss. 2 ch. on the 1900 census, and am now trying to track down the descendents.

Unfortunately also, the family name is quite popular in Penn. It is Snyder-Schneider. They are mostly related from a couple of early immigrant families from Germany.

If you can help me, let me know and I will send the guys name & siblings name. If you can't, would you suggest someone who might be able to help me? Do you have access to other censuses as well, like Ohio or Penn. 1790-1800 ones?

I hope you won't think me forward for asking help of you, its just that I don't know what to do.

All is well with my family & I. We still have the 5 children at home, and that does keep me fairly busy. Our oldest son is graduating this June, so have to start preparing for open house etc.

Hope this note finds you well and enjoying the nice springtime weather. We still have snow here, enough for sledding, but it is gradually going.

Sincerely,

Phyllis

Dear Sir;

I am seeking more information on my ancestor and wonder if the property deeds can be checked.

Vandosto Sprague Root was in Medina Co. prior to 1840. His father's name was John Root.

I am interested in the earliest property deed for this family.

Please inform me of the fee for this search.

Sincerely,
Helen C. Read

Mrs. Read:

I have checked the old deed records from 1795 - 1957 and have found so many Root names. I did not find a Vandosto Sprague Root. I did find a deed in 1825 from Aaron Root to John P. Root. There are a lot of deed by the initial J. A., J.B., J.H.,.

I am enclosing a copy of my notes in trying to locate John Root and these will show you different names I ran across. Perhaps some of them will mean something to you. If you can come to our courthouse we will be glad to show you where to find these old indexes and deeds. We do not have the time to search them out as this would take many, many hours with all these names. Copies of any deeds are $1.00 per page. We do not have fees for searching as we really aren't supposed to do searches. We could give you names of a few geneologists that will search these out if you wish.

Sincerely yours,

THE SULLIVAN-CLINTON CAMPAIGN

From a Speech delivered by State Historian Alexander C. Flick before the Cooperstown Rotary Club

The Sullivan-Clinton Campaign in 1779 against the hostile Iroquois Indians and the British fortresses at Oswego and Niagara was the result of frontier conditions in New York and Pennsylvania which had been growing more and more acute during the years 1777 and 1778. The warriors of the Six Nations, who had formed an alliance with the English and the Loyalists terrorized the frontier settlements. As a result there was a persistent demand for adequate protection from the exposed communities.

The precipitous retreat of St. Ledger's army and the defeat of Burgoyne, which resulted in the surrender of his forces at Saratoga, in 1777, brought temporary relief from the menace but no complete security. During the year 1778 the pillaging raids and attacks by Indians and Loyalists in the borderland were more numerous and more disastrous than before. Consequently the appeals of the menaced patriots to Governor George Clinton to the New York Legislature to Washington, and to Congress for protection became piteously insistent.

The attacks on Wyoming July 3rd, and on Cherry Valley on November 11-12, 1778, opened the eyes of the civil and military authorities to the necessity of organizing a drive into the Indian country which would crush the power of the Redmen. Governor George Clinton promised that he would do everything within his power for "the protection and the comfort" of the frontiersmen. With Gen. Philip Schuyler and Gen. Edward Hand he advised a winter attack on the Indian strongholds. Although that suggestion did not materialize, the correspondence of Washington shows that he devoted a great deal of attention to the "Indian expedition during the winter and spring of 1778-79. On March 13, 1779, the Legislature of New York ordered 1000 men to be recruited to defend the frontier and forts to be erected. The "spirited exertions" of New York were commended by Congress.

Meanwhile Washington's plan for the "Indian expedition" was completed and laid before Congress, and that body on February 25, 1779, authorized it, and a few months later voted $600,000 for its execution a sum that was increased later by over $300,000. Owing to his rank the leadership of the campaign was offered by Washington to Gen. Gates. When he curtly refused the honor, Gen. John Sullivan was appointed. He was well qualified by age, temperament, and military experience to carry out the hazardous undertaking. Gen. James Clinton, the brother of Gov. George Clinton, was regarded as second in command, and was given direct charge of the army which was assembled in New York and which was to march from the Mohawk ward to form a juncture with Gen. Sullivan at Tioga Point in nor sylvania. Gen Clinton was also authorized to open the campaign liminary drive from the Mohawk into the country of the Onond

The Sullivan-Clinton Expedition is commonly regarded as movement against the hostile tribes of the Six Nations. It was that, and much more. The immediate purpose was to give protection to th less frontier settlements. This was to be accomplished by destroyi dian villages and sources of food supply, and by driving the Indians and northward. A second object was to cut off the food supply of dried vegetables which had been going from the Indians to the Loy British for waging war. A third part of the plan was to capture th forts of Oswego and Niagara which were store houses of the enemy a for military operations. But the most important objective has been overlooked by most historians. By 1779 it was pretty clearly seen war was deadlocked—and that was virtually a triumph for the America Burgoyne had surrendered an army. France was an active ally. Othe pean nations were friendly. Talk of peace was not far off, and, inde openly talked in the British Parliament. Washington and other lead that independence with a mere fringe of land along the seacoast would be worth the cost of the struggle if the rest of the continent to the w and northward remained in the hands of the motherland. Washingto by actual experience the potential wealth of the fertile regions of the i of the continent. He realized that when the time came to discuss ter peace that rich area could be secured for the young nation only if it w possession of the Americans. The conquest of western New York, the c of Oswego and Niagara, and the seizure of posts farther west, would a American possession at the end of the war. Hence in the Sullivan-C Expedition an inland empire was the stakes for which Washington was ing—and not merely the punishment of dusky foes on our border.

The plan of the Sullivan-Clinton Campaign, as organized by Wa ton, consisted of four parts:

1. The campaign was to be opened in the spring of 1779 by Gen. Cli with an expedition from the Upper Mohawk River and Fort Schuyler into Onondaga country. The purpose of this movement was to free the main of attack from the possibility of menace from the more easterly tribes the Six Nations, and thus permit the leaders of the expedition to devote their attention to the Cayugas and Senecas.

2. After this preliminary drive Gen. Clinton was to mobolize an ar at Canajoharie on the Mohawk and then proceed across New York southwestward, destroying Indian villages and cornfields as he followed Upper Susquehanna River, down to Tioga Point, where he was to form a with the army of Gen. Sullivan.

3. Meanwhile Col. Daniel Brodhead from Fort Pitt in western Pen ania was to ascend the Allegheny River to its headwaters, subduing the dians and burning their homes as he penetrated their country. He was tructed to keep in touch with Gen. Sullivan and to cross western New Y join him somewhere in the Seneca region.

4. The main artery of the Expedition under General Sullivan was art from Easton, Pa., with the major force, proceed across Pennsylva Tioga Point, and, after a juncture with Gen. Clinton's army, move up i the Cayuga and Seneca territory. After breaking the power of the Cayu nd Senecas, defeating the British and Loyalists with them, and being re forced by Col. Brodhead, it was hoped that the forts at Oswego and Niaga might be captured.

Thus it will be seen that the Sullivan-Clinton Campaign was one of t gest offensive movements in the whole War of Independence. It direct olved the two states of New York and Pennsylvania. Upon its success, d nded the future of the American nation. Officers and soldiers from at lea states—New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New Hampshire, and Massa husetts—participated. Experienced Continentals and new militia were en ed to carry it out. A list of the higher officers will show the importance at hed to the Expedition by Washington— Generals Sullivan, Clinton, Hanc and Maxwell; and Colonels Brodhead, Van Schaick, Butler, Cilly, Dayton arborn, Proctor, Gansevoort, Van Cortlandt, Willett, Odgen, Shreeve, Spen Reid, Hubley, Weissenfels, Dubois and Antis. The appropriation by Con of nearly a million dollars for equipment and supplies reveals the signi- nce attached by that body to the enterprise.

The Sullivan-Clinton Expedition against the Six Nations and their Brit- and Loyalist leaders captured the imagination of the Americans. It awak- tremendous interest and was the theme of conversation all along the ntic seaboard. The newspapers of the day discussed it at great length. novelty and uniqueness of this campaign against the Redmen in the ness with the strange sights and new experiences produced one result h did not characterize any other movement in the Revolution to so great ree. Officers and chaplains and privates kept diaries and journals of the nings. More than thirty of these personal observations have survived most of them have been printed. Although few letters written by men on Expedition have survived—it may be that owing to conditions few were ritten—yet these diaries and journals give us today a remarkable picture of occurrences.

A brief survey of each one of the four parts of the campaign mentioned ove will enable one to visualize what took place and to see how successfully or the most part, the Expedition was carried out.

1. For the preliminary drive against the Onondagas in the early spring of 779 Gen. Clinton ordered troops from the Schoharie and Mohawk valleys to roceed to Fort Schuyler, where Col. Gosse Van Schaick's 1st N. Y. Reg. and a ompany of artillery were stationed. These groups of Oneidas and Tuscarawas ame to the fort and asked to be permitted to join the expedition. On April 18th the Indians accompanied by American officers—Lieut. McClellan and Ensign Hardenburg with two sergeants—set off on an independent movement. The next day, April 19th, Col. Van Schaick, Lieut. Col. Willett and Major Cochran with 558 men and officers from the 1st N. Y. Reg. set out down Wood Creek and across Lake Oneida. The army then marched across land to Onondaga Lake and up Onondaga Creek where the Onondaga Indian villages were located. One account states that between 30 and 40 houses were burned; 15 Indians killed; 34 captured; 1 white man taken; the cows, horses and hogs which could not be taken away killed; provisions destroyed; "2 stands of colors," 100 guns, a swivel, and ammunition taken or destroyed; and a large quantity of pillage obtained. Without a single man killed or wounded, the army with its prisoners and as much plunder as could be carried was back at its boats on Lake Oneida on April 22nd. Two days later they were at Fort Schuyler. A difficult incursion had been made with extraordinary expedition and with great success. Congress publicly thanked Col. Van Schaick, his officers and men for "their activity and good conduct." This enterprise made excellent publicity for strengthening the morale for the other parts of the Expedition.

2. Gen. Clinton's movement from the Mohawk to Tioga Point with about 1600 men was quite as successful. From Albany he gave orders for the various military units to rendevous at Canajoharie. About 250 flat-bottomed boats were built at Schenectady and taken up the river to the same place. Provisions were collected in boxes and barrels not only for his own army but for that of Gen. Sullivan as well. During the latter part of June and early July the boats and provisions were carried over the hills by wagons from Canajoharie to the head of Lake Otsego and then taken by water to the foot of the lake where the troops assembled. The lake was dammed so as to raise the water sufficiently to float the boats down to Tioga Point. After a delay of more than a month at the foot of Lake Otsego, Gen. Clinton with the 3rd, 4th and 5th N. Y. Regs., the 6th Mass. Reg., the 4th Pa. Reg., and four companies of Morgan's Rifles received orders from Gen Sullivan to start south. Hence on Aug. 9, 1779, the dam was cut, the boats with their heavy loads of supplies were floated on the Susquehanna, and the impatient army started for Tioga. Contrary to expectations few Indians were encountered on the journey. A number of deserted Indian towns were destroyed together with their gardens and corn fields. On Aug. 19th Gen. Clinton met Gen. Poor who had been sent forward to meet him and on Aug. 22nd Gen. Clinton's army was welcomed at Tioga Point with cheers and salvos of artillery. The movement had been executed quickly and without mishap.

3. Meanwhile Col Daniel Brodhead following instructions had left Fort Pitt on August 11th with 605 "rank and file" to invade the Seneca country and to form a juncture with Gen. Sullivan and Gen. Clinton at some point in the Genesee region. He took one month's provision which was forwarded by boat up the Allegheny River. With live stock and pack horses, and accompanied by Delaware Indians as spies and scouts, Col. Brodhead took his army over a shorter route northward by land. No fighting occurred on the ute except a skirmish with a band of 30 or 40 Indian warriors. The Indian llages on the upper Allegheny River were deserted by the inhabitants just fore the arrival of American troops. A large amount of plunder was secured d then the houses were burned and about 500 acres of corn and vegetables stroyed. From the indefinite records it is difficult to determine the farthest int reached by Col. Brodhead's expedition but it seems very probable that e present border line between New York and Pennsylvania was crossed. oth Gen. Sullivan and Col. Brodhead sent messengers to the other but apparntly they did not get through. In this state of uncertainty, and many of his en being "barefooted and naked," Col. Brodhead returned over a different oute, destroying more Indian villages as he proceeded, and reached Fort Pitt on Sept. 14th without loss of either "man or beast."

4. The major force of the Expedition was mobilized at Easton, Pa. To that point marched troops from New England, New Jersey, New York, and Pennsylvania. After his appointment as head of the Expedition early in March 1779, Gen. Sullivan devoted his time to making preparations for the enterprise. Food supplies had to be assembled to supplement those of Gen. Clinton. The exact route had to be determined. Cattle and horses had to be collected. Boats had to be obtained or built. A road had to be cut over the mountain to Wyoming. On May 7th Gen. Sullivan reached Easton where he assembled about 3,500 men in three Brigades under Gen. Maxwell, Gen. Hand and Gen. Poor. On June 18th Gen. Sullivan moved toward Wyoming, which was reached on June 23rd. He had expected to be met there by a fleet of boats laden with supplies but was deeply disappointed. Hence he was delayed at Wyoming for over five weeks while boats and supplies were with much difficulty obtained. It was not until July 31st that the Expedition was ready to proceed and Tioga was reached Aug. 11th. After the juncture with Gen. Clinton's army on Aug. 22nd, no time was lost in proceeding forward along the main line of attack.

After rearranging the brigades so as to place regiments under their customary commanders as nearly as could be done, and transferring the supplies from the boats to the 1200 packhorses, the army, delayed one day by rain, started from Tioga on Aug. 26th. The Battle of Newton occurred near the present city of Elmira on Aug. 29th. It was dramatic but the fatalities on both sides were not large. The Indians and Loyalists were driven from the field and pursued for some distance. The Redmen were frightened by the cannon which they called "thunder trees." This victory practically settled the fighting of the whole campaign, for the Indians never made another stand.

From Newton the army hurried forward through what is now Horseheads and Montour Falls, along the eastern shore of Seneca Lake to Geneva, and the through Canandaigua and Hornell to old Genesee Castle, the western extrem of the Expedition, which was reached on Sept. 14th, less than three weeks aft leaving Tioga. The ambush of Boyd and Parker and their companions was t only engagement after Newton resembling a skirmish. On Sept. 17th feeling th his orders had been executed Gen. Sullivan began his return journey over t same route. On the way back parties were sent down the two sides of Cayug Lake and Col. Gansevoort with a body of troops cut across to Fort Stanwi On Sept. 30th the Expedition reached Tioga.

With the exception of the capture of the forts at Oswego and Niagara th objectives of the Sullivan-Clinton Campaign were all realized. The hosti Senecas and Cayugas were terribly punished. Their homes were burned; thei vast cornfields and gardens were all destroyed; and their orchards were cut dow or killed. Food supplies upon which the British depended were now unavailabl The frontier settlements of New York and Pennsylvania felt secure. But th most important result was that now when peace was signed the Americans woul have a pretext for holding these western lands into which within a few year thousands of settlers were to find new homes.

JOSEPH BRANT

Thayendanegea

Joseph Brant was a full blood Mohawk Indian and was born on the banks of the Ohio in 1742. His mother later returned to Canajoharie with two children, Joseph and Molly. Molly later became the Indian wife of Sir William Johnson. His father died in the Ohio country.

Through the interest of Sir William Johnson, young Brant was educated in the celebrated school of Dr. Wheelock of Lebanon, Connecticut.

He espoused the English side during the Revolution and the greater part of service was on the border of New York State.

The portrait presented herewith is a copy of one made by a celebrated English painter, Romney. This was made during a visit by Brant to England during the early days of the Revolution.

Dear Mrs. Read:

I have searched our indices of deeds from 1802 to 1835 for both Grantee and Grantor. Unfortunately, I find no entry for a JOHN ROOT. During that time period the following given names are entered in our indices for the surname ROOT.

Elijah

David, Jr.
Elijah, Jr.
Edwin S.

I assume that you have already communicated with the Monroe County Clerk for assistance. You may also wish to try the Ontario County Clerk, Canandaigua, New York. If you have any reason to believe that title may have been taken prior to 1802 the deed would be on record there.

As you will note below, we share the same surname. Your letter caught my attention additionally because I have a cousin David Read who currently resides in Cincinnati, Ohio. If we can be of any further service in your research efforts, please advise. Good Luck.

Respectfully,

Dear Mrs. Read:

In response to your letter of October 26 concerning Gilbert Cemetery records, the Sandusky County Kin-Hunters Guide #29 notes that Mr. and Mrs. L. Harris recorded information on this cemetery in 1964. While we have copies of most of the county cemeteries here at Hayes Center, we don't have the 1964 listing of Gilbert Cemetery. Mrs. Grace Luebke, Harris-Elmore Library, 328 Toledo St., Elmore, OH 43416, has the index for the Kin-Hunters cemetery records. I don't know if she has copies of all the records, but she may be able to help you.

I assume the York Township trustees would be in charge of any record books that might be available.

I hope this information will prove helpful to you.

Sincerely yours,

Waterman; 1882; pep

acres of land in Jefferson Township. He then began farming, and continued it about eighteen years, toward the close of that period establishing a mercantile business in Cassopolis. This he carried on very successfully until 1875. He bought large tracts of land near the village, and became the owner of a very extensive property, which, as well as his mercantile and general business, he managed with signal ability. He was a Captain of militia in Ohio, and Major of the regiment of militia organized in Cass County in 1841. He was a member of the first Legislature elected under the State Constitution in 1836, and was re-elected in 1837. In local affairs, he took a prominent part, being several times elected to such offices as Supervisor, Justice of the Peace, and President of the village. In politics, he always acted with the Democratic party. His death occurred in April, 1880. Maj. Smith was married in February, 1830, to Jemima Lippincott, daughter of Obadiah Lippincott, of Clark County, Ohio, who still survives. They were the parents of eleven children, the first two of whom died in infancy. The others are—Lewis Davis, merchant of Cassopolis; Eliza J. (widow of John Shaw), also of Cassopolis; John Henry and Emily, deceased; Margaret (wife of Lester Graham, of Jefferson Township); Sarah (Bell), deceased; Thomas J., Sabrina (Mrs. E. R. Graham), and James P., of Cassopolis.

EBER ROOT.

Mr. Eber Root was an early hotel-keeper of Cassopolis, whose name is frequently mentioned in the history of the village; he came here in the year 1832, from Huron County, Ohio, and was the builder of the old log jail, or "gaol," as it is called in the Supervisors' records, and was Sheriff in 1835. Mr. Root was a man of good character, and a genial, pleasant landlord. His first wife, Mary Gamble, who came with him from Ohio, died in 1834, and hers was the second death which occurred in Cassopolis. His second wife, Eliza Wells, who came from Edwardsburg, is still living. Mr. Root retired to a farm in La Grange Township early in the fifties, and died there June 19, 1862, aged sixty-three years. His children are Isabella (Mrs. J. P. Osborn), Mary (Worthington) and Jane (wife of L. D. Smith).

S. A. TURNER.

The subject of this sketch, one of the early residents of Cassopolis, was born in Northampton County, N. C., July 5, 1791, and was reared in Southampton County, Va. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and served under Gen. Wade Hampton. He was in the battle of Plattsburg, and one of the party engaged in the retaking of the brig from the British in Buffalo Harbor. At the close of the war, he received an honorable discharge at Covington, Ky., and soon after settled in Franklin County, N. Y. In 1835, he came to Michigan, and in 1836 to Cass County, locating at the county seat. He followed the trade of harness making, and for many years lived in the house now occupied by Capt. Joseph Harper. For a long period, he was a Justice of the Peace, being several times re-elected. He died May 10, 1851, mourned by a large circle of friends. Mr. Turner was a man of fine character, and universally respected in the community in which he dwelt.

JOHN TIETSORT.

Mr. Tietsort was born in Miltonville, Butler County, Ohio, November 22, 1826, and was the oldest son of Abram Tietsort, Jr. (see history of La Grange Township). He came with his father to Niles, Mich., in April, 1828, and from there to what is now Cassopolis in the spring of 1830, the family being the first settlers on the site of the village. Mr. Tietsort has ever since resided in Cassopolis, with the exception of two years spent in California, whither he went in 1850, with Joseph Harper and others. He has lived longer in the village than any other resident. During the greater part of the period from 1846 to 1873, he was engaged in the mercantile business. He has been one of the most useful and popular citizens of the place. A man of generous impulses, and always having the best interests of the community at heart, he has done much for the benefit of Cassopolis. The citizens are largely indebted to him for the beautiful arrangement of the village burying-ground and its admirable condition. His services have usually been bestowed without the expectation of or the desire for remuneration.

Mr. Tietsort has been married three times. His first wife, with whom he was joined November 25, 1852, was Ellen Silver Sherman, daughter of Elias B. Sherman. She died August 26, 1862. He was married to Eleanor Robinson, January 26, 1864. Her death occurred October 27, 1869, and upon July 17, 1871, Mr. Tietsort married Addie Silver Robinson. He has three daughters and one son, all living in Cassopolis.

CHARLES KINGSBURY.

Mr. Kingsbury was born, May 14, 1812, in Norfolk County, Mass., and remained in the vicinity of his native place until he arrived at years of maturity, when he went to Augusta, Me., with a small stock of

JOSEPHUS WHITE was born in Williamston, Ontario (now Wayne) county, N. Y., August 5, 1808. His father, Daniel White, was a native of [illegible] State of New York, and was a lawyer of Oxford, N. Y., where he became a judge. He died in Wayne, Erie county, Pa. He married Eunice Root, of Coventry, Chenango county, N. Y., by whom he had seven children, Josephus being the sixth child and fourth son. Mrs. Eunice White was born at Coventry, and died in Wayne, Erie county, Pa., in 1838. Josephus White lived with his parents until he was thirteen years old, when he went to Canandaigua, and worked on a farm until he was in his seventeenth year. He then went to Dansville and learned the tailor's trade, which he followed for some years. In 1834 he went to Clarkson, Monroe county, N. Y., and commenced preaching the gospel in the Free Will Baptist church. After preaching there for about three years, in 1837 he went to Boston, Erie county, where he preached about three years, and where he was ordained in 1839. In 1840 he went to Oberlin, Ohio, with the intention of attending the college there, but after consultation with Prof. Finney, and through some opposition from the church, and after preaching about one year in Clarkson and Brighton, Lorain county, Ohio, he gave up the ministry and purchased some land in Camden, Lorain county, and went to farming. He lived in Camden until the fall of 1846, when he sold out and came to Michigan and purchased a farm on section 6, in Ogden, where he has resided ever since. The land was covered with a very heavy growth of timber, and there never had been a stick cut or any improvement made. Before he had got his house enclosed and sufficiently "chinked up" to keep the wind and snow out, it was found out that he was a preacher, and he was called upon to preach a funeral sermon. During the first few years of his residence he preached very often, and never failed to attend a funeral when he was notified that his services were wanted. Many times he has waded through water and snow to preach. It was common then when a person started out to take a long pole in his hand—a sort of sounding pole—for the purpose of jumping over brooks, water holes, to assist in walking logs, and also to take the depth of the water as he waded through the vast expanses. December 16, 1834, Josephus White married Sarah Biddle, daughter of Elijah and Betsey Biddle, who resided near Monmouth, N. J., by whom he had two children, as follows: Caroline E., born in Brighton, Monroe county, N. Y., July 7, 1836, now the wife of Lewis T. Rathbun, of Ogden; Demaris C., born in Concord, Erie county, N. Y., March 9, 1840, now the wife of James Hodges, of Ogden. Mrs. Sarah White was born near Monmouth, N. J., October 24, 1806, and died in Ogden, May 2, 1878. December 13, 1855, Caroline E. White was married to Lewis T. Rathbun, of Fairfield. They have had three children, as follows: Clara D., born in Fairfield, March 22, 1857, now the wife of Artemus Swick, of Fairfield; Melvin, born same place, November 6, 1858, died October 26, 1864; Alta, born same place, August 2, 1869, at home. Lewis T. Rathbun was born in Palmyra, this county, May 1, 1836. His father, Rufus Rathbun, came to Michigan from Ontario county, N. Y., and now resides on section 36, in Fairfield.

AARON S. BAKER was born in Palmyra, Wayne county, N. Y., April 25, 1807. He was brought up a farmer, and lived with his father until 1828 (when he was twenty-one years old), when he came to Michigan and settled in Logan (now Adrian). He at once located a farm west of the village. He afterwards located several other farms, being quite a trader. He finally settled on a farm in the present town of Fairfield, where he lived until 1847, when he sold out to John Tenbrook, and again went into the woods, in Clinton county, this State, where he purchased 280 acres of land near Maple Rapids. This land was entirely wild, and he was obliged to commence just as he had in Lenawee county, by clearing a small space and building a log house. He lived there for about seven years, clearing up several acres of land and made large improvements, and became a prominent man there. In 1855 he sold his land in Clinton county to George Daharsh, and returned to this county and purchased a farm adjoining the one he had sold to Mr. Tenbrook. He soon again became identified with the interests and growth of Lenawee county, in all movements that tended to advance the

Dear Cousin Helen,

I understand that Charles Tieman has been in contact with you about our Root connection. While we were visiting friends in Akron this summer, we went to Cleveland to the Western Reserve Historical collection and found your great article on Vandosto in "The History of Ottawa County." I was excited about this find but neglected to follow up and try to find out who and where you were. Then on a visit to my cousin in Endicott, NY we decided to investigate the Root records in Chenango. That is how I fou~~u~~nd Charles. I dabble in genealogy; I am not a genealogist. The chase for the facts is fun for me. I do not process the information very well when I get home. There always seems something else that needs to be done. However, I do not add an ancestor to my charts unless I have proof he/she belongs.

Perhaps Charles plans to share the Vandosto letters with you but I made copies for you while I was making his copies. My Nancy Root, Vandosto's sister, married Benoni Beach. Their son, William Benoni Harris Beach, married Sarah Gamble King--my great grandmother and grandfather. WBH (as his associates called him) died young. Vandosto wrote a letter to Sarah when he learned of WBH's death--1876. He also wrote to Sarah in 1901 in response to an inquiry she made about the Root history. I believe that Sarah was helping her son Joseph Wright Beach in his search for family history. I also believe Joseph Wright was the person who contributed our Beach information to the Beach Family Magazine. This source is here at the Burton Libray, in Detroit. I am enclosing a copy of each original letter as well as a transcription I made. I also have a copy of a letter written by Nancy's sons, Henry and John. # You will find a little sketch I wrote of the Beach line and Nancy and Benoni. In addition you will find a copy of the information my Aunt Ruth took from Nancy's sampler which is now in the possession of a cousin who lives in Pittsburgh. When I talked with her several years ago, she said the sampler is now unreadable.

I am not sure how much stuff you want. I do not collect stuff other than my main line. I know that Sarah and William are the only ones who had children. I have charts for most of these descendants. I also have a diary written by Emily Beach while she was a teacher and while WBH was still alive. (I have made a transcription of this.)

I have not made copies of this yet and I have not transcribed it yet.

While I try to be accurate, I sometimes mistype or miscopy. Also I do not always update my charts when I find new information. So please, if my data does not agree with yours, please check back with me.

Charles's interest has forced me to spend time on all of my Root papers and now I find I am behind with Christmas preparations so I must stop. I hope you have a very happy holiday season,

Your cousin,
Jean

Dear Helen,

I was glad to hear from you again but I do not think I would be so calm about your computer crash. I would be tearing my hair out. Do you think that it was the Michelangelo Virus I heard about that caused the crash? A friend worked out a formula so that we could check to see if ours was infected but we were ok. I haven't heard from Charles since I sent him a bunch of stuff in Feb. Do you suppose he had a crash? I hope not because it seems he has lots and lots of stuff in his computer.

In your first letter you mentioned that your sons live near us. I have a daughter who lives near Metro Beach near Mt. Clemens. I am glad that Vondosto's letters helped you find some of his brothers and sisters. I usually make family group sheets and include brothers and sisters of my direct line. I find that sometimes you can track the siblings when you can't find your direct ancestor. I think the only thing I would like to have is the documentation for Nicholas Root's(1743-1813) father. Now that I look closer at my notes I see that the 1743 date coincides with the dates given in the Root Family Book which is in the Burton Library here in Detroit. So I guess I am ok on that point after all.

I am excited to learn of the Root Reunion in August. I hope it is the 15th. My husband is president of a Jazz Club and the annual meeting this year is in New Orleans Aug. 5-8. Of course we are looking forward to visit this city even though it will be very hot. At present we haven't decided whether to fly or drive. Did I write you of the letter which was found in the family vases which were made in New Orleans? Nancy Root's son, Henry had four vases made with his picture and his sister Emily's picture painted on them. I can't find a date for the vases but the date on the letter is 1861. I could send you a copy of the letter and a picture of the vases- the set in Calif.- if you wish. The Calif. vases belong to a second cousin. My first cousin in Baltimore has the other set but inspite of repeated requests, I have never been able to get a photo of these vases. (Maybe they sold them to an antique dealer?) Relatives are funny as I am sure you know.

We hope to go to Akron next weekend-- May 1-3 but we are waiting to hear about our car. It is making a weird noise and we can't find out what it is. We think transmission has been ruled out so perhaps we will be able to go. I am an avid bird watcher during April and May and we will be stoping at the Ottawa Refuge on Friday morning to look at the migrating birds. I hope to get there about 8 am. Then I thought we might try to find John Root's grave at Locust Point. Perhaps you could give me some directions to the cemetery. We will be going east on Rt. 2. If you don't have time to write, I will give you a call before we leave. If the car is dead, we won't be going.

I wonder if Charles will come to the reunion? He mentioned something about a Michigan cousin who has letters and papers but is reluctant to share them with Charles. Sometimes people just don't want to try to dig things out of attics or basements. As I get older, I can understand that.

Don't forget to get in touch with us if you come this way. Hope things will work out for an August meeting. (I'm sure there must be a golf course my husband can go to while I meet the Roots.) Thanks for the family sheets.

Your cousin,

Jean

Dear Mr. Tieman,

My great-great grandmother, Nancy Root Beach, was Vandosto Root's sister. On October 31th my husband and I found your family group sheets in the Root file at the Chenango County Historical Museum. I was very excited because you had made the connection I had been searching for: Nicholas Root b 23 Sept. 1743 was the son of Joshua Root from Westfield Ma. Up to that time, I only knew that Nicholas had died in Chenango County sometime in 1813. In all of my excitement, I now know that I did not copy Joshua Root's family group sheet so I do not have your documentation for this connection. Our Burton Historical Collection at the Detroit Public Library does have the Root Family book which has the numbers you have listed after Joshua. So thanks to your research I will be able to connect up with the line in this book.

I can't call myself a genealogist, rather a dabbler in genealogy. I get so excited when I find a break through that I neglect to take proper notes. My husband has to calm me down and make me tend to the details. I like to flesh out my ancestors when ever possible and I have written a few sketches about them. I am sending a copy of the sketch about Nancy Root and her husband Bennoi Beach. (Your Vandosto didn't think much of him.) I am also sending you a copy of notes taken from a sampler worked by Nancy Root. My Aunt Ruth Hinton Cooper saved several letters and notes which have helped in my research. This sampler is now in the possession of my cousin, Margaret Elizabeth Albin Patterson who lives in Pittsburg, PA. The last time I talked with her she said the sampler is now so faded that it can't be read.

I have two rather lenghty letters written by Vandosto to my great grandmother, Sarah Gamble King Beach, the wife of WBH Beach, Vandosto's nephew. The first was written from Locust Point, Ohio on March 23, 1876. I think that the death of his nephew prompted this letter. The second was written on May 2, 1901 from Justin?✗ Mich. again I think to his niece, Sarah Beach. These letters are very old and I plan to type a copy of each and send you a copy of them. After you read the typed version, I will xerox the originals for you if you wish. (I probably will not get this done until after Xmas.)

HA!

I had another exciting find this summer at the Western Reserve Historical Society in Cleveland, Oh. I will send you a copy of the write up about Vandosto-including his picture! I plan to write to the Society to see if they can give me the address of the historical group who put together this county history. I think that Helen Read, the contributer of Vandosto Root's story, might be interested in his letters also.

My search for my "roots" is spotty because of other intrests. However, whenever we travel, I try to fit in a research project if possible. We have friends in Ohio so that is how I came to visit Western Reserve. I grew up in the Finger Lake region of NY State and love to go back to visit. We visited Chenango Co. in October because my cousin was celebrating her 50th wedding anniversary. She lives in Vestal in Broome Co. which is the adjacent county to Chenango. Norwich, the county seat is right on the state highway and is not really very interesting. The Town of Greene, celebrating its 200th anniversary is just off this highway and is much more interesting. In the center of town, main steet divides into a boulevard. There is parking in the middle and the stores are on either side. Some of the old stores have been spruced up--others like the library need attention.

Dear Helen,

Here are copies of two of the Root mortgages. It's not clear to me what they were doing. In March 1827, presumably while living on their acre in Rochester, they bought the 89 acres in northern Brighton from Joseph Downs for $1960 and mortgaged it to Downs for the same amount. But they also gave Downs a mortgage on the Rochester land for $400 at the same time. Did they just need the $400 or is there more to this?? Then, a year later in March 1828, they sold the Rochester land to Downs for $1300 plus an existing mortgage to Enos Stone (mortgage not seen yet) and paid off the earlier $400 mortgage. So, did they move to the Brighton land then, or a year earlier, or not at all? But, then Sally died in Sep 1828 and perhaps the plans, whatever they were, changed. The next January John bought back some of the Rochester land. But he wasn't living on it for the 1830 census when he was in downtown Brighton. Perhaps he just ran the business out of the Rochester property. Then he sold the 89 acres in northern Brighton to Simon in Dec 1829. John finally sold the last piece of land in Rochester in 1831 when I suppose they all moved west. Well, I'm wondering what you can deduce from all this.

Reading that old German script is an art. I've gone back to reading some old church records after a layoff of at least a year and I'm learning it all over again. It really depends on the particular minister as to how hard it is to make out. I had read that article on chenango Co research, pretty useless. I dropped the Helper a couple of years ago and started Heritage Quest, but I'm going to drop that too. I prefer to put my subscription money into local newsletters and the big reliable journals like TAG. But even the big ones, especially the Nutmegger, seem to have gone down hill and are padded up with poems and useless "hints" and long stories of how someone made the great discovery, after years of research, that census records exist.

Rochester Diary

Thurs. Oct 22, 1992

Flew Stockton, San Francisco, Chicago, Rochester, uneventfully. Picked up Alamo rental car ($159/week), checked into Wellesley Inn on E. Henrietta (15A) at $43/day.

Friday

Drove out through Brighton and old Root land near Irondeqoit Bay (now Elmcroft area), looped through Penfield and back to downtown Rochester where roamed around getting oriented and looking for parking. Parked at Midtown Plaza ($5.50 max) and spent the day at the Local History Room, Rundel Library. They have lots of books covering genealogies and local histories. The collection of local histories is spotty and there is little on Chenango Co. They have a name index of newspapers that fills about 50 volumes and also volumes of newspaper clippings. All of the newspapers are available on microfilm and they have two readers plus one that makes copies. There always is an attendant on duty. I checked the newspaper index for every name I could think of. I only looked at the 1825 newspaper containing the announcement of Phebe Foote's marriage. They also have a card file of names and another for topics, with short abstracts and references. They have map files that I went through and copied a few of them. Everything has to be okeyed before being copied. I checked the cemetery records again.

Saturday

Went to a couple of old book stores, the Museum and then back to the library again.

Sunday

Drove down the west bank of the river to the falls (verrry cold!), and on north to Charlotte (pronounced sha-lot), across the river to Irondequoit, across the bay to Webster and on east to Williamson, in Wayne Co, to their antique show where there was book dealer I was acquainted with. I had a pleasant chat with the fellow at the show representing The Wayne Co Historical Soc. The present Wayne Co historian (in Lyons) is said to be very active, has recruited lots of volunteers to abstract records, and is putting it all in their computer. They have all of the cemetery records entered now, something was a mess before for that county. Went south through Palmyra to Canandaigua (Ontario Co seat), west through Bloomfield, Lima (lai-ma)(more book stores), Avon, to Mumford, but the Geneseee Co Museum there had closed the week before for the season. It is a big collection of old time buildings and crafts. So went on north to Brockport and then east again through Greece to Rochester. Eastman Kodak Co is west of Rochester and that area is really built up.

Monday

Went to Mt Hope cemetery, but they needed time to locate the Brighton burial book. Brighton burials were moved to Mt Hope in the 1860s. Spent the morning in the library again. Then went off to the Penfield library where they have a local history room. The two helpers there were interested in John Root's history, but all we could find was a tax assessment in 1813. There still are Crippens living there. So then on to the Brighton library, but the historian is only there on Wednesday.

Tuesday
Drove south to Geneseo in Livingston Co and left off at the historian's office the 1860s diary of a Mt Morris farmer that I had bought at an antique store several years ago. Then back to Canandaiqua to the county clerk's office to check the deed indexes and to their archives in Hopewell. This is a high class operation with climate controlled storage and gloves required for handling the books. One assistant there turned out to be the Brighton historian! She is one sharp cookie, so that was a pleasant afternoon. I checked their films of Ontario tax records, but the Sweden records are missing. Also read all of the obits abstracted from the Western Repository and Genesee Advertiser, ca 1805-1830.

Wednesday
Went to Mt Hope cemetery office, but, as expected, Sally Root was not on the Brighton section listing, or in the main cemetery listing. Checked out the Brighton section which is on a very steep hillside with headstones down and most seemingly missing. The front part of Mt Hope is fairly well taken care of, but the rear is a mess, with pieces of monuments even lying out in the road. Then back to the library for one last attempt to talk to the Rochester historian. Finally success, but she is a real dummy, so that was lost time. Then to the court house and the Monroe Co deeds. At first no one had any idea of where the early indexes were, but finally a guy, Dennis Patton, who seemed to be in charge took me down to the sub-basement where he looked in a few corners and then found a small room with the indexes all piled up helter skelter. These were negative photocopies, the location of the originals seems to be unknown. All this was blamed on some remodeling going on but I doubt it. I sat there on a stool under a single light bulb checking the Monroe indexes and also the Genesee and Ontario deeds for which they had both the indexes and the deeds, which were in this little room. Then to the microrecord room upstairs where microfilms of the deeds are stored. They have about six viewers, but lots of title company clerks using them. But checking the most interesting records went pretty well. I didn't have time to get copies made under their lengthy system. Then I wanted to see the mortgage records since the mortgagor index had entries for John/Sally 1827 to Enos Stone, same 1827 to Joseph Downs and just John 1829 to Joseph Downs. But no one had any idea where to look for them. Finally, the guy in charge said I'd have to come back after they finish remodeling. The Brighton historian told me that the probate indexes are available, but the early files have been missing for several years. They were put in storage with a moving company that went broke. The county couldn't get their records back because of the bankruptcy. Now the moving company is back in to the Penfield library where they have a local history room. The two helpers there were interested in John Root's history, but all we could find was a tax assessment in 1813. There still are Griggens living there. So then on to the Brighton library, but the historian is only there on Wednesday.

The county couldn't get their records back because of the bankruptcy. Now the moving company is back in business, but the county still hasn't located the records. I didn't check out the situation with the Monroe Co tax records at the Treasuer's office as I was running out of time to get over to the Brighton Historian's office. I did go to the City Planning and Map office and got another map. I talked to a knowledgeable engineer there, but he too couldn't figure out the address given for John Root in the 1827 city directory. Then off to Brighton and a nice visit with the historian, Mary Joe Barone. Both Brighton and Penfield have spacious new libraries. The whole area seems to be prosperous, and relatively unaffected by the recession. Brighton is planning on a 20% increase in taxes to pay for new buildings. The homes in the nice areas around Rochester are just beautiful, large, varied, on big lots, lots of trees and patches of woods, and streams here and there, just a beautiful area. Penfield is more rural, but building up fast. It is just south of Webster where Xerox is located, but they said that most of the new residents still work at Eastman.

Thursday

Went up on top of Cobbs Hill to get some panoramic shots of the area, but rain set in so off to the airport and on home.

Dear Mr. Tieman, Re: 3347

The Hazen Family in America, by Tracy Elliot Hazen, was published in 1947. At 1000 pages plus a 175-page index, it traces virtually all of the Hazens in the United States and Canada back to a common ancestor, Edward, who emigrated to Rowley, MA, in about 1640 from Cadney, Lincolnshire, England. It is said by its editor to be perhaps the most nearly complete account of the descendants of an early New England colonist.

I have been updating this genealogy since 1978. I am also a member of the Rochester (NY) Genealogical Society.

One of the resources that the Society provides to its members is a computer database which is indexed by surname. I spotted three Hazen names in the index, one of which was Livinna (Lavina in Tracy Hazen's book) Hazen, who married John Mortimer Root. based on my group sheets sent to them

I enclose a copy of both the computer output and pages 908 and 909 of the book. I have no further information about them beyond what Tracy Hazen shows. A comparison will readily show the discrepancies. "Vandaste Sprague & Lovisa (Hynes) Root"

By chance do you have any original documentation that would verify either what Tracy shows or what you show?

Being retired, I can be reached most of the time at home, at (716)244-3535. (I will be teaching in Massachusetts for the entire month of January.) I would surely appreciate having any information that you can provide.

Many, many thanks.

Sincerely,

Stanley Hazen

5 February 1994

Dear Helen,

Thank you so much for the long talk yesterday on the telephone. It felt like our thinking was very similar on many of the issues that we touched on!

Yes, Charles did respond in early December. I was quite busy then preparing both for the two-week visit of my daughter and for the month-long teaching stint at Williams, which was the most stimulating and satisfying of all of the Winter Study Periods that I have taught there (every year but one since 1987).

Charles mentioned Mt. Hope Cemetery. It is right at the end of the street on which I live, only about six houses away! I take afternoon walks there with a neighbor when it is not so dreadfully cold. Rochester Genealogical Society's Computer Interest Group, of which I am a member, is just completing the task of transcribing all of their burial records into a computer database and verifying the entries. This will help the City of Rochester (which owns the cemetery), the Friends of Mount Hope (which maintains certain aspects), and, of course, the general public. When this is completed, I'll try to remember to look up Sally Sprague.

The city people involved have said that some records are missing, notably because of a disgruntled employee some years ago who made off with them and presumably destroyed them when he was discharged!

I mentioned Donna Przecha's two books about Roots III. They are entitled Understanding Roots III and More Understanding Roots III. They are 150 and 75 pages, respectively. They cover somewhat better than the manual topics such as splitting and merging databases. As well written as they are, I still had to sweat through for myself the kinds of things that can be done. For example, I had a giant database which contains 15,000 names. I wanted to split it so that two sons of the third generation were the subjects of one database and the third son was the subject of the third. It took a year to realize (with some help from COMMSOFT) that one can split a database and retain all except the subject of the split and his descendants. That gave me the database (all going back to the immigrant ancestor) that contained the two sons fine, but what about the third? It hit me in a moment of inspiration that I could do this inverse split in two stages, removing the descendants of the first in one step and the descendants of the second from it in another. Donna walks one through the procedure beautifully, including also a macro for coping only the pertinent text files from the original database into the one that resulted from the split. (The original database remains intact, so one creates a new subdirectory into which the result of the split is written.) For over a year, I was dreading having to split and then merge to attach the results of the split to a two-generation skeleton. COMMSOFT's pointing out that the inverse split was possible was the crucial clue, once its ramifications sunk in. No merge necessary! The split routine allows you to either retain or reject the person who is the key of the split.

Donna's address (taken from her latter work, dated 1991) is 10576 Rancho Carmel Drive, San Diego, CA 92128. Her phone number in March, 1992, which I used for verifying price and all, was (619)487-1665. Of course, maybe you have learned so much that you could write your own book on procedure!

I overlooked mentioning on the phone that a copy of The Hazen Family in America is being kept in open stock for reprinting on demand by a company in Massachusetts that specializes in such reprinting. The company is Higginson Book Company, 14 Derby Square, Salem, MA 01970. The contact is Emily Wheeldon. Their price is $149 for single copies, but prices in the $80 to $90 range were quoted a couple of years ago to my brother when he was negotiating the arrangement. I donated an extra copy of the original that came my way quite by coincidence back in 1981.

Again, many thanks for your letter with all of its information, and for the delightful phone conversation. I'll get back at the transcription process when I get my other computer back from the dealer, who replaced a faulty modem while I was at Williams.

Sincerely,

Charlie, actually the reunion was in Kalamazoo Co. The newspaper article reads as follows:

J.L. Root Family Holds Reunion

The children of Justus L. Root and their decendents, to the fourth generation, assembled at Ramona park, Long Lake, las week for a family reunion, 93 persons being in attendance. After the bountiful dinner which was enjoyed at noon, a business meeting was called and officers for the ensuing year were elected. It was decided to held the next reuion at West Lake, Laor Day, 1924. It was voted to include the families of Frederick F. Root and John B. Root (I did find John in Allegan County), in the next assembly.

Justus L. Root, founder of the family, was the son of William and Martha Root of New York State. he came to Michigan in 1849, first settling in Barry County. He moved to Kalamazoo in 1853 and bought farms in Section 10 and 3, Kalamazoo Township, whre he resided at the time of his death in 1897. He was the father of 12 children, ten of whom reached maturity. Only two daughters are now living, Mrs. Jane Lamphere of Cadillac and Mrs. Susan Turner of Clinton Street, Kalamazoo. He was twice married, as sister of his first wife taking the place of mother in his home and the care of his motherless children.

At the reunion, this year, the oldest person present was Jonathan ?iney (I couldn't read the first letter of his last name) of Union City, Branch Co who is 92, and a Civil War veteran.

John B. Root is buried just outside the City of Allegan, at Hudson Corners Cemetery and died in 1873. ? 1973 ? John was married to Carissa unknown who also died in 1973 and is buried by John. I have also found at least 3 other John Roots, sure makes it confusing. I don't know if or how Fredrick F. or John B. are related.

I haven't found much on the Lyons family. I only know to date that William Root married Martha Lyons, daughter of Justus Lyons and Martha Buchanan, that William and Martha's second born (my gg grandfather) was named Justus Lyons, and my grandfather was named Justice Lyons Root. If I find anything on Leroy Lyons I get back with you.

I came across an artical on Justus L. Root in a book call Protrait and Biographical Record, it's very interesting. I was also lucky enough to find a picture of Justus with his second wife Henrietta Hardy Brewster, sister of his first wife Dexcy Betsy Hardy. Neither he nor Henrietta were very good looking in my opion. If you are interested in the article or a copy of the picture I'd be glad to send you a copy. Talk to you soon.

Dear Helen,

Your article in Ancestry is a good one, informative. You're getting national exposure too. Maybe you'd like to hit the speakers circuit?? Sounds like too much work to me. I never would have guessed that Faith Cataldo was one of those Kings! I corresponded with some of them several years back, they didn't know any early history, but were a friendly, feeble bunch. We exchanged some photographs. Some of them visited my parents once or twice, but I don't remember meeting any of them. They have a few skeletons in their closet.

Another Root reunion in Allegan Co has turned up! I'm enclosing the info sent to me on Compuserve. Have you heard of this bunch?? Sherlene says that she went to school in Allegan with other Roots, but never asked how they were related. I don't know who the Frederick F. or John B. Root families could have been. Fred sounds like one of the Tioga Co Roots. They prob knew them, because her Justus grew up down there.

As far as Sally Sprague, you may be right that she was married first to a Sprague, but it seems like we'd know about that, especially with VS being named for the family. Also, I've heard that sometimes the first child from a second marriage was named for the deceased husband, but VS was the second child. I'm liking the connection of our Spragues with Simon Jones more and more. Simeon Parker was another early settler in Coventry and his m to Polly Sprague, b 30 Dec 1774, was the first in town. Simeon Parker was associated in business with Simon Jones and testified to his death. Simon Jones and his cousin Benjamin Jones lived in 1810 next door to Dyer Sprague. I think that maybe Dyer was the nephew of Polly, wife of Simon Jones, and cousin of Simeon Parker's wife Polly and of our Sarah. Dyer's father Dyer was at the battle of Saratoga, where his brother Phineas was killed, and Phineas had two daughters, Polly and Sarah. Of course, Nicholas Root was at the same battle. One big problem is that Phineas died in Oct 1777, while our Sarah was b Aug 1779 or Aug 1778. Dyer Sprague Jr died in Ypsilanti, but I didn't find any bio in one Washtenaw Co history I checked. Well, there was another brother Beriah Sprague and not much is known of his family. Always lots of possibilities.

One of Simon Parker's probable nieces married Ahira Barden, moved to Tioga Co and became part of that Root extended family. Ahira sold some of the Nicholas Root land in Coventry in 1831, so his first wife may have been an unknown Root daughter.

from the former April 18, 1818. Subsequent to 1863 the local customs office has been in charge of a deputy collector. During the period in which the principal office was maintained at the harbor, the collectors were:

Augustus Sacket, Hart Massey, Perley Keyes, John M. Canfield, Thomas Loomis, Danforth N. Barney, Leonard Dennison, John O. Dickey, Otis M. Cole, Daniel McCullock, Abram Kromer, Thomas M. Hall, William Howland and Cornelius W. Inglehart.

Perhaps the most eventful period in the history of Sackets Harbor was that of the war of 1812–15. At the outbreak of hostilities the village had no defenses whatever, and only the old brig Oneida (with an armament of sixteen guns), was available for harbor defenses. On the other hand, the British were well prepared for the contest, and early threatened the harbor with destruction by an overpowering fleet. Col. Camp soon organized an artillery company, and Col. Bellinger was sent to assist in defending the place. Ordnances and military stores were greatly needed, whereupon a letter asking for these supplies was sent to the governor. In the meantime, while awaiting their arrival, Fort Tompkins was built, and afterward became one of the most noteworthy and historic fortifications on the frontier. More than three-quarters of a century have passed since the fort was constructed, and while not a single vestige of it is now visible, its earthworks outline is yet plainly to be traced on a rising mound of earth. Considerate persons have faithfully preserved this old relic of the war period, and quite recently the generous owner (Col. Walter B. Camp, executor,) of the surrounding lands has publicly given the old battle-ground to the village and county historical society.

During the period of the war, several other forts were constructed in this immediate vicinity, and the village was the central point for both military and naval operations, with hundreds and sometimes thousands of troops and marines quartered and rendezvoused here. No less than three times the village was threatened with British invasion, and on one occasion (May 29, 1813) the historic battle of Sackets Harbor was fought with disastrous results to the enemy.[1] However, the story of

[1] "Soon after the battle of May 29, 1813, a breastwork of logs and earth was built around the village, one end touching the bay, about half-way between the harbor and Horse island, and the other at the site of Madison barracks. No opportunity was afforded subsequently for the use of these defenses. The village contained at the close of the war several block houses and cantonments, a considerable quantity of military stores, and a large fleet of vessels which were laid up at the place." the war is told in an earlier chapter, wherefore in the present connection any detail of the events of the period is at the hazard of repetition

The struggle had its reverses and fatalities, but at length victory rewarded the efforts of the Americans and a long era of peace followed.

Immediately after the war Sackets Harbor was made a permanent naval station and has been so continued to the present time, although no government vessels have been kept here for many years, and the only duty of the shipkeeper is to live upon the reserved tract and keep the building in order. This subject is fully treated in another chapter, hence a passing allusion to it in this place is sufficient.

Madison barracks is one of the most interesting localities within the town, and its garrisons have been for many years one of the chief supporting elements of the village. The original barracks were begun in 1815, on the order of Gen. Jacob Brown, and have ever since been maintained here. Madison barracks as a military station is also made the subject of a special chapter in this volume, to which the attention of the reader is directed for a detailed narration of its history.

Previous to the outbreak of the war the village had gained considerable importance as a shipping and ship-building point, and as a result a large commerce had been built up on the lake, the greater portion of which business was done at the harbor. Among the vessels in trade which touched at the harbor (many of them having been built here) were the Genesee Packet, Capt. Obed Mayo; Diana, Capt. A. Montgomery; Fair American, Capt. Augustus Ford; Collector, Capt. Samuel Dixon; Experiment, Capt. C. Holmes; Charles and Ann, Capt. Pease; Dolphin, Capt. Wm. Vaughn, and others of less note, the names of which have not been preserved. During the war, Henry Eckford was the shipbuilder of the harbor, and one of the most energetic men of his times in the country. To him more than to any other one person is due the credit of having built up and maintained the American navy on the lake and river, and in the village it was not unusual for him to have 2,000 men employed in shipbuilding at one time. Nearly all the prominent sloops, schooners and frigates in the service on the lake were the results of his handicraft, but of all of them not one remains. The famous New Orleans was unfinished at the close of the war, and by careful housing and attention was preserved until quite recent years. But, as is elsewhere stated, the old ship was at length sold and torn to pieces, and with it passed away almost the last remaining relic of the war.

After the war the harbor retained its supremacy as a lake port for many years, and during the time several boats of importance were built here. Among them was the Ontario, the first steamer, which was begun by a stock company in 1816, and was launched in 1817. She run until 1832, when she was broke up at Oswego. About the same time the Woolsey, Rambler, Farmer's Daughter, Triumph, Commodore Perry, Dolphin, and others were run on regular packet lines to this port. It is said, too, that the first trading vessel to enter the river at Chicago—the Ariadene—sailed from Sackets Harbor under Capt. Pickering, and carried a cargo of pork and flour. A regular line of steamers—the Bay State, Cataract and Ontario—run between St. Lawrence river ports and Chicago for many years, and made regular stops at Sackets Harbor. During the 'forties and 'fifties, these boats afforded the only ready means of travel for persons going west from this region. During the latter part of the 'fifties the regular operation of the line was discontinued. But as a lake port the harbor in later years has lost much of its prestige through the decline of lake and river navigation and the corresponding increase in shipping facilities by railroad.

Incorporation.—Sackets Harbor is the oldest incorporated village in the county. The creating act by which it was brought into municipal existence was passed April 15, 1814. Its territory comprised great lot No. 22 and the west half of No. 54; subdivision lots Nos. 1 and 2 in great lot No. 52 and a narrow strip off the north side of No. 23, of Hounsfield. By an act passed April 18, 1831, all that part of the village north and east of Mill creek was restored to the town. Unfortunately, in Sackets Harbor the village records have been imperfectly kept and not carefully preserved, hence much which might be of historic interest has thus been lost.

The fire department, which has been one of the enduring institutions of the village, had its inception in the primitive bucket brigade which was formed soon after the war of 1812. The village trustees subsequently resumed authority over the company, and in Nov., 1817, ordered all persons who had not furnished themselves with stout leathern fire buckets to provide the same immediately. The old apparatus served the requirements of the time, and at length gave way to more modern equipment. In 1843 a disastrous fire occurred, after which a hand engine was secured. From these beginnings the present department has grown, but the absence of reliable record prevents better detail to our statements. In 1889 the trustees purchased a good Clapp & Jones steamer, which, with the hose cart and the old brake engine, comprise the present department apparatus.

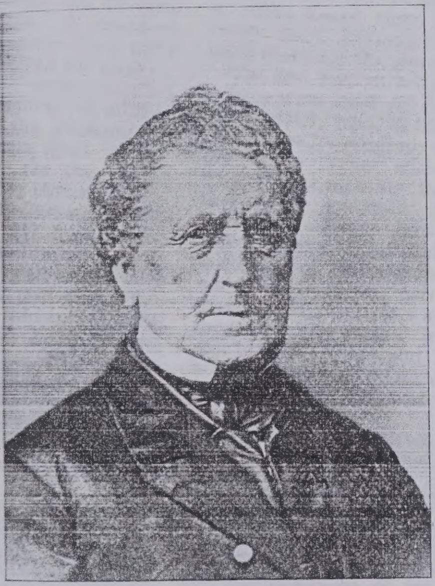
hancing the cost of the "canal," the project was measureably successful, though not to the extent desired and expected.

Colonel Camp was a heavy loser by both of the disastrous fires at the Harbor, and they swept away a large share of the means he had spent so many years in accumulating. Through his whole life no man was more respected. Not one of his townmen was his equal in public spirit and in progressive ideas. Had he been in early life an actor upon a larger theatre, and been brought in contact with enterprises commensurate with his abilities, his name might have ranked with that of Vanderbilt or George Law or Edwin D. Morgan. It was my privilege to serve through the Civil War with his two youngest sons—one a captain and quartermaster in the regular army, and the other a captain in the 35th N. Y. Volunteers, and for a long time in command of the soldiers' depot at Washington. They were both meritorious officers, deserving well of their country.



COL. ELISHA CAMP.

BENJAMIN MAXON.

One of the most enlightened, prosperous and reliable farmers of Houndsfield from 1830 until his death, was Benjamin Maxon, whose large farm was nearly south from Stoell's Corners, taking in a large slice of what was known as the "beaver meadow." Like Colonel Camp, he was a man of large stature, of commanding presence and of pleasing address, very domestic in his manner of life, respected and beloved by all who were privileged to enjoy his society. While a very able he was a very modest man, averse to show or ostentation, perfectly contented with his position as a farmer, never soliciting office—indeed it might almost be said of him that he spent as much time in declining offices as some men did in seeking them. His farm was a model of thrift and large practical returns; his stock was always superior and his surplus products always brought the highest prices. He loved and raised fine horses—which recalls to my mind the story of his "bluffing" the somewhat overbearing Norris M. Woodruff, of Watertown. Mr. Maxon had a fine young horse which Mr. Woodruff wanted. The price was $200. Woodruff offered $175, but couldn't get him. He rode away, but returned the next day, ready to give the $200. The price was then $225. This roused Woodruff up to using some rather harsh language, and he again went home without the horse. The next day he returned, and Mr. Maxon being absent, left word with his wife that he would take the horse at $225, and for her husband to bring him down to the village and get his money. Several days having elapsed and the horse not arriving, Woodruff again called. Mr. Maxon was at home, and when asked why he had not brought the horse, replied that when he sold stock he always delivered it in his own barnyard, not at some distant point. "Besides," said he, "Mr. Woodruff, you cannot have the horse; I shall keep him for my own use." Woodruff was almost paralyzed at such a spirit, and rode away much disgruntled. This anecdote illustrates the independent spirit of the man. There never was a kinder neighbor nor a better friend, but he would not brook dictation from one who thought himself superior. It was of such material these earlier settlers were made up. Mostly of New England stock, their fathers and grandfathers had fought through the long and trying Revolution, and they regarded independence as a principle which was worth all it had cost, so they were quick to resent anything that savored of dictation. It is not too much to say of Benjamin Maxon that he had abilities that would have graced even the gubernatorial office, yet he was possessed of such straightforward ways and such simplicity of manner that a little boy like myself felt at home in his presence. His eldest daughter, Sophia, married Hon. Jay Dimick, whose untimely death from fire occurred in December, 1894.

SACKETS HARBOR.

Sackets Harbor village is a port of entry and a military post situated on Black River Bay, and is the terminus of the Watertown branch of the U. & B. R. division of the R., W. & O. Railroad, 11 miles from Watertown, 193 from Albany, and 335 from New York. It has telegraph, telephone and express offices, a daily stage to Smithville, four churches (Presbyterian, Methodist Episcopal, Protestant Episcopal and French Roman Catholic), two hotels, a foundry and machine shop, saw and planing-mill, grist-mill, two general stores, four groceries, one hardware store, two drug stores, a merchant tailor, and about 1,200 inhabitants. The post-office at Sackets Harbor was established just previous to the War of 1812, and Ambrose Pease was appointed first postmaster. [See business list.]

The village of Sackets Harbor, comprising great lots number 52 and 54, and sub-division lots one and two, in great lot number 52, of Houndsfield, was incorporated April 15, 1814. Elections of seven trustees were to be held on the first Tuesday of June, annually. Not less than three, nor more than five assessors were to be elected annually, together with a collector, treasurer, and as many fire wardens as the trustees might direct. A president was to be chosen by the trustees from their number, and some proper person for clerk.

The bounds of the village were curtailed April 18, 1831, by the detachment of all that portion north and east of the Pleasant, or Mill Creek, which was exempt from the operation of the former act. On the 9th of May, 1840, the act was further extended.

Augustus Sacket began the first settlement at Sackets Harbor village. He built a saw-mill, wherein was sawed the lumber used in the construction of the first permanent house and other buildings put up at that time. The saw-mill was on Mill creek, where were also erected a grist-mill by Samuel Luff, the first one in the neighborhood, and a cotton factory by Solon Stone. In 1804 came Mr. Elisha Camp, a brother-in-law of Mr. Sacket, who settled at the village, and was appointed resident agent, under whom the estate was sold, the last of the business being closed up about 1848 or 1849.

In 1805 several English families settled at Sackets Harbor, among whom were Samuel Luff and sons Edward, Samuel, jr., Joseph and Jesse, David Merritt, William Ashby, John Root, Henry Metcalf and George Slowman. Besides these, John and William Evans, Squire Reed, Amasa Hollibut, Charles Barrie [or Berry], Uriah Roulson [or Rowlson], Azariah P. Sherwin, and others. Dr. William Baker settled in 1803, and was the first physician in the town. Ambrose Pease and Stephen Simmons were early inn-keepers, and Loren Buss and Hezekiah Doolittle, merchants.

On the 5th of March, 1809, Sacket conveyed 1,700 acres, the present village of Sackets Harbor, to Cornelius Ray, William Bayard and Michael Hogan for $30,000 in trust, and a few days after Ezra Houndsfield and Peter Kemble conveyed to the same parties their interest in the tract. In a declaration of trust subsequently made, the parties concerned in this purchase appear to have been C. Ray, W. Bayard, M. Hogan, Herman Le Roy, James McEvers, Joshua Waddington, James Lenox, William Maitland, William Ogden, —— McLeod, Benjamin W. Rogers, Duncan P. Campbell, Samuel Boyd, Abraham Ogden, David A. Ogden, and Thomas L. Ogden. The first three named were trustees of the others, and Mr. Elisha Camp was appointed the resident agent, under whom the estate was sold.

In 1808 Charles Barrie (or Berry), a Scotchman, opened a small store on the lot adjoining the one now occupied by the Eveleigh House, and he was the first merchant in the village. Barrie sold out to Loren Buss, who continued the business.

In March, 1817, George Camp established a printing office at the village, and became "proprietor, editor and publisher" of the Sackets Harbor Gazette. A copy of the Gazette of October 8, 1818, contains an editorial, which fails to substantiate the report so often heard that, although liquor was freely used, drunkenness was entirely unknown among the pioneers 50 or 75 years ago.

The first regular religious meetings in this village were held by Edmund Luff, an English settler, who, at his own expense, erected a house for religious services, and preached here many years without fee or reward. There being no other meetings in the place, these were generally attended by those of different religious faith. Mr. Luff was a Restorationist, approaching somewhat the doctrines of Universalists, and was a man very free from any narrow spirit of intolerance. His pulpit was opened to clergymen of other faiths, irrespective of name, and both Catholics and Protestants enjoyed, when occasion demanded, the freedom of his house. During the war the house was given up for public uses.

The first regular physician in Sackets Harbor was Dr. William Baker, who located here in 1803. Other early physicians were Dr. Benjamin Farley, who came in before, and Dr. James Starkweather, who came soon after the War of 1812. The first number of the Sackets Harbor Gazette (1817) contained the advertisement of Dr. R. B. Hayes, who avowed the intention of making "medicine and surgery his only pursuit." Dr. Samuel Guthrie, subsequently world-renowned, located in Sackets Harbor, on Mill Creek, soon after the War of 1812, and here prosecuted his scientific investigations which resulted in the discovery of chloroform (at about the same time with Soubeiran, in France, and Liebig, in Germany), and of the percussion compound for firearms, which superceded the old flint locks. Dr. Guthrie died in this village October 19, 1848.

The first hotel at Sackets Harbor, a small story and a half frame building, located on Main street, was built by Ambrose Pease before 1805, and was conducted by him until the beginning of the War of 1812, when it was purchased by a Mr. Kelsey, who came here from Cape Vincent. The building was afterward burned. In 1806 a Mr. Lanning commenced the erection of a hotel on the site of the present Eveleigh House, which became the property of Stephen Simmons before it was completed. Mr. Simmons finished it and conducted the hotel a number of years. Ambrose Dodge built the Eveleigh House in 1843–44, and it was opened by him in 1844. Judge Elijah Field built the Earl House in 1817, and it was opened by him in December of that year. It has been remodelled and greatly enlarged, and improved to accommodate an increasing patronage.

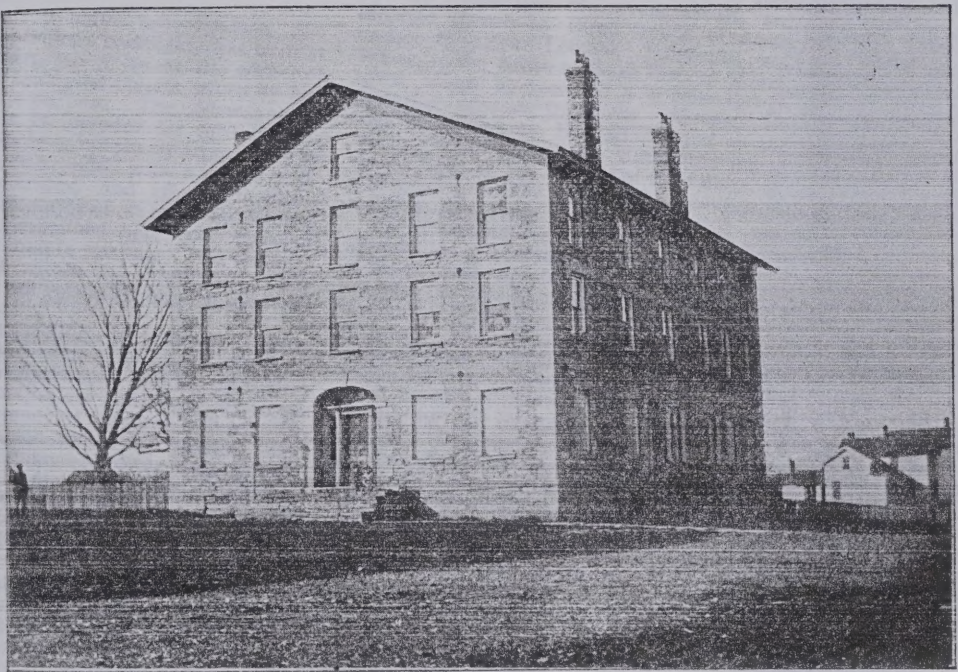
A stone hotel, which is still standing, although not used for the purpose for which it was built, was commenced by Frederick White in 1817, and opened by him the following year, with the name of "Union Hotel." The Masonic fraternity occupied a room on the top floor, and subsequently removed to the floor below. It has been said that Morgan, who published an expose of Masonry, was brought to this lodge room soon after his mysterious disappearance. Mr. White was at one time President of the Jefferson County Bank, when that institution was located in Adams.



THE OLD UNION HOTEL.

A ferry was established across Black River Bay at an early day, and by an act of March 31, 1821, Charles Colburn and Samuel Folsom were licensed to keep it five years. On the 21st of January, 1826, Ezra C. Folsom was in like manner licensed for five years. The subject is now under the care of the courts.

In 1816 a steamer known as the Kingston packet, was running three times a week from Kingston to Sackets Harbor, charging $2 per passenger for the trip. The steamer Toronto, J. Sinclair, manager, ran in opposition to the Sir J. Kemp between Prescott and the Carrying Place, and in the Kingston Chronicle, of June 29, 1829, passengers were requested to be on board at the hours advertised, as the boat would leave two minutes after the advertised time. The schooner Woolsey (Capt. Chapman) left Sackets Harbor on New Year's day, 1816, and arrived at Kingston on January 4th—a feat that has not often been repeated.

The first mercantile operations at Sackets Harbor on an extensive scale, were by Samuel F. Hooker, who, in 1868, commenced with a stock of $20.000 worth of goods, and in 50 days had sold $17,500 worth. The business that then opened with the brightest prospects, was the sale of potash, to Montreal, where Astor and other heavy capitalists had placed money in the hands of agents for its purchase. The embargo of 1808, by withholding those along the frontier from a career in which they were highly prosperous, naturally led to a spirit of evasion of the laws, and the difficulty of exporting this great staple of commerce directly from the Atlantic ports to Europe, led to extensive and systematic measures for forwardlng to the lake and river, from the interior and southern counties of the State, and even from New York, large quantities of potash. This sometimes vanished in the night, or was shipped with due formality to Ogdensburg, where it disappeared, and sometimes an open course of defiance of law was attempted. In whatever way it may have escaped, it was sure of appearing in Montreal, where it commanded the enormous sums of $200 to $320 per ton, and from whence there was no obstacle to its export to England. To check this contraband trade, two companies of regulars were stationed at Ogdensburg, and Capt. Wm. P. Bennett, with part of a company of artillery, and Lieut. Cross with a few infantry were stationed here in 1808 and a part of 1809.

About 1840, a union school house, two stories high, besides a basement, was built at Sackets Harbor, on a lot at the corner of Broad and Washington streets, given by Mr. Ogden for the purpose. The cost was about $2,000, and it is intended for three departments. It has been taught by from three to five teachers, is supplied with a set of philosophical apparatus, and affords facilities equal to those enjoyed at most academies. Schools are maintained here four terms of eleven weeks each in the year. It is the only public school within the corporation. The head teacher has generally been a graduate from college.

On the declaration of war the United States possessed almost no means whatever for defensive operations on this frontier. The brig Oneida, under Lieutenant Woolsey, with an armament of 16 guns, a heavy 36-pound iron cannon, and a few smaller ones, some of which belonged to the State militia, constituted the sum of our means of defence. The British, it was well known, had been preparing for the event one or two years at Kingston, and when the news of war arrived, had the means afloat at that place, not only of commanding the lake, but of landing whatever force they might possess at such points as they might select, without a reasonable prospect of resistance. Col. Christopher P. Bellinger, with a body of drafted militia, had been stationed at this place, and an artillery company, under Capt. Elisha Camp, had been formed, and had offered their services for a short time, which had been accepted by General Brown. As ordnance and military stores were of first importance for the defense of the place, a meeting was called to press upon the Governor the importance of an immediate attention to these wants.

During the war Sackets Harbor became the theatre of military and naval operations on an extensive scale, the details of which will be given in our article on that subject. It was twice attacked by the British, without success, and it was the station from which were fitted out the expeditions against Toronto, Fort George, &c., and the unfortunate enterprise under General Wilkinson, in the fall of 1813. From its being the centre of the operations so extensive, and the rendozvous of great numbers of sailors and soldiers, many incidents occurred that possess much interest.

President Monroe, soon after his induction into office, undertook a tour through the northern section of the Union, to observe the condition of the frontier and make such arrangements for its military security as might be deemed necessary. Having reached Ogdensburg on the 1st of August, 1817, he was met by Major General Brown, and attended to Rossie and Antwerp, where he was met by Mr. LeRay, and conducted to LeRaysville. On the 3d he was waited upon by the committee of arrangements, and escorted thence by three troops of horse, under Captains Loomis, Fairbanks and White, to the house of Isaac Lee, in Watertown, where he received a concise though flattering address from the citizens. He then proceeded to Brownville, and on the 4th to Sackets Harbor. Upon arriving at the bridge, at the bounds of the village, he was saluted with 19 guns, and an address of welcome was given.

The President received this address with expressions of cordiality and esteem, highly cheering and satisfactory to the veteran soldiers, in several of whom he recognized his former associates in arms in the Revolutionary war. Upon passing Fort Pike, a national salute was fired, and at the hotel, to which he was conducted by Captain King, chief marshal of the day, an address was read to him by the chairman of a committe of citizens. Commodore Woolsey then presented the officers of the navy attached to his command. The public works were inspected, the troops reviewed, and in the evening the village was tastefully illuminated. The events of the late war had given importance to this place, and it became a subject of interest to determine what works should be erected for its protection. In this the President was aided by Major Totten, a military engineer, who had been ordered to join the suite at Burlington.

FIRES AT SACKETS HARBOR.

Sackets Harbor has been singularly unfortunate with its fires, many of them so serious and unaccountable in their origin as to bring at least a degree of discouragement to its inhabitants. After the destructive fire of 1843 better and more modern buildings rapidly took the place of those destroyed. The same conditions do not now exist. Then an extensive commerce was carried on, being a port of export and import for several counties, and from which sailed a fine fleet of vessels. This source of accumulating wealth has disappeared from the lakes.

In the fall of 1851 the Ontario House barns on Broad street, took fire from some unknown cause. The fire extended to Main street, and five stores and dwelling houses were soon in flames. Before the sixth was reached a very heavy timbered, two-story building (and one in which printing presses of various newspapers had been established for years) was torn down by the heroic efforts of the foresighted and resolute inhabitants.

Six weeks afterwards Buck & Burt's dry goods and hardware establishment, on Main street, took fire in the same manner, and was consumed with nearly half the square. Each one of these conflagrations brought clouds filled with snow.

June 11, 1883, Clark & Robbins' grain warehouse, filled with grain, was discovered on fire. This valuable and useful storehouse was fired by an incendiary.

January 3, 1886, a disastrous fire was well under way in the unoccupied annex to Gladwin's brick building, on Main street, when discovered. Formerly it faced on Main street, and here Mr. George Camp started the Sackets Harbor Gazette, in March, 1817. Stokes' hardware store and dwelling and Robbins' block, corner of Ogden and Main streets, with Lane's dry goods below, offices and Ontario Hall above were burned, with Gladwin's, Dennison's malt-house, and McEvoy's grocery and provision store.

May 29, 1886, the historic warehouse built by the United States navy during the War of 1812, as a storehouse for its fleet, was burned. It had served many purposes in civil life—a bethel house for seamen, 1828; "Knickerbocker bowling alley" and sail loft; Hooker & Hopkins, forwarding merchants; steam flouring-mill; again, warehouse and sail loft, which last was converted into a skating rink. At the date mentioned, Mr. Eveleigh permitted an embryo band to practice in it evenings. During the night it burned, no doubt by carelessness on the part of the band. In March, 1888, Mr. Horace Payne's store and fine dwelling house, on Main street, were destroyed. Fire started in the store part, occupied by Mr. Jones, soon after closing business at night.

The last and most severe fire since 1843 occurred August 11, 1889. beginning at the Boulton store adjoining the malt-house walls, where the fire of January, 1886, was stopped. The building was unoccupied, and its burning is considered by the inhabitants as of incendiary origin. That and McEvoy's grocery and provision store, north of Railroad street, Conlin's grocery and provision store, Hasting's saloon, Clark & Bowe's fish-house and office, railroad passenger and ticket office, telegraph and telephone offices, on Main street, Ira L. Rowlson's clothing store and dwelling, M. Jeffrey's store, dwelling and boat-house, A. J. Drake's feed store and dwelling, Maddigan's saloon and dwelling, Heman's saloon and dwelling, Eveleigh's stone stores, with extensive warehouse, containing grain and deposited valuables; Hooker & Crane's store and warehouse of 1812, custom-house, market house, and town hall—all were burned.

An incendiary effort was made to burn Mr. Eveleigh's hotel some years since. Had it been accomplished the village would have been annihilated. Fire was seen by the Masons, on leaving their lodge, breaking out from the attic. By their activity in getting the hose into the building, and a stream directly upon the fire, the calamity was averted.

CAMP'S DITCH.

About 1823, a project was brought up for diverting a portion of the waters of Black river from the lower pond in Watertown, Pleasant and Mill creeks, to supply a water-power to Sackets Harbor. The subject was referred by the Legislature to the Attorney General for his opinion, who decided that private property had often been taken for private purposes; but from the opposition of H. H. Coffeen, O. Stone, and others, through whose lands the canal would pass, with active influence at Brownville, the measure was then defeated. In 1825 the effort was renewed, and an act passed April 20, 1825, which authorized Joseph Kimball, Amos Catlin and Daniel Hall, Jr., to divert the surplus waters of the river into Pleasant and Stony creeks, in Houndsfield, Adams and Henderson, for hydraulic purposes. Damages to be assessed by Egbert TenEyck, Clark Allen and Joseph Hawkins; and road and farm bridges were to be maintained by the company. The act was coupled with a proviso that the waters should not be taken from any dam then existing, without the written consent of the owners; that effectually defeated the purpose, for this was next to impossible. Being still determined to prosecute the matter, a meeting was called at Sackets Harbor, February 13, 1826, at which strong resolutions urging their necessities, and deprecating the proviso of the late law, were passed. The annual loss and inconvenience to farmers for want of the privilege, was estimated at from $10 to $50 each, for those on the lake shore and its vicinity; and measures were resolved upon to get the obnoxious restriction removed by a new appeal to the Legislature. On the 17th of April, 1826, the act was amended; but still it was attended with difficulties that could not be surmounted.

The proposition was next discussed of making the proposed canal navigable, which it was estimated could be done at a cost of $200,000 from Carthage to Sackets Harbor, and that an annual revenue from tolls, amounting to $16,000, could be expected.

An act was accordingly procured, April 15, 1828, incorporating the Jefferson County Canal Company, with a capital of $300,000, in shares of $100, in which Vincent LeRay, Philip Schuyler, Egbert TenEyck, Elisha Camp, Jasan Fairbanks, Levi Beebee, Arthur Bronson, John Felt and Joseph Kimball were named the first parties. Nothing was done under this act. It being understood that Mr. Elisha Camp, of Sackets Harbor, was willing to assume, under certain conditions, the stock necessary for the construction of the work, a meeting was held at Watertown, December 30, 1829, at which a committee of three was appointed, to confer on the propriety of the course, and learn what encouragement would be afforded in aid of the work.

By the act of April 28, 1839, a tax was imposed upon real estate within the village of Sackets Harbor, and on the mill sites on Pleasant creek, amounting to $2,000 in two years, to be assessed in proportion to the benefits to be received, and on the 20th of April, 1830, Elisha Camp was appointed a commissioner for this duty in place of Daniel Hall, resigned, and the act was extended till June of that year. A canal 20 feet wide at top and 12 at bottom, 4 feet deep, was made in 1830, from Huntington's Mills, two miles above the village of Watertown, to the Big Swamp, and in 1832 it was finished, supplying to the village of Sackets Harbor a valuable water-power, upon which there were erected a grist-mill, two saw-mills, plaster-mill, paper-mill, furnace, etc.

The law was so framed, however, as to give rise to litigation. The greatest difficulty encountered was in maintaining the first half mile of the ditch, which was constructed along the margin of Black river, where it was liable to be washed away on one side, and filled by slides of clay and sand on the other. These difficulties finally led to the abandonment of the work, after having been in use abont 10 years, to the pecuniary loss of all parties concerned.

EAST HOUNDSFIELD POST-OFFICE

Is a small hamlet in the eastern part of the town, near the Watertown line. It contains a church (Christian), cheese factory, school house, and a small number of dwellings.

About the beginning of the War of 1812, Stephen Blanchard, a man who is remembered by many now living, moved to this place from the State of Vermont. About 1820 he built an hotel, which is still standing as the upright part of the present "Half-way House." The locality was long known as "Blanchard's Corners," and the hotel as the "Old Blanchard Stand." The building has been repaired and refitted, and was long under the management of the late William Warren. Blanchard never had any children of his own, and has been dead about 40 years. "Steve Blanchard" is, however, remembered as one of the old-fashioned stamp of country landlords, and the "Corners" have witnessed many a jollification at the old hotel:

In the neighborhood of 1850 a postoffice was established, the first postmaster being Nelson Jones, who held the office until the beginning of Lincoln's administration, when Marvin B. Scovill was appointed. Upon the election of General Grant to the Presidency, William Warren was appointed, and for many years held it. The mail was originally carried over the Watertown & Sackets Harbor plank-road, and delivered at East Houndsfield daily. At present it is transported by rail, and delivered at the station three-fourths of a mile south of the office.

JEWETTSVILLE.

On the Watertown and Sackets Harbor road, about a mile from Sackets, is a locality known as Jewettsville. It is not generally known by the present generation that at one time this place was the scene of a large amount of business, as nothing in its present appearance would suggest anything of the kind.

In the first-half of the present century, when Sackets Harbor was in its prime, and Watertown was "a little place just back of Sackets," Jewettsville was a locality of considerable importance, doing a large business in the manufacture of lumber, potash, brick, beer, alcohol, leather, rope, powder, vinegar, etc. But the remarkable fact about it is that hardly anything remains to show where all the business was done.

The first settlement in Jewettsville was made by Silas Godfrey, about 1802. About the same time Benjamin Barnes located here. He built the first frame house in the place, which he afterwards used for a tavern. John McDowell later kept a tavern at the same stand, and later still in Sackets Harbor. There are two facts which render the history of this locality unusually interesting; it was the birth-place of Hon. John Pettit, and here was made the first chloroform, by Dr. Samuel Guthrie, who was a resident of Jewettsville from 1817 until his death in '48.

Herman Pettit and family moved here from Watertown about 1804, first settling on the west side of Mill creek, near what is now called the Military Road. Mr. Pettit was a millwright, and built wharves at Sackets Harbor and a saw-mill on Mill creek for Augustus Sacket; also a grist and saw-mill near the mouth of the creek, for Samuel Luff. The Pettits moved over to the Watertown road in 1813, near the present farm residence of John Pettit, a grandson of Heman. John was born at Jewettsville, July 24, 1807. In 1831 he moved to Indiana. He held many important positions in political life, serving in the Indiana Legislature; was United States district attorney; a Member of the House of Representatives, 1843–47, and of the United States Senate, 1853–55; a member of the State Constitutional Convention of Indiana in 1850; judge of the Indiana Supreme Court, and chief justice of Kansas in 1859. In politics he was a strong Democrat, and took a leading part in the exciting scenes in Congress in the days preceding the Rebellion. But few men received more political honors than he. He stands among the first of Jefferson county's distinguished sons. The Pettits are nearly all related to John Pettit Douglas, president of the Standard Publishing Company, of Watertown.

One of the pioneer families of the town were the Luffs, who came from England and settled near the mouth of Mill Creek in 1805. The family consisted of Samuel Luff and his sons, Joseph, Samuel, Jr., Jesse and Edmund; and daughters, Susan, Sarah and

The bill for repeal having passed the Assembly April 7, large public meetings were held at Watertown, Brownville, Sacket's Harbor, and elsewhere, calling upon the senate to prevent its passage. It was apprehended that the sudden withdrawal of so large a sum from the circulation of the county would seriously derange its business, and the bank and its officers were defended against the calumnies that had been circulated. These efforts proved unavailing, and the bill for repeal became a law, May 12, 1838, the directors being appointed trustees, until others were appointed to settle its affairs.* On April 17, 1837, the charter was restored,† and March 25, 1852, an act was passed authorizing a change of its place of business to Buffalo, upon the concurrence of two-thirds of its directors. This measure had been several years contemplated, and repeated applications had been made to the legislature, which had been defeated. The act was at length procured without the knowledge of many citizens who had previously opposed it.‡"

A State bank at Sacket's Harbor, owned by Edgar B. Camp, began business May 17, 1852, with a capital of $50,000. It continued for some time, and was finally forced to discontinue, causing considerable loss to a number of persons and firms.

A FOUNDRY

was established in 1843 by David McKee and Edward S. Hammond. Since about 1858 it has been carried on by McKee alone. Plows, stoves, repairs, and all ordinary castings are manufactured, and in 1857–58 mowing-machines were added. The building is stone, with a portion occupied as a machine-shop. Three hands are employed.

CEMETERY.

Sacket's Harbor

The village cemetery is located near Madison Barracks, and has lately been enlarged and improved. In examining the head-stones, the oldest one found was that of a person named Hooker, who was born at Windsor, Connecticut, in April, 1775, and died at Sacket's Harbor, May 2, 1810. The stone is overturned and partially covered with turf, so as to render a portion of the inscription illegible. Among the older graves are the following: "Mrs. Maria Jacob Wheaton, wife of Walter V. Wheaton, U.S.A., and daughter of Hon. Stephen Jacob, died at Sacket's Harbor, March 15, 1821, aged 27." An old stone by the side of this was lying on its face, rendering it impossible to read the inscription. "Mrs. Ally Myler, wife of Patrick Myler, died March 28, 1822, aged 45 years." "Betsey, daughter of John and Mary Root, drowned May 25, 1825, aged 19 years." "Sacred to the memory of James Jackson, who departed this 'transatory' life June 23, 1825. He left a widow and one child to deplore his loss." Many neat head-stones are found, and a better site for a last resting-place for those who have "gone before" could probably not have been chosen.

BOAT-BUILDING, SHIPPING, AND FISHING INTERESTS.

"Previous to the war a flourishing commerce had sprung up on Lake Ontario, and the following vessels were engaged in trade, all of them having more or less business at Sacket's Harbor: Genesee Packet, Capt. Obed Mayo, of Ogdensburgh; Diana, Capt. A. Montgomery; Fair American, Capt. Augustus Ford; Collector, Capt. Samuel Dixon; Experiment, Capt. C. Holmes; Charles and Ann, Capt. Pease; Dolphin, Capt. William Vaughan, and a few others whose names were not obtained. The Fair American is said to have been the first vessel built under the present government on this lake. She was launched at Oswego for the Northwestern Fur Company. Soon after the war, the schooners Woolsey, Rambler, Farmer's Daughter, Triumph, Commodore Perry, Dolphin, etc., were advertised as running on regular lines as packets from this port. Ship-building, during the war, was carried on under the supervision of Henry Eckford, who gained, and afterwards maintained, great eminence in this department. Noah Brown, and others, who began their career under him, subsequently became noted as ship-builders. Ever since the war, the business of constructing trading-vessels at this port has been more or less continued, but we have not been able to procure the details satisfactorily."§

It is said that the first trading-vessel that ever entered the river at Chicago, Illinois, was the Ariadne, sailed from Sacket's Harbor by Capt. Pickering. As an experiment a cargo of pork and flour was shipped in this vessel,—the former by Festus Clark, a great pork-packer for that day, and facetiously known as "Hog Clark" in consequence, and the latter by Thomas S. Hall. The Chicago of to-day—the greatest pork-packing centre in the world—would smile at the idea of having forty or fifty barrels of pork shipped to her as of old from a place so remote as Sacket's Harbor, or indeed any other. Captain Pickering afterwards committed suicide. The Ariadne was at one time partly owned by Captain Daniel Read.

Henry Eckford, the ship-builder who acquired such fame at Sacket's Harbor and elsewhere, acquired a large fortune by his efforts in this line during the War of 1812, but subsequently lost most of it through unfortunate stock speculations. For several years previous to his death, which occurred at Constantinople, November 12, 1832, he had been chief director of the dock-yards in the Turkish Empire. The Sultan, in speaking of him, gave him a fine compliment by remarking that "America must be Great if it could spare such men as Eckford."

The most prominent and attractive relic of the war of 1812–15 now preserved at the Harbor, is the decaying hull of the line-of-battle-ship New Orleans, built as a counter-match to the St. Lawrence, a three-deck man-of-war, set afloat by the British. The latter vessel carried 120 guns, and it was necessary to at once construct an antagonist worthy to measure strength with her. The New Orleans

HOUNDSFIELD.

This township, or No. 1, of the Black River Tract, was formed from Watertown, February 17, 1806, the first town meeting being held at the house of Joseph Landon.

A proposition for the formation of a new town from Watertown and Adams had been previously discussed, which was designed to take three ranges of lots from the north side of No. 7, and annex to No. 1, the new town to be called Newport. A special meeting was called in Adams, to take the matter under consideration, on the 10th of November, 1803, and avote a gainst the division was passed, but the meeting united in a petition for the erection of No. 8 into a separate town, which was done at the next session of the legislature, under the name of Harrison, since changed to Rodman.

At the first town meeting held by notification of Amasa Fox, at the house of Ambrose Pease and from thence adjourned to the house of Joseph Landon, March 4, 1806, Augustus Sacket was chosen supervisor; William Waring, clerk; Amasa Fox, William Baker, Samuel Bates, Jr., Theron Hinman, assessors; Ambrose Pease, Robert Robbins, com'rs highways; Jotham Wilder, John Patrick, overseers of poor; Jeremiah Goodrich, collector; J. Goodrich, Wm. Galloway, John Root, constables.

Supervisors.—1806-8, Augustus Sacket; 1808 (special meeting), Elisha Camp; 1809-18, E. Camp; 1819, Hiram Steele; 1820-23, E. Camp; 1824, Daniel Hall, Jr.; 1825, E. Camp; (special meeting to fill vacancy), Wm. Baker; 1826-27, Daniel Hall, Jr.; 1828, E. Camp; 1829-41, Daniel Hall; 1842, Seth P. Newell, Jr.; 1843, Benjamin Maxon; 1844, D. 1806. "Resolved, That the inhabitants of this town, who shall hunt any wolf or panther in this town (though he should kill such wolf or panther in any other town), shall be entitled to $10 bounty."

"Resolved, That three delegates be appointed by this town to attend a general meeting of the county to nominate a suitable candidate for the legislature, at their own expense." Theron Hinman, Augustus Sacket, and Amasa Fox, appointed.

At a special meeting called for the purpose, January 10, 1807, A. Sacket, John Patrick and Elisha Camp, were chosen to represent the town at a meeting of delegates from other towns, at Watertown, to take into consideration the military situation of the county. They were intrusted to protest against any undue influences that might be exercised in the meeting.

1807. $10 voted as bounty for every wolf or panther which shall be killed by any inhabitant of the town, which wolf, or panther shall be started by such inhabitant within this town. A bounty of $25 voted for the greatest quantity of hemp, above five hundred weight. Elisha Camp appointed surveyor to the town.

1808. Voted not to accept the state road as a town road. 1812. Canada thistles to be destroyed, under a penalty of $1; the fines to go towards rewarding such as might discover some method of destroying them. "Resolved, that hogs be free commoners, if yoked, the yokes to be 24 inches long by 15, and small hogs in proportion." 1815. The poor masters authorized to build a poor house for transient poor, if they thought necessary. 1824. At a special meeting, voted against the poor house system, and a remonstrance to the legislature voted. The wolf and panther bounties were continued till 1816. In 1822, 1823, 1831, a fox bounty of 50 cents was offered. In 1828, the highway commissioners, were directed to offer as stock, the half of the cost of the bridge at Dexter, to the plank road leading from thence to Bagg's Corners, on the W. & S. H. P. R., and if refused, to petition that the bridge be made a toll bridge.

This town derives its name from Ezra Houndsfield, a native of Sheffield, in England, who, about 1800, came to New York as agent for his brothers, John and Bartholomew Houndsfield, manufacturers and merchants of Sheffield. He engaged in the hardware trade, and in company with Peter Kimball, purchased in common the south half of township No. 1, or the present town of Houndsfield. This purchase was made of Harrison and Hoffman, March 10, 1801, and subsequently other and smaller purchases were made. Mr. Houndsfield was a bachelor, and died in New York, about 1817. By his will, dated April 7, 1812, he appointed David A. Ogden, Edward Lynde, John Day and Thomas L. Ogden, his executors, who advertised a sale at auction of the remaining interest of the estate in town at Sackets Harbor, August 1, 1817. The executors bought in the property and afterwards conveyed it to Bartholomew, the father of George Houndsfield, the present heir of the family, living in Sheffield.

The town is said to have been named through the influence of Mr. Augustus Sacket, who was an acquaintance of Mr. Houndsfield. The latter was accustomed to spend his summers in town.

From an early period of the purchase, the waters of Black River Bay were regarded as an eligible place for a commercial point, and in a work published in Paris in 1801,* the following description of it is given under the name of Niahoure. "At the bottom of this gulf Black River empties, forming a harbor sheltered from the winds and surges of the lake, which, during the prevalence of the south-west winds, roll like those of the ocean. The land on the right or south of this bay, is extremely fertile, and is a grove more fresh than can elsewhere be seen. That on the left, i. e. the country that extends to the north of the bay of Niahoure, as far as the St. Lawrence, and east to the Oswegatchie, is not less fertile, and the colonists begin to vie in settling it." This bay is elsewhere in the work described as comprising all the waters within Six Town Point, and Point Peninsula, which on ancient maps was named La Famine, by the French, and Hungry Bay, by the English. On some maps this term is applied to what is now known as Henderson Bay, and in others to Chaumont Bay. The origin of the name is unkown, unless perhaps it may have been derived from the misfortunes of De La Barre in 1684.

This town, having been conveyed through Macomb and Constable to Harrison, Hoffman, Low, and Henderson, as related in our history of the titles, fell to the share of Harrison and Hoffman on division, and the north part was conveyed June 13th, 1797, for $58,333·33 to Champion and Storrs, amounting to 11,134½ acres,* with the town of Champion (25,708 acres). On the 14th of November, 1798, Champion and Storrs sold a portion of the above to Loomis and Tillinghast, receiving two notes of $6000 each, which, with a mortgage upon the premises, not being paid, the tract was sold by a decree of chancery, at the Tontine Coffee House in New York, June 20th, 1801, and bid off by Augustus Sacket of that city, who received a conveyance from Champion, and the assignees of Loomis and Tillinghast. While the sale was pending, Mr. Sacket having heard of the location, and inclining to engage in its purchase, made a journey early in 1801 to the place, and was so struck with the great natural advantages for a port which the place presented, that he hastened back, and having secured the purchase, returned with a few men to commence improvements. In the second and third year, he erected an ample and convenient dwelling, and the little colony received the accession of mechanics and others. Other parts of the town began to settle quite as early as the village, especially towards Brownville, near which place Amasa Fox is said to have made the first improvement in town. In September, 1802, a traveler reported about 30 families living in township No. 1. The south part of the town, sold to Kemble and Houndsfield, was first placed in the hands of Silas Stow, of Lowville, as agent, and in an advertisement in the Columbian Gazette,† of Utica, June 11th, 1804, the land is represented as excellent, and "the flourishing state of Mr. Sacket's village, its advantages of water carriage and its valuable fishery, renders it one of the most inviting objects to an industrious settler."

In 1805, several English families settled at Sackets Harbor, among whom were Samuel Luff, and sons, Edmund, Samuel, Jr., Joseph and Jesse; David Merritt, William Ashby, John Roots, Henry Metcalf, and George Slowman. Besides these, John and William Evans, Squire Reed, Amasa Hollibut, Charles Barrie, Uriah Roulison, Azariah P. Sherwin, and others. Dr. William Baker settled in 1803, and was the first physician. Ambrose Pease, and Stephen Simmons, were early innkeepers, and Loren Buss, and Hezekiah Doolittle, merchants. The place was at an early day very healthy, and from February, 1805, till January, 1809, it was remarkable that but one case of death occurred (except that of infants), and this was from an accidental discharge of a pistol by one of the men employed in preventing intercourse with Canada during the embargo. The victim of the accident was one McBride, who was killed by Julius Torrey, a negro, with whom he had been a companion for several years on a desolate island, in the South Seas, and whom for a long time he had not seen, and the accident was felt with great severity by him. Late in 1808, typhus fever began to appear among the citizens and a detachment of United States troops, originating with the latter, and of this sickness many died.

On the 5th of March, 1809, Sacket conveyed 1700 acres, the present village of Sackets Harbor, to Cornelius Ray, William Bayard, and Michael Hogan for $30,000 in trust, and a few days after Ezra Houndsfield, and Peter Kemble, conveyed to the same parties their interest in the tract.* In a declaration of trust subsequently made,† the parties concerned in this purchase appear to have been C. Ray, W. Bayard, M. Hogan, Herman Le Roy, James McEvers, Joshua Waddington, James Lenox, William Maitland, William Ogden, —— McLeod, Benjamin W. Rogers, Duncan P. Campbell, Samuel Boyd, Abraham Ogden, David A. Ogden, and Thomas L. Ogden, each owning $\frac{1}{15}$th part, except D. A. & T. L. Ogden, who together owned a $\frac{1}{15}$th part. The first three named were trustees of the others, and Mr. Elisha Camp, a brother-in-law of Mr. Sacket, who settled in the village in 1804, and has since remained a leading citizen, was appointed the resident agent, under whom the estate was sold, the last of the business being closed up about 1848 or '9. As these proprietors were mostly extensive capitalists of New York, it is to be presumed that their influence was exerted in securing from the general government some portion, at least, of that attention which this place has received, during and since the war as a military and naval depot, but which can scarcely be said to have conferred a lasting benefit upon it. The expenditure of several millions of dollars for labor and materials, would, in the opinion of most people, be sufficient to impart a visible impulse to the prosperity of a place, but from causes which it might be improper or foreign to our purpose to investigate, such has not been the case here.

About 1807, there occurred in this town, about 6 miles south from the harbor in the Price settlements, one of those incidents peculiar to a new country, and which seldom fail to exite the sympathies of a whole community, whose common wants, and mutual dependence, lead to a bond of union less observable in an old settled district. The following sketch was written by Mr. David Merritt, one of the English families, who located here in February, 1805; the occasion was the loss of a child in the woods.

"The parents of the child had recently settled in the woods, half a mile from any other dwelling. It was of a Lord's day evening, about sunset; the father set out to visit his nearest neighbor, and, unobserved by him, his son, a child of four years, followed him.

The father tarried an hour or two, and returned, not having seen the little wanderer. The mother anxiously enquired for her child, supposing her husband had taken him with him; their anxiety was great, and immediate though fruitless search was made for the little fugitive. Several of the nearest neighbors were alarmed, and the night was spent to no purpose in searching for the child. On Monday a more extensive search was made by increased numbers, but in vain; and the distressed parents were almost frantic with grief and fearful apprehensions for the child's safety.

Another afflictive and sleepless night passed away, and the second morning beamed upon the disconsolate family, the child not found, and by this time (Tuesday), reports were in circulation of a panther's having been seen recently in the woods by some one. This circumstance gave a pungency to the grief and feelings of every sympathetic heart unknown before; and the timid and credulous were ready to abandon any further efforts to recove the child, and give the distressed parents up to despair.

It was however concluded to alarm a still more extensive circle, and engage fresh volunteers in a work that must interest and arouse even the unfeeling on common occasions. A messenger was dispatched to Sackets Harbor, a distance of six miles; it was in itself an irresistible appeal to every feeling heart. To feel, was to act.

† Ib. D. 254.

Messrs. Luff, Ashby, Merritt, and others immediately mounted their horses, and repaired to the scene of painful anxiety; this was about eleven o'clock in the forenoon of Tuesday. When they arrived at the spot, the number present, that had collected from all quarters, was about five hundred men. A small number was immediately chosen as a committee to direct the best method of search, and they were formed in a line, extending to the right and left of the house, a mile each way. They were placed so far apart as, for every foot of ground they passed in their search, to come under their observation; and when they had marched such a given distance from the house, the left or right wing were to wheel in such a way, as would, by pursuing the same plan, have effectually searched every spot within several miles of the house, before evening. The order of the day was, that no person should fire a gun, sound a horn, halloo, or make any needless noise, whatever; but with vigilance, and a sense of duty to the distressed parents, use every effort to recover the child. If the child was found alive, every person, that had a gun, was to fire, and every one that has a horn to sound it; on the contrary, if the child was found dead, one gun only should be fired, as a signal to the remote line to cease searching.

In this way, in silence, they had marched about two miles, when a distant gun sounded; it was an anxious moment. "Is the child alive?" was a thought that ran through every mind; a moment more and the hope was confirmed, for the air and forests rang with guns and horns of every description.

The lines were immediately broken up, and each ran, anxious to see the little lost sheep. The dear little fellow was presented to his now overjoyed parents; a scene that overcame all present.

When the little boy was found, he was sitting on a small mossy hillock, in the middle of a swamp, surrounded by shallow water. When the man, who first approached him, extended his arms and stooped to take him up, he shrunk from him, appeared frightened, and shewed a disposition to get from him. But he was much exhausted, and seized eagerly an apple that was held to him. Had he not been rescued from his situation, he probably would have died at that spot."

The first mercantile operation at Sackets Harbor on an extensive scale, was by Samuel F. Hooker, who in 1808 commenced with a stock of $20,000 worth of goods, and in 50 days had sold $17,500 worth. The business that then opened with the brightest prospects, was the trade of potash, to Montreal, where Astor and other heavy capitalists, had placed money in the hands of agents, for its purchase. The embargo of 1808, by withholding those along our frontier from a career in which they were highly prosperous, naturally led to a spirit of evasion of the laws, and the difficulty of exporting this great staple of commerce, directly from the Atlantic ports to Europe, led to extensive and systematic measures for forwarding to the lake and river, from the interior and southern counties of the state, and even from New York, large quantities of potash. This sometimes vanished in the night, or was shipped with due formality to Ogdensburgh, where it disappeared, and sometimes an open course of defiance of law was attempted. In whatever way it may have escaped, it was sure of reappearing in Montreal, where it commanded the enormous sums of $200 to $320 per ton, and from whence there was no obstacle to its export to England. To check this contraband trade, two companies of regulars were stationed at Ogdensburgh, and Capt. Wm. P. Bennett, with a part of a company of artillery, and Lieut. Cross, with a few infantry, was stationed here in 1808 and a part of 1809.

On the declaration of war, the United States possessed almost no means, whatever, for defensive operations on this frontier. The brig Oneida, under Lieutenant Woolsey, with an armament of 16 guns, a heavy 36 pound iron cannon, and a few smaller ones, some of which belonged to the state militia, constituted the sum of our means of defence. The British, it was well known, had been preparing for the event, one or two years at Kingston, and when the news of war arrived, had the means afloat at that place, not only of commanding the lake, but of landing whatever force they might possess, at such points as they might select, without a reasonable prospect of resistance. Col. Christopher P. Bellinger, with a body of drafted militia, had been stationed at this place, and an artillery company, under Capt. Elisha Camp, had been formed, and had offered their services for a short time, which had been accepted by General Brown. As ordnance and military stores were of first importance for the defence of the place, a meeting was called to press upon the governor the importance of an immediate attention to these wants, of which the following is a copy of the proceedings:

Sackets Harbor, July 11, 1812.

"HIS EX. GOV. TOMPKINS, Respected Sir:—The undersigned, a committee appointed on the part of the officers stationed at Sackets Harbor, and the villagers, for the purpose of adopting measures of defence for this place, beg leave to address you on this subject. We would earnestly solicit your attention to the exposed situation of this place, its liability to attack, and to the most expeditious means of resisting with effect any offensive operations. This place, it will be known, is the station or port from whence the brig Oneida derives all her supplies, and the almost only harbor she can with safety resort to from the bad weather of the lake. It is a village respectable for size and population, and is the easiest of access to any hostile naval force upon the lake. The English have a disposable effective naval force of at least sixty eight guns, while all our defence consists of 18 guns, on board the Oneida, and 2 nine pounders on

Dear Ms Read,

Please excuse the delay in responding to your letter of August 23. 1995. I have had to do some research on your request for the sketch of Simon Root.

In 1899, there were two newspapers in Leamington, the Post and the News. I am not sure from which paper the announcement came. There was no preservation done of the News. All copies of the Leamington Post before 1907 were lost in a fire. I do have a copy of the Christmas 1890 Post which lists many prominent people in the community, but unfortnately, Simon Root is not listed.

I asked a member of the community's Historical Society to go through its records, but again, no record of the sketch could not be found.

The search would have been simple if records of the 1899 papers were available. I am sorry that I could not help you further.

Yours sincerely,

Jill Nicholson

Mr. Root died Sunday evening without suffering. His wish had been to be buried beside his wife in Munroville, Ohio. He had made arrangements very thoughtfully when on a visit there last summer, with the Masonic brethren there, of which lodge he was a member to attend to his burial. The brethren here met promptly when the old man had passed away. There was a service at Mr. McIntyre's house Monday night where he died, and where he had lived the past ten years, Rev. Mr. Scratch officiating. He was a member of the Methodist church, and was a Mason of very old standing and only a few weeks ago he had joined the Canadian Order of Oddfellows as an honorary member. He was 91 years and ten months old. He was in the eighties when he joined the church and was one of the few Methodists who insist on immersion. Tuesday morning the Masons of Leamington took the remains to the M. C. R. early train. Pastmaster, Wm. Irwin accompanied the remains to their last resting place in Ohio. We are proud of masonry as illustrated in this case;this poor but worthy old brother who had no special claims on the lodge here was an object of their fraternal care. They provided him a nurse in his last sickness and spared no expense in carrying out his last wishes. There are many new fashioned fraternal societies which are doing a vast work of charity but the Masonic order cares for its sick and never forgets its poor. Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre and family have honorably carried out their bargain with Mr.Root have humored his whims and borne with him and cared for him and deserve credit. We published a sketch of Mr. Roots life a short time ago and need not repeat it here. He was born near Sackett's Harbor and was an eye-witness of that battle. He remembered Layfayette's visit to the United States and drove the canal team that drew the distinguished guest in York state. He lived in Pittsburg, moved thence to Ohio, where he married a Miss Howe, related to the Howes of this vicinity. After her death in Ohio he came to Canada in the sixties in the time of the war. He worked at his trade and had a good record for industry and honesty and was so strongly prejudiced against liquor that he would not take it even in his last sickness.

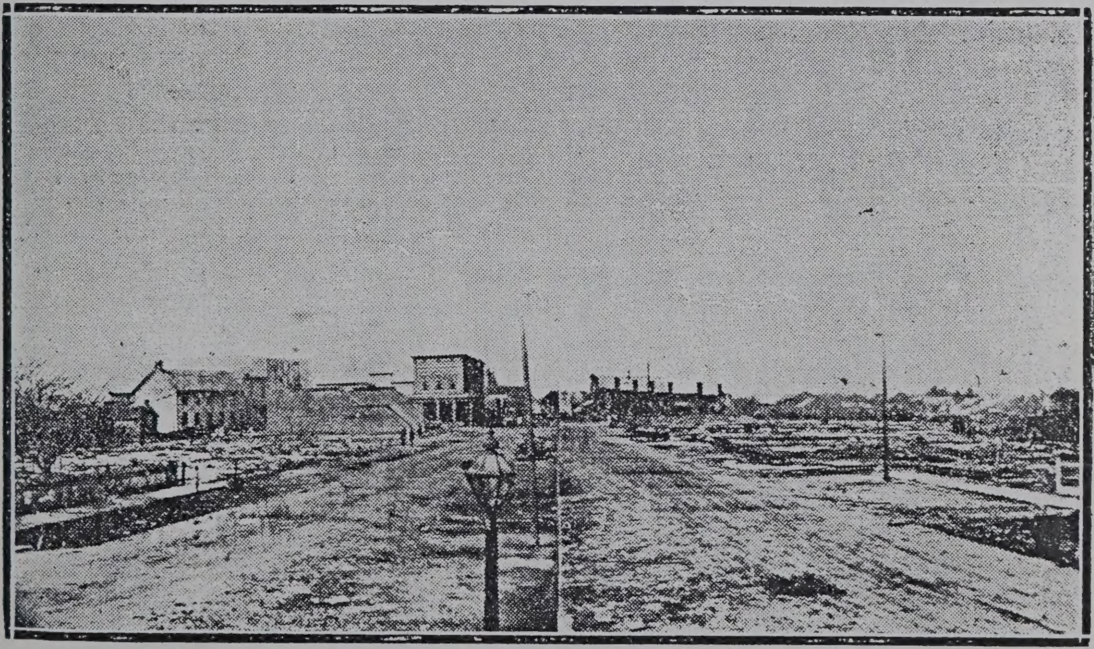
At the time of incorporation as a village in 1876, Leamington had a population of about 300 persons. It was little more than a cross-roads hamlet, although it had some enterprising citizens. The only public buildings in those days were a frame store owned by Solomon Wigle, father of the late Lewis Wigle; Walter Pulford's blacksmith shop and carriage works, a store owned by the late Eli Deming, and a building where the Mersea Township council held their meetings. On the north-east corner of what today is Talbot and Erie streets, was a farm owned by the late John Wilkinson. His barnyard faced the corner of his property.

We have experienced some difficulty in finding out just exactly how Leamington derived its name. Information from the Post-Office Department at Ottawa says that no records of Leamington are available previous to 1883. However, we are informed by an aged Leamington woman here that the place was first called Gainsburg, named after a resident of Mersea Township by the name of Gains. Shortly after the name was chosen it was found there was another Gainsburg in Canada, and it was decided to change the name from the first chosen. A committee of five residents of Mersea Township was called together for the purpose of choosing a new name. One of the members of the committee was the late Squire Foster, great-grandfather of the late Dr. Albert Foster of this town, and the late Mrs. Mary Ann Robson, besides Mrs. Wm. McSween, Miss Ada Foster, Mrs. Rhoda Gardner, all of Leamington, and Nelson Foster of Ruthven and Ritchie Foster of Chicago. Squire Foster came from Leamington, England, and after some deliberation by the committee chosen to rename the place, it was decided to choose Leamington. That was well over 100 years ago, and the name has never been changed since. Squire Foster was quite prominent in the early life of Leamington being justice of the peace for many years.



Leamington After the Fire in 1883

Following incorporation in 1876, Leamington continued to grow, until in 1883, it had became a good-sized village. Unfortunately the business section was wiped out by a disastrous fire, only to be built up even better than before. In those days, it is said that farm land in this section sold for as low as $6.00 per acre. In recent years some of this same land has sold for as high as $1,000 an acre.

ington blasted forth from his saw-mill, one of the town's first industrial plants. Other early industries here were Askew's grist mill and Dougherty's planing mill. Askew's mill stood at the corner of Askew and Erie streets, while the planing mill stood on the opposite side of Erie street. Both have long passed from existence and in their locations many fine homes stand today.

In more recent years, the Ludlam-Ainslie Lumber Company replaced the Dougherty mill. This industry today is known as the Ludlam Lumber Company. H. S. Ludlam is the president, and Alf. W. Bennie is the secretary-treasurer.

Leamington was incorporated as a town in 1890, with a population slightly less than 2,000 people. Since that time the town has continued to grow until today it has a population of 5,630. The greatest expansion of the town has been seen during the past twenty-five years. In 1908 the H. J. Heinz Company located their Canadian factory in Leamington, and since that time the town has continued to grow in leaps and bounds. As an inducement to come to Leamington the council gave the Heinz Company an old building, formerly used by the Ward Tobacco Company. A few years after coming here the building was torn down and in its place the Heinz Company erected larger and more up-to-date buildings. The Company has continued to add to their plant here until today, it is the largest of its kind in the British Empire.

To many of the older people of the present time, the name of "Uncle" Leonard Wigle will recall many pleasant incidents related to them by some of the town's early residents who have since passed along. "Uncle" Leonard operated a hotel just east of the town at present occupied by Mrs. Harriet Wigle, where she conducts a tourist home in addition to operating a farm with her son. Another familiar name that will bring back memories is that of the late John McR. Selkirk, who for a number of years was postmaster, police magistrate, and town clerk and treasurer. He was the father of Robt. M. Selkirk, Clark street, a brother of William Selkirk, Orange street, and an uncle of Elmer Selkirk, town clerk.

Other names prominent in the civic life of Leamington will be found in another part of this book. Like many other towns Leamington has seen booms of different kinds. The first boom was the oil and gas boom about forty years ago or even earlier. Then came the tobacco boom shortly after the growing of Virginia flue-cured leaf was introduced in the Leamington district, and which has since become one of the major crops in this section. There have been real estate booms, but these have never proven detrimental to the town, because real estate here has maintained a high standard for many years.

Leamington's first newspaper was issued in 1874, two years before the place was incorporated as a village. Its first publisher was the late William McSween, father of Ray McSween, Elliott street. Following Mr. McSween as publishers were the late T. R. Stobbs, H. T. Magill, J. E. Johnson, J. F. McKay, Byron Lane, who was one of the first apprentices on the staff; and A. A. Whitwam and P. H. Fader, business manager and managing editor respectively at the present time. The name of Leamington's first paper was the Erie Post. After two years of publication the Erie was dropped and the paper then became the Leamington Post. In the early days other men besides the above mentioned, published it for short periods. Leamington had two papers for a time, the other being called the News. The two proved to be more than the town could keep up, and in 1910, J. E. Johnson and A. A. Whitwam purchased the News and amalgamated it with the Post, which today is known as the Leamington Post and News. In recent years the paper has expanded to such an extent that today it is recognized among the leading weeklies of the Dominion of Canada. Only last year i was awarded the Williams Trophy for having the best editorial page in the entire dominion.

So much for the general history of the town in the early days. Now we will move on to the last reunion that was held in Leamington in 1909, the last of its kind held here. In looking over the files of the Post and News we find that on that occasion, the late Norman Peterson was mayor and general chairman of the committee in charge of the reunion. With him on the commiteee at that time were the following men: 1st vice-president, W. C. Coulson; 2nd vice-president, James Hambly; treasurer, Louis Smith; secretary, William McSween. At that time notwithstanding that Leamington had a population of less than 2,500, there were over 1,000 old boys and girls returned home from all parts of Canada and United States.

We might give the people of Leamington and former residents of the town an insight into some of the early history of the town by reproducing here some extracts taken from old copies of the Post which were handed to us during recent months:

The first paper we have before us is dated November, 1878, At that time the Leamington Post was only five years old. It was issued by T. R. Stobbs. Among those who carried small advts. on the front page are the following: Dr. James A. Kemp, Dr. Marten, W. F. Cowan, customs broker; J. Wigfield, conveyancer; William Eby, wood turner; Warren Kimball, issuer of marriage licenses; C. S. Wallace, barrister; Alex Laing, architect of Essex; George Cooper, sewing machine agent of Kingsville; H. B. Wray, dentist; James S. Laird, land surveyor; H. J. Coulson, insurance agent; D. W. Hensen, jeweller; Alexander Baird, land surveyor; Fox & Prosser, life insurance agents; M. W. Scott, auctioneer; Chas. G. Jackson, painter; Leamington, Windsor and Kingsville Stage operated by S. Millard; E. M. Bee, financial agent; and J. C. Patteson, barrister of Windsor.

Among the hotels listed are the Scott House, Leamington; Erie House, Wheatley; Temperance House, Essex Centre; and the American House, Windsor.

Other business men in Leamington in 1878 were Brown & Coulter, butchers; Daniel McDonald, blacksmith; J. M. Waddel, veterinary; Enoch Windsor, sawmill; H. E. Clifford and George Henry, fruit tree dealers, Ruthven; Leamington Bookstore, operated by T. R. Stobbs; Walter Shoreland, marble dealer; William Mutch, cabinet maker; Thos. Nichol, lime dealer; Jonas Eby, undertaker; Leamington Bank operated by Marten, Whyte & Co.; L. Bower of Kingsville, furniture emporium; L. Lynn, boot dealer and maker; William Coulter of Windsor, tobacco dealer; John F. Sherwood, harness dealer; C. P. Coulson, grocer; Charles H. Fox, real estate dealer; Cameron, Bartlet & Co., of Windsor, dry goods, etc.; George Russell, lumber dealer; H. T. Pulford of Windsor, lumber dealer; Philips & Watson, clothing store; E. M. Bee & Co., dry goods and clothing; H. Minnis, farm implements; T. M. Fox of Wheatley, men's wear; Devitt & Davis of Kingsville, woolen goods; J. Evans, groceries; J. W. Peddie, groceries and dry goods; Josiah Black, dry goods; R. T. Green of Essex, grain warehouse; Pulford & Coulson, hardware; Ed. Foster, hardware, tinware and stoves; S. Wigle & Son, general merchants; William McSween, groceries and teas; Gibson Bros., blacksmiths and horseshoers; and William McDonald, harnessmaker.

Robert Fair and William McSween give notice that they have dissolved partnership in the grocery business. Thomas Edison announces that he has been finally successful in inventing an electric light that will replace the present gas lamp. Navigation is near at a close on Lake Erie although some boats can yet be seen from Leamington dock. Point Pelee fishermen are getting good catches, it is said. There is a lot of sickness in the Leamington district. A large number of Leamington people go down to the lake to witness a Baptismal service sponsored by the Baptist Church. Charles Atwell of Wheatley has just completed the erection of a new sawmill. The following appears in the local items:

"We boast of having some large men in our village, though, in this respect, there are places which throw us in the shade, but we bear off the palm on boys. Mr. J. D. Wilkinson, son of Peter Wilkinson, is seven years of age, is four feet high, measures thirty inches around the chest, around the hips thirty-three inches, thigh seventeen inches, calf of leg thirteen inches, and weighs 80 pounds. Who can beat him?"

William Finck, cabinet maker and undertaker announces that he has just received a new stock of furniture. His store is opposite Jeffery's livery stable. The Wheatley Methodist congregation announces that anniversary services will be held soon. Following are other items that appear in the local news:

"Mr. Gascins has built a new blacksmith shop on the corner of Erie and Talbot streets and next spring contemplates building a residence after the fashion of Mr. Lewis Wigle's, expecting a re-adjustment of the tariff to assist him in its completion."

"Mr. R. McKinley, the well-known carpenter and cabinet maker has built a large shop, which will give him more room to work, and we suppose assist him in filling all orders which he receives, promptly. This, too, is all due, long looked for protection."

"There is strong talk of Mr. Orton, the present deputy-reeve trying his chance for the higher position of reeveship, at the coming election, though we consider he will have his hands full."

"Our teacher, employed here in the place of Sidney Foster, resigned, has also been forced through poor health to give up the school. The only complaint against him being that the school was not kept open regularly, on account of the teacher's health. He has returned to Brantford where his parents reside, to recruit his shattered nerves, and undergo a system of renovation till new year. We should take him to be a strong young fellow, but it appears he can not stand our 'salubrious' climate."

Among the churches listed in the Post of 1878 are the Methodist Church of Canada, Leamington Circuit with W. H. Gane, pastor; Leamington Baptist Church; Presbyterian Church, serving Leamington, Blytheswood and the Campbell Settlement on the 10th concession, Mersea Township; M. E. Church, Leamington Circuit, including Gore Hill and Mt. Carmel, Rev. Thos. Athoe, pastor; Church of England, William Bevan, incumbent.

"The Trustees of School Section No. 2, Mersea, have called a meeting of the rate-payers to discuss the question of building a new school house to replace the one destroyed by fire on the morning of the 9th inst. At this period of the year it is very difficult to erect a suitable building for a school, yet, as little time as possible should be lost to the pupils, who are virtually the greatest sufferers from the fire."

THE POST, NOVEMBER 18th, 1880

The editor of the Post of the above date is H. Thomson Magill. Many of the business and professional men are the same as in the Post of 1878. However here are a few changes. Among them are the following: The Deming House is included among the hotels. J. J. Bell has been added to the list of Leamington lawyers. Other business and professional men are N. Rolfson, conveyancer; Walter Stares, accountant and collector; Robert Fair, money lender; Chris. Bierley, shaving parlor; David Newt, barber; W. H. Ryall, proprietor of the Scott House; C. W. Hancock & Co., groceries; W. & C. Chamberlain, general merchants; W. A. Stubbings, foundry and implement dealer; Samuel Coll, marble dealer; W. F. McKenzie, carriage dealer; Dr.

H. Ives is master of the steamer Coral which runs from Windsor to Leamington. James Evans announces he will retire from business on the advice of his physician. Following is an editorial that appears:

"No matter what party is in opposition or in power, it is the poor policy for either to decry the country for the sake of making political capital. Canada is a young country. It needs people to fill it up. It wants the surplus population of other countries to come here, to leave high rents and bad landlords, to take up as much land for a mere song, as would make many an estate in Ireland, settle down, be thrifty and grow rich. This has been done in numberless cases. The men who have cleared our lands and founded our villages were largely men expatriated by hard times and hard treatment at home. We want more men of their indomitable energy, their perseverance and their endurance. Away West, millions of acres of magnificent land are waiting to be tickled by the plough, hoe and harrow into laughing crops, that fear no landlords' bailiffs. But the way to get these men, to get any other men except the dregs of society perhaps, is not by decrying the country, reporting abroad that the peoplle are leaving by tens of thousands in disgust and otherwise representing it as a God-forsaken place where no sane man would think of risking his comfort or investing his capital. This is not patriotism. This is not the spirit which should animate the descendants of hardy pioneers, or brave United Empire Loyalists. It is not the tone in which men should talk who have to credit their Canadian citizenship with whatever position they hold or whatever wealth they enjoy. They should remember that there is still room for millions of men such as their forefathers were, that what has been achieved by the old settler can be more easily accomplished by the immigrant of today. They should remember that to grow great, Canada must encourage immigration. Her resources must be advertised. There is no need for exaggeration. The truth is enough, but it is not doing the Dominion justice to belittle its wealth, to undervalue its lands, and to misrepresent the people as leaving by wholesale while at the same time we are or ought to be anxious to divert the current of immigration from other countries to our own. Let us be Canadians first, and party men, if necessary, afterwards."

C. Clark of Mersea, advertises a yoke of oxen for sale. J. B. Scott is pastor of the Presbyterian Church; Rev. D. D. Burtch, pastor of the Baptist Church; James Goodwin and W. J. Brandon, pastors of the C. M. Church; and J. W. Cultor is pastor of the M. E. Church.

Two deer weighing over 350 pounds each are killed on Pelee Island. Four inches of snow is seen on November 18th in the Leamington district. Work is being rushed on Leamington's new fire engine hall. It is said Leamington band is in need of new instruments. A young son of William Scott passes away here. A building on Talbot street used as a tinshop by Edward Foster has been purchased by George F. M. G. Heatherington is head of the A.O.U.W. fraternity, while Charles Reid is Noble Grand of Leamington I.O.O.F. Lodge No. 140, W. C. White is secretary of the Oddfellows' Lodge. Following are other local items taken from the Post of the above dates:

"The time is approaching when the people will like to know who intends to ask for the position of Reeve and Councillors of the village. It is to be hoped that in view of the extent to which the residents have suffered from the ravages of diphtheria, that strict attention to sanitary matters will be made a condition of election of all the civic affairs. This year there were Health Officers appointed, but nobody can tell what they did either to prevent or remedy the evils arising out of the use of impure water or surface closets. These matters cannot be trifled with longer, and every candidate must be prepared to declare himself with no uncertain sound on these two important questions."

"On Saturday, before Geo. Russell, Esq., J.P., and T. M. Fox, Esq., J.P., Joshua Brown was charged by a man named Richardson with having committed perjury. After hearing the evidence, the case was dismissed. The charge arose out of the wages case reported in which Richardson claimed $40. In that case Richardson has been awarded $20 in full settlement of his claim."

"On Saturday last Mr. W. F. McKenzie sold seven new wagons—one lumber wagon to Mr. Vanevery of Gosfield, three wagons were sent to Tilbury West, one to Lake St. Clair and two to parties on Pelee Island. Yesterday Mr. John Maguire got a handsome platform spring peddling wagon from the same establishment."

"On Tuesday evening, George Newt was making a powder flash out of a cow's horn, when the knife slipped and entering his left hand between the thumb and first finger, severed an artery. The blood spurted out over the room, but was quickly stopped. No serious consequences are anticipated, but the hand will require nursing for a few days."

"A noticeable feature in the village for the last few days is the total absence of evening corner-loungers. They generally go into the stores now and sit on the counters. They thus acquire a pretty accurate knowledge of the domestic economy of the citizens."

made things lively around town Saturday night, it is said. Duth. Wigle quits the photograph business. Large quantities of lumber are being loaded at the Leamington wharf. The schooner Pilot goes aground near Sturgeon Creek. H. Milkins of the Deming House announces he will give a dancing party to his friends. J. H. Pengelly opens a flour and feed store here. Mr. Atkinson of London buys a photograph studio here from M. E. Landon. Leamington is being infested with machine agents. Following are some local items that appeared in the issue of above date:

"As Walter S. Pulford of Leamington, was returning home from Amherstburg last Saturday, his horse took fright while crossing Cedar Creek bridge, and jumped into the creek. By the assistance of several gentlemen who happened to be near by at the time, the horse and vehicle were extricated in a damaged condition, the steed having received a severe cut in the side as well as other injuries. Mr. Pulford jumped out of the buggy before it went over the bridge and thus escaped injury. He purposes entering an action against the townships of Colchester South and Gosfield as the bridge was not properly protected by having a railing placed thereon."

"The following gentlemen have decided to work in conjunction with the band and volunteers in getting up the entertainments spoken of in last week's issue: Messrs. Lewis Wigle, W. C. Coulson, J. E. Johnson, G. F. Cronk, W. T. Easton, Allan Daugharty and John Minnis. It is the intention to give an entertainment every two weeks, commencing Friday evening, May 13th, in the Union Hall."

"Some evil disposed person wrecked the house on the corner of Erie and Mill streets last Monday night, knocking all the windows and doors in, and otherwise damaging it. The crash was heard quite a distance and resembled an earthquake to some extent."

"Mr. Sim Stewart will move to Ruthven next Monday to take possession of the Ruthven Hotel there. He intends to make some improvements on the premises."

"Some cranks got into the army barracks last Friday night while the soldiers were at Wheatley and destroyed everything they could lay their hands on. If found out they will be dealt with to the full extent of the law."

"In the assault and battery case of Pearce vs. Pearce, father and son, the father was fined $10 and costs."

"In the chicken stealing case, brought before the magistrates on Tuesday, Pease and Gray were both committed for trial."

"Forest Conover's two Rooker colts, two year old past, sold for $300 cash. John Taylor's sold for the same, and Sim Stewart has been offered $300 for his."

elebration that is being held in Leamington ned to the above writer. It is possible to f Leamington before it was incorporated as it would be of much interest to present day to the old home town for the re-union.

rporated as a village in 1876, it was a part to incorporate it as a separate municipality ncil by the late Lewis Wigle, one of the best ded in this section. The late Mr. Wigle was Essex County for sixty-four years, a record, equalled anywhere in Canada up to present years he died only four years ago.

West, Leamington in 1849

gton lumbering was the chief industry. The veral docks where railway ties were shipped cture and shipping of staves was also another the docks over which these products were son's Dock and Wigle's Dock. There were as important as the above three. An old as the "Dew Drop Inn", near the present site

Seacliff Park was a dense forest owned by f the late Forest Conover who died a couple at time teemed with fish of different kinds, was the cheapest food that could be obtained so plentiful that they could be speared from h the present time when nimrods sit on the
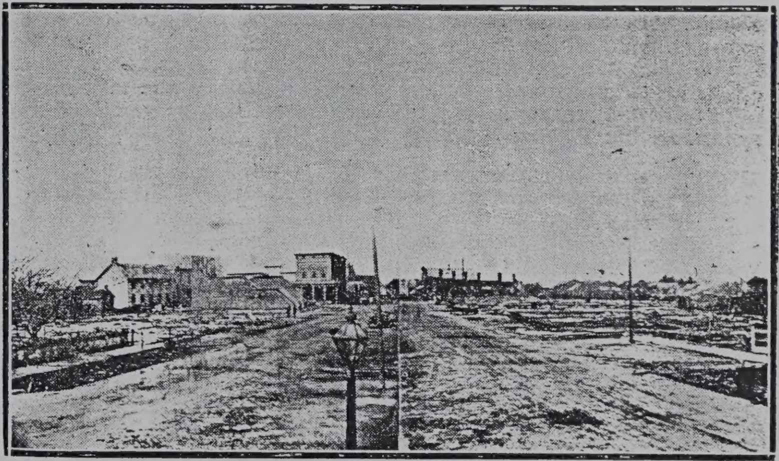
as much as a nibble from a small perch?

At the time of incorporation as a village in 1876, Leamington had a population of about 300 persons. It was little more than a cross-roads hamlet, although it had some enterprising citizens. The only public buildings in those days were a frame store owned by Solomon Wigle, father of the late Lewis Wigle; Walter Pulford's blacksmith shop and carriage works, a store owned by the late Eli Deming, and a building where the Mersea Township council held their meetings. On the north-east corner of what today is Talbot and Erie streets, was a farm owned by the late John Wilkinson. His barnyard faced the corner of his property.

We have experienced some difficulty in finding out just exactly how Leamington derived its name. Information from the Post-Office Department at Ottawa says that no records of Leamington are available previous to 1883. However, we are informed by an aged Leamington woman here that the place was first called Gainsburg, named after a resident of Mersea Township by the name of Gains. Shortly after the name was chosen it was found there was another Gainsburg in Canada, and it was decided to change the name from the first chosen. A committee of five residents of Mersea Township was called together for the purpose of choosing a new name. One of the members of the committee was the late Squire Foster, great-grandfather of the late Dr. Albert Foster of this town, and the late Mrs. Mary Ann Robson, besides Mrs. Wm. McSween, Miss Ada Foster, Mrs. Rhoda Gardner, all of Leamington, and Nelson Foster of Ruthven and Ritchie Foster of Chicago. Squire Foster came from Leamington, England, and after some deliberation by the committee chosen to rename the place, it was decided to choose Leamington. That was well over 100 years ago, and the name has never been changed since. Squire Foster was quite prominent in the early life of Leamington being justice of the peace for many years.



Leamington After the Fire In 1883

Following incorporation in 1876, Leamington continued to grow, until in 1883, it had became a good-sized village. Unfortunately the business section was wiped out by a disastrous fire, only to be built up even better than before. In those days, it is said that farm land in this section sold for as low as $6.00 per acre. In recent years some of this same land has sold for as high as $1,000 an acre.

The late George Russell was the first reeve of Leamington. The first whistle that ever signalled starting and quitting time for workmen in Leam-

Dear Helen,

The only information I was able to find with regards to Mr. Simon J. Root, Roll No 93 comes from the roll book of our Lodge.

Affiliated Leamington Lodge #290 Age 76 - Jan. 8, 1884
Suspended for non-payment of dues May 31, 1887
Reinstated July 5, 1887
Passed to the Grand Lodge Above April 10, 1900

This information does not agree with the newspaper article on the date of his death. I am sorry I could not be of more help. It seems probable that the Roll Clerk at that time made an error. If you look at his age at the time of affiliation - 76 in 1884, his death at age 92 would mean he died in 1900.

I hope you find some value in this correspondence. If I am able to find anything else, I will forward it to you.

Thank you for your donation to our lodge.

Sincerely,
James Peacock

Fear P.H. Ackley Murdered

Prosecuting Attorney Butler and Sheriff Henderson were called to Morton Township this morning to investigate the mysterious disappearance of P.H. Ackley, 70 years old or more.

Ackley, it is alleged, had been living with Mrs. VanTassell, also over 70 years old. The old man disappeared Friday and had not been seen or heard of since. Mrs. VanTassell admits the disappearance and says she thinks he just wandered off. The officers, however, understand that the man and she had quarreled and noticed that she had a black eye. She explained this by saying that she fell against a chair last Monday, but neighbors affirm that she had the black eye on Saturday and even on Friday. This line of thought leads the officers to some ugly suspicions. When asked whether she had anything to do with causing his disappearance, the old lady went into hysterics and fell on the ground, the officers believe being more feigned than real. About the premises, near the barn is a pond, covered with thick brush, and a search is to be made of this in the hope of finding the old man's body. If the body is found in this pond it is quite certain that he did not fall in it without outside assistance, the prosecutor said this afternoon after returning home. The old man owned 40 acres in Morton Township, about three miles east of Rodney.

Long Missing Body Discovered

The body of P.H. Ackley, the aged resident of Morton township, was found yesterday afternoon about half a mile from his home in a clump of bushes. The body was in a bad state of decomposition. The officers were immediately notified and the body was taken to Mecosta, where an inquest is being held. Ackley disappeared from his home on August 23, last. He was living with a housekeeper, Mrs. VanTassell who like himself, was also 70 years old. The two it appears had quarreled and Mrs. VanTassell wore a black and bruised eye as the result. The man's disappearance excited suspicion on the part of the neighbors, who notified the county officials. Ever since that time the premises about the house, and even the swamp, was more or less thoroughly searched.

Aged Woman May Be Arrested For Murder

As a result of the finding of the body of P.H. Ackley, and the inquest held at Mecosta yesterday, it is likely his housekeeper Mrs. VanTassell and George Hunter may be arrested.

There were eight or ten witnesses examined at the inquest, which was held in the town hall, at Mecosta. The body was taken to the livery barn, where it is still kept. It was so badly decomposed that the head fell off in handling. The body was found beside a clump of bushes. It was clad only in a shirt and a sort of vest, with a pair of overalls lying nearby. On one foot was a rubber. From what was brought out at the inquest, the suspicions of the officers are strengthened that the old man met foul play, and they now suspect that the old lady, his housekeeper, had the assistance of George Hunter, who it is thought may have dragged the body from the house to the clump of bushes.

Fear F.S. Buckley Murdered

Prosecuting Attorney Butler and Sheriff Henderson were called to Morton Township this morning to investigate the mysterious disappearance of F.S. Buckley, 71 years old or more.

Buckley, it is alleged, had been living with Mrs. VanTassell, also over 70 years old. The old man disappeared Friday and has not been seen or heard of since. Mrs. VanTassell admits the disappearance and says she has no idea what became of him. The officers, however, understand that the old couple had quarreled and noticed that she had a black eye. She explained this by saying that she fell against a chair last Monday, but neighbors state that she had the black eye on Saturday and even on Friday. This line of thought leads the officers to some ugly suspicions. When asked whether she had anything to do with Buckley's disappearance, the old lady went into hysterics and fell on the ground, the officers believe being more feigned than real. About the premises near the barn is a pond, covered with thick brush, and a search is to be made of this in the hope of finding the old man's body. If the body is found in that pond it is quite certain that he did not fall in it without someone's assistance, the prosecutor said this afternoon after returning home. The old man owned 40 acres in Morton Township, about three miles east of Rodney.

It was so badly decomposed that the men were sick at handling. The body was found beside a clump of bushes. It was clad only in a shirt and a pair of pants, with a pair of overalls lying nearby. On one foot was a rubber. From what was brought out at the inquest, the suspicions of the officers are strengthened that the old man met foul play, and they now suggest that the old lady, Mrs. VanTassell, had the assistance of George Hunter, who it is thought may have dragged the body from the house to the clump of bushes.

Now Lodged In Jail

Mrs. Lydia VanTassell, aged 70 years, and George Hunter, aged 65, were arrested at Carson City Saturday. They were charged with the murder of P.H. Ackley, a farmer of Morton Township, whose farm is located several miles from Mecosta. The alleged murder is one of the most mysterious ever committed in this county, and there is no chance for other than circumstantial evidence. Ackley, nor his body, could not be found anywhere until last Thursday, when it was found so badly decomposed, half a mile from the house, clad only in night shirt, vest, one rubber, and a pair of overalls beside it. The spot where the body was found had been searched several times and officers think the body was placed there only a short while before in such a way to indicate that Ackley had wandered away in his sleep or while deranged. Mrs. VanTassell has a daughter who is married to Hunter's son. Sheriff Henderson arrested the woman and under-sheriff Tenny nabbed Hunter. The examination has been set for Tuesday, December 3.

Mrs. VanTassell is a more or less well known character and at one time was the cause of having John Snyder, son of the doctor, arrested for disturbing a religious meeting. The young man attended a Free Methodist meeting at which Mrs. VanTassell got up to give testimony. During the revival she said she "loved Jesus Christ more than she did molasses and cracker jack". This caused the young man to break out laughing and he was arrested. She has a son, now in the West, who at one time was arrested for violation of the local option law. The woman was long ago quizzed by the officers and accused of having had something to do with the disappearance, but she always denied it. They are now lodged in the County Jail, and are not permitted to see anyone. So far as can be ascertained, the only motive for the crime was the quarrel the old lady had with Ackley. It is said that she admitted to someone that he had struck her in the eye and blacked it for her, whereupon, getting mad, she picked up something about the house and struck him, the blow being a little harder than she intended. What was done with the body after the alleged murder is not known yet. It surely was not placed anywhere near the spot where it was found last week.

Officers Have Their Confession - Jealousy And The Farm

Lydia VanTassell, who has been languishing in jail for a week, waived examination this afternoon and was bound over to the February term of Circuit Court, charged with the murder of P.H. Ackley. George Hunter likewise waived examination and was also bound over. He is not charged with murder, but with abetting a felony. The officers had a hard time in having the woman decide what she would do, whether to have the examination or waive it. She at first said she would not do either. About 15 witnesses were on hand to testify. Seeing the array, after she had decided to waive the examination and was taken back to jail, she chuckled in glee that she did not give them a chance to swear against her.

The prisoner is positively the worst we have ever had to deal with, declared Sheriff Henderson. She is deceit personified. I know she hates me to the limit and the other day she expressed a wish behind my back that all the officers of Mecosta would drop dead, and yet to my face she is as nice as she can be. Now that the pair have been bound over, Prosecutor butler and sheriff Henderson are anxious to get some of the facts before the public, which up to this time they dodged as best they could. they hinted that they had a sure cinch on both the old lady and Hunter in the way of a written confession. They hinted that they had a sure cinch on both the old lady and Hunter in the way of a written confession. Besides, they have one important witness, George Hunter Jr., grandson of the prisoner, who is held at the jail as an important witness. At the trial, it is expected that some 40 witnesses will be called. Jealousy and a desire to gain possession of the farm are two leading factors in the murder. The jealousy was on the part of Ackley, who was jealous of his housekeeper receiving Hunter's attentions. It was that which lead up to the quarrel and the fight, in which Mrs. VanTassell got the black eye. The officers think that Ackley was struck with a club and that the woman alone did it. Afterward, she enlisted Hunter's aid, and the body was hidden at various places, the desire being to hide if possible the manner in which he came to his death. After Ackley's disappearance, the officers had someone watching the suspected woman day and night continuously until her departure with Hunter five weeks ago. There was always one person on the premises and sometimes as many as 200.

The queer thing about the woman, Mr. Henderson remarked, is that she uses religion as a cloak to shield her. She professed "power" on several occasions and appeared very religious. When first accused, she was just simply horrified that any one should be so bold as to think that a pure-minded woman like she could even think of such a thing.

Main Witness Tells 2 Different Stories

The most important part of the Ackley murder trial was reached this forenoon at 11:30 when George Hunter, grandson of George Hunter, now in jail as an accessory after the fact, was a witness. Young Hunter's testimony is important from the fact that he was supposed to have helped bury the old man, and was the first besides Mrs. VanTassell to see him after the murder. Your name is George Hunter is it not, asked the prosecuting attorney after his most important witness took the stand. George Jay Hunter, the 17 year old youth supposed to be only half witted, replied with a loud voice and a scared smile. He said he lived in Mecosta with his parents and on August 23rd, the day of the alleged murder, he was a visitor at the Ackley home. He got there about 11:00 he said. Ackley at the time was sitting in a rocking chair, beside which was a long broomstick, which was exhibited in court and identified by Hunter. He said he did not hear Ackley speak while in the house, that he was just alive and that's all, and that he and Mrs. VanTassell then hitched up and drove to Mecosta. They returned in the afternoon and found that Ackley was dead, whereupon they carried him out of the house, through the kitchen door, around the barn, into the road, that some 40 witnesses will be called. Main Witness Tells 2 Different Stories

The most important part of the Ackley murder trial was reached this forenoon at 11:30 when George Hunter, grandson of George Hunter, held in jail as an accessory after the fact, was a witness. Young Hunter's testimony is important from the fact that he was supposed to have helped bury the old man, and was the first besides Mrs. VanTassell to see him after the murder. Your name is George Hunter is it not, asked the prosecuting attorney after his most important witness took the stand. George Jay Hunter, the 13 year old youth supposed to be only half witted, replied with a loud voice and a scared smile. He said he lived in Mendota with his parents and on August 23rd, the day of the alleged murder, he was a visitor at the Ackley home. He got there about 11:00 he said. Ackley at the time was sitting in a rocking chair, beside which was a long broomstick, which was exhibited in court and identified by Hunter. He said he did not hear Ackley speak while in the house, that he was just alive and that's all, and that he and Mrs. VanTassell then hitched up and drove to Mendota. They returned in the afternoon and found that Ackley was dead, whereupon they carried him out of the house, through the kitchen door, around the barn, into the woods, where young Hunter said he dug a grave and the body was put in it. In carrying the body, he said, he had hold of the shoulders and Mrs. VanTassell held the feet. The body was clothed in blue overalls and brown shirt, with rubbers and no shoes on the feet. The cap fell off while they were carrying him, but was placed on his head before the body was covered up. The lad related with minute details just how the body was laid in the hole he dug, on his back, and told what Mrs. VanTassell was doing while he went after the spade to cover it, just stood there beside the road. She asked me at night if I would help her, the boy said in answer to a question by the prosecutor whether or not she made up a story. He struck her and she struck him, the witness said Mrs. VanTassell told him. She then put him in the bedroom but when the witness came into the house that morning Ackley was sitting in the rocker. Did you see Mrs. Vantassell's face, I mean with reference to a black eye, Mr. Butler asked. Not that day. I saw the black eye the next morning. While identifying the broomstick, the witness pointed to a mark on one end and showed it to the jury. Who made that mark, Mr. Butler asked. George Hunter, he replied, that's me. After the burial, he did not again see the body, he said, until at the inquest in Mecosta. There he recognized that the body was dressed differently, except that the overalls were the same. Mr. Butler at this point excused the witness and Attorney A.A. Worcester, who has been appointed by the court to conduct the case for Mrs. VanTassell, began to question him. Who did you tell this story to in the first place, asked Mr. Worcester. To Mr. Butler, Henderson and Tenny. Didn't you at the inquest in November tell a different story until Mr. Butler said, now George you know you're lying. The witness admitted he did. Why did you change your story, because you were afraid. Yes, and I am afraid yet. But was not the other story the true story. I don't know. But now you got the whole shooting match, it is just as I told it to Mr. Butler, isn't it Mr. Butler. Now George didn't you tell at the inquest that when you and Mrs. VanTassell drove away to Mecosta, Mr. Ackley aided you in hitching up the horse and locked up the dog in the house. I don't know. But the dog did not follow you, did he. No. Why? I don't know. When you got there you and Mrs. VanTassell hitched up the horse and Ackley watched you didn't he. Yes, the witness replied, thereby contradicting his former testimony that Ackley was sitting in the chair too weak to talk and just barely alive. You went to town and when you and Mrs. VanTassell got back Ackley wasn't there was he. No. She then sent you to Boroff's to notify him that Ackley was missing. Yes, that's right. And after that you assisted in searching for him, going to look near the cement bridge, and other places. Yes. This story then that you just told about helping to bury him you told because you were afraid. Yes and I'm kind of afraid yet. This story you are telling now is the truth, Mr. Worcester continued, and the other was not the truth. This is the truth, the witness replied. At this point Mr. Worcester rested and Mr. Butler began to re-exam the witness. What are you afraid of Mr. Butler asked. I was afraid of getting myself run in. What have you done that should scare you, the prosecutor continued. I did nothing. Did anybody threaten you if you helped bury the old man. Yes, guess that's it. How did you lay the old gentleman out in the grave, was the next question the prosecutor shot back. Flat on his back. And you went away to get the spade, leaving Mrs. VanTassell beside the body. Yes. And this is the true story you are now telling. You believe it's true and if it's good enough for you it is good enough for me, the witness replied. Mr. Butler then exhibited a written statement and asked the witness whether he had signed that and sworn that the contents were true. The witness took ten minutes to read the statement, written on one sheet and said that it was the truth. hen the story you told Mr. Worcester was not true. Guess not. When did you first tell that story to Mr. Drescher, when he called on you in jail. Yes. Did Mr. Worcester tell you that you tell such a story and no other. The boy hesitated, finally agreeing that such was the case.

The jury was drawn yesterday shortly after 5 o'clock. Mr. Butler's address to the jury was nearly an hour long. He outlined the case with some detail and made out a very plausible theory. His theory is that the blow was struck during the quarrel on August 23. that after she killed him, she and the boy put him in bed and drove to Mecosta. Later, on their return, they buried him in the road, half a mile from the house. She carrying him by the feet and the boy by the shoulders. he boy digging the grave, near a cranberry patch. The grave was later opened and the body removed in a rig, four people assisting in this transaction. the body being taken to the bushes during the night. The horses tied in one place until morning. The first witness called was Will Boroff who was called to hunt for the old man. Will Lowrie, Russell Ackley (brother of the murdered man) and Dr. Weaver of Mecosta were the other witnesses. Exhibit number 1 introduced in evidence was a warehouse receipt and a justice summons found in the old man's pocket after his death, which was used to identify the dead.

Court Adjourns Until Tuesday
Mysterious Midnight Work

The Ackley murder trial was halted last evening and court was adjourned until 11 o'clock, Tuesday, February 25. One of the mystery witnesses residing in Grand Rapids was ill and hence could not appear. John Houck was one of those who examined the body after it was found and testified tar he found sand in the creases of the old man's vest. Harry I. Drescher examined the body as County Coroner and testified as to the condition of the body after it was found. The most important testimony for the prosecution of the day was that of Peter Boroff. Mr. Boroff said he was hired by the sheriff to work on the case. On the night of August 1, he said he was in the neighborhood of the marsh in the Ackley home. He was there between the hours of 11 at night and 4 in the morning. During that time, he saw a rig drive up to the marsh and four people get out. The horse was tied to a stub beside a logging road, and the people worked on something, he did not know what. He saw them get in again and drive off. He did not know who they were. They were in the neighborhood of the so called grave. County Agent Warren A. Hunt testified that he was called at the request of Supervisor Joseph Wendling to investigate Ackley's financial condition with reference to his being a fit subject for the County Farm. He said a petition had been made, but that Mrs. VanTassell opposed Ackley going to the County Farm. Supervisor Joseph Wendling testified about application being made to him for aid in behalf of Ackley and that he referred the matter to the county authorities. Frank Boroff testified to his having assisted in the search for the body.

Spy Has Mrs. VanTassell's Confession

he prosecution in the Ackley murder trial has not yet sprung its strongest witness, Mrs. A.J. Dailey of Grand Rapids. This witness, it is alleged, will when place on the stand, give testimony of the most sensational nature. This information comes to the Pioneer not through any of the officials connected with the case. Indeed, they are guarding the secret most carefully, very few knowing about it. It comes, however, from a reliable source and there appears to be very little doubt as to its correctness. Mrs. Dailey is a professional detective and was hired by the prosecutors and lodged in jail as a convict and occupied the same cell for a time with Mrs. VanTassell. In this manner told you that you tell such a story and no other. The boy hesitated, finally agreeing that such was the case.

The jury was drawn yesterday shortly after 1 o'clock. Mr. Butler's address to the jury was nearly an hour long. He outlined the case with some detail and made out a very plausible theory. His theory is that the blow was struck during the quarrel on August 23. That after she killed him, she and the boy put him in bed and drove to Hesperia. Later, on their return, they buried him in the woods, half a mile from the house. She carrying him by the feet and the boy by the shoulders, he then digging the grave, near a cranberry patch. The grave was later opened and the body removed in a rig, four people assisting in this transaction. The body being taken to the marsh during the night. The woman fixed in one place until morning. The first witness called was Will Doroff who was called to hunt for the old man. Will Lobsie, Russell Ackley (brother of the murdered man) and Dr. Reeves of Fremont were the other witnesses. Exhibit number 1 introduced in evidence was a warehouse receipt and a justice summons found in the old man's pocket after his death, which was used to identify the case.

Mysterious Midnight Work

The Ackley murder trial was halted last evening and court was adjourned until 10 o'clock, Tuesday, February 25. One of the mystery witnesses residing in Grand Rapids was ill, and hence could not appear. John Bonga was one of those who examined the body after it was found and testified that he found sand in the creases of the old man's vest. Henry L. Davenport examined the body as County Coroner and testified as to the condition of the body after it was found. The most important testimony for the prosecution of the day was that of Peter Doroff. Mr. Doroff said he was hired by the sheriff to work on the case. On the night of August 23 he said he was in the neighborhood of the marsh in the Ackley home. They were in the neighborhood of the so called grave. County Agent Marion J. Ebeling testified that he was called on the request of Supervisor Joseph Wendling to investigate Ackley's financial condition with reference to his being a fit subject for the County Farm. He said a petition had been made, but that Mrs. VanTassell opposed Ackley going to the County Farm. Supervisor Joseph Wendling testified about application being made to him for aid in behalf of Ackley and that he referred the matter to the county superintendent. Frank Doroff testified to his having assisted in the search for the body.

Boy Has Mrs. VanTassell's Confession

The prosecution in the Ackley murder trial has not yet sprung its strongest witness, Mrs. E.J. Bailey of Grand Rapids. This witness, it is alleged, will when placed on the stand, give testimony of the most sensational nature. This information comes to the Pioneer not through any of the officials connected with the case. Indeed, they are guarding the secret most carefully, very few knowing about it. It comes, however, from a reliable source and there appears to be very little doubt as to its correctness. Mrs. Bailey is a professional detective and was hired by the prosecutors and lodged in jail as a convict and occupied the same cell for a time with Mrs. VanTassell. In this manner she was able to get the complete story from the accused woman. The story is in the form of a deposition, substantiated and sworn to by Mrs. VanTassell. In this witness, doubtless, on whose account the trial was adjourned Thursday evening until Tuesday. Prosecutor Butler was not in town today to verify this story or deny it. It is certain, however, that the prosecutor has something important up his sleeve, and this is probably it. Mr. Butler at one time thought of getting a dictograph installed in the jail, using the method of the famous Detective Burns, but found that this would hardly answer his purpose. He got a special appropriation of $100 from the Board of Supervisors, to be used as he saw fit.

Woman Detective Must Testify

Just how did Mrs. VanTassell come to make her confession to the detective hired by Prosecutor Butler, Mrs. A.J. Dailey of Grand Rapids? Prosecutor Butler, in his cross examination of Mrs. VanTassell yesterday afternoon, hinted at the manner it was done. He first read a stanza from a poem, a very touching poem, suitable to the moods of the prisoner, and asked the witness whether she had ever heard that before. She said she might have. As a matter of fact did not Mrs. Dailey read this very poem to you and you broke down and wept and unburdened yourself, telling her the story of how Mr. Ackley came to his death said the prosecutor. I might have, I don't remember. Now Mrs. VanTassell didn't you send for me at that time. I might have. And was it not in response to a telephone call that Mrs. Lyle, Mr. Henderson and myself came over to the jail and didn't I say to you that I had no promises to make you if you made this statement. Yes, I think so. And wasn't it a day or two later that Mr. Henderson and I came over to see you at the jail and I asked you whether you made that statement and you said yes. It was in answering this question that Mrs. VanTassell seemed to make an involuntary admission, which caused an audible from the audience. Yes, I said yes, the witness stated, but as soon as I said yes I seen that I made a mistake, I shouldn't have said it. You now think that you shouldn't have said it, after consulting with your counsel. Yes. In his redirect examination, Mr. Worcester today brought up the matter again, by asking; What did you mean yesterday when you told Mr. Butler you made a mistake. I meant that I told a falsehood, and as soon as I told it I realized that I made a mistake. The prosecutor left his part of the investigation and asked several other questions, among them Ackley's age, which she said was 87, also her age, which she said was 60, either last August or the coming August. Mr. butler also asked her how Ackley felt on the day of his disappearance. She replied that he felt first rate, real smart. Because of the great crowd of people in the court room, completely blocking up the aisles as well as filling every corner of the auditorium, Judge Barton adjourned court at 5 o'clock, announcing that on the following day, Wednesday, officers would be stationed at the doors and would admit people only so long as there was sitting room for them. Today the doors were guarded by Under Sheriff Tom Freeland and Deputy Robert Ladner. Mrs. VanTassell's cross examination was resumed at 9 o'clock this morning. The exam was interrupted to permit Dr. George H. Lynch to testify. Dr. Lynch, in response to the question asked by Mr. Butler, stated that in company with Mr. Butler he made a trip to Grand Rapids last night and examined Mrs. A.J. Dailey at her home. He found Mrs. Dailey's condition normal, except that she was nervous. It appeared to him that the woman had been sick, "was weak, was very weak". Mrs. Dailey told him that two weeks previous, an abcess had broken in her throat, and that she absorbed the poison in her system. I thought at the time that she made up the story, as it did not seem probable that she would permit an abcess to grow in her throat, without trying to relieve it. He consulted with her physician, Dr. Porter Tuttle, however, who told him that she had come under Christian Science treatment, until a short time ago when he was called and he lanced the abcess and drained it off. Asked whether she was well enough to come to Big Rapids, the doctor said she could. She was very weak, but if she were compelled to come there was no reason so far as he could see, especially if she had an attendant, why she could not come. He said when he asked her if she would come, she did not object to making the trio, if she had an attendant. The court later ordered the prosecutor to get the attendant and get Mrs. Dailey here to testify. Recalled to the witness stand, Mrs. VanTassell said she left Ackley on the day of his alleged disappearance feeling poorly, and admitted, that while in Mecosta that day, she told Mrs. chudley that she left Mr. Ackley feeling poorly and was anxious to get back home. On cross exam by her attorney, the witness stated that the women detective, whom she first regarded as a friend, told her what to say in the statement. Other witnesses called were George Sapp, who stated that five or six days before the disappearance he talked with Ackley relative to a forty adjoining the Ackley farm, which he wanted to purchase and walked probably a half mile with the old man looking over the property. The old man appeared very feeble then. Mrs. Treadway, who owns a store in Mecosta, was called on by the defense to testify as to Mrs. VanTassell's being a peaceable and law-general reputation. The prosecutor afterwards tried to show that this was her own impression and not general. What makes you say she was law-abiding, he asked. Because she always treated Mr. Ackley well, like a child. He always addressed her as "mother". He said she was so kind to him and that he would not know what to do without her. She saw him in Mecosta on June 14 and June 17. On the 14th he remained in her store, while she went to the post office. He sat a while and then wanted to know where mother was, starting out later to look for her. She saw him running. They brought him back from Ned wood's place, and he failed to recognize her. She said that she heard Ackley say that he would, when next he was in Big Rapids, have the papers changed, giving the farm to Mrs. VanTassell.

The following is Mrs. VanTassell's statement, made in jail on November 30, 1912; "Mr. Ackley and myself got into a quarrel. He struck me and I struck him back. I don't know what I struck him with. He was sitting in a rocking chair after I struck him. Little George Hunter and myself placed him on the bed and covered him over. We ate dinner and little George Hunter and myself hitched up the horse and drove to Mecosta. After we returned that evening, little George and myself took Mr. Ackley out of bed and carried him out through the door and into the woods. Little George dug a grave and we buried him. I went out and showed big George Hunter where Ackley was buried. I think it was dark, although I was so nervous I hardly knew. I am very sorry I did it. Mr. George Hunter said he would take Mr. Ackley out of the grave and carry him into the woods, where if he was found it would appear as if he wandered off and died. Later Mr. Hunter told me he had taken Mr. Ackley out of the ground and took him into the woods. I want to say I am sorry. I know my mind wasn't right. I wouldn't have done it for all the world." MRS. LYDIA VANTASSELL

Other witnesses who testified today were Lydia Hunter, Robert Mcgregor, Charlie Gay, who told the direction the wind blew that day, Pete Thiessen, Leroy Shalor, Sam Richards and B.S. Henry. Sam Richards drives an auto at Mecosta. He testified concerning the finding of what he called human manure near the body. On cross exam, he said he knew it was human manure because he can tell that kind from other kinds, but he is not an expert. He also said that on Friday he collected it and it was brought into court in a can. Maggie Hunter, mother of little George, testified that her son told her the next day that he and Mrs. VanTassell drove to Mecosta, leaving Ackley in the yard, between the house and the barn, and that the boy took an auto ride with the officers and that he was threatened by the officers if he did not tell a certain story he would be arrested. Mr. butler asked the witness if the boy had not received a whipping that day, of the auto ride. She said not that day, but the next morning. Wasn't it because he told the officers the story, she was asked. No sir, it was because he sassed me and refused to get up and build the fire. She admitted that the boy was whipped quite severely and that his back was marked up. As showing the motive for the crime, Russell Ackley, brother of the dead man, testified for the prosecution that he talked with Mrs. VanTassell, that she repeated a conversation she had with George Hunter. Hunter said to her, she was wasting her time and money on that old man, that he would live 100 years, that she ought to leave him and marry, meaning himself. In repeating the story to the witness, she said, I presume he will live 100 years unless I tap him on the head.

Double Sensation Develops in Ackley Murder Trial

It was a case of dog eat dog, or fighting fire with fire, at the Ackley murder trial today. The prosecution sprung its most important witness at 9 o'clock this morning, according to the latest revised schedule, announced the day before. This was the woman detective, Mrs. A.J. Dailey, who spent five days in the county jail and got a written and signed confession from Mrs. VanTassell. But the honors were not all to be exclusive with the prosecution. The defense also had a detective of its own, who was placed in the witness chair immediately following Mrs. Dailey. This detective was Charles F. Kennedy of Grand Rapids, who for the past two weeks and especially since last Friday, has been shadowing Mrs. Dailey and getting information to spike her testimony, if possible. He said he was hired by Attorney Worcestor. The effect of his testimony on the jury, rebutting that of Mrs. Dailey, is problematical to say the least. Mrs. Dailey, the first witness, is a mild mannered, rather pleasant appearing lady of perhaps 60 years of age. She told of being engaged by the prosecution to work on this case, that she came here the last week of November, was lodged in the county jail and occupied at times the same cell as did Mrs. VanTassell. She became friendly with the woman and had many visits and chats with her. During the first few days, after Mrs. VanTassell got to talking about herself and her being in the jail, she always told the same story; that she and Ackley had been on good terms as usual, that on Friday of his disappearance she and little George drove to Mecosta leaving Ackley in the yard, and that when they came home he was nowhere to be found. This story she repeated until Friday. Tell what happened then, said the prosecutor. The lady of the jail was in the habit of bringing me magazines and papers, which I read to Mrs. VanTassell. That day I came across a very touching poem entitles, "Never Mind". When I was reading the verse next to the last, she broke out crying, and seemed to feel very bad over something. I said to her, those things sometimes are very touching. She said yes, that is the way they struck her. Then she said, "I did something I'm very sorry for". She first told something about a black eye. The people wondered how she got it, she said. I did not pay attention to her at first. On the following day, Saturday morning, she wanted to talk to me and finally she asked me a question. She said, "Suppose that they tried to prove that I killed Mr. Ackley and I would stick to the story I told you, could they do anything to me.". I said to her, "If you're innocent, they can't convict you, but if you did it, they will. If you did not do it, I would not tell any other story, but if you did do it, it may be easier for you to tell the whole story." Then she said, "He hit me first and blacked my eye and then I struck him". I said, "You could have said at first that you struck him in self-defense and that would have helped you". "Why couldn't I do it and that he was threatened by the officers if he did not tell a certain story he would be arrested. Mr. Butler asked the witness if the boy had not received a whipping that day, at the same time. She said not that day, but the next morning. Mrs. Dailey, the first witness, is a mild mannered, rather pleasant appearing lady of perhaps 40 years of age. She told of being engaged by the prosecution to work on this case, that she came here the last week of November, was lodged in the county jail and occupied at times the same cell as did Mrs. VanTassell. "Why couldn't I do it now", she asked. "You can if you want to, but it may not help you as much", I told her. She told you about some trouble she had, tell about that, said the prosecutor. She said she wanted to take some of her furniture away, and told Ackley so. She said she was poor and she had to use her pension money to support him. He didn't earn anything and was getting childish, and was kind of jealous of a man named Hunter, and did not want her to go to town with him. He told her if she stayed, he would leave the farm to her when he died. The quarrel was continued, then he hit her in the eye, but it did not get black until Saturday. In a fit of anger, she said she hit him. She was sorry she did it and she felt terrible about it. Then she and little George put him in bed and drove to town. Returning, they buried him near the road, in a hole the boy had dug. She did not want to stay alone nights in the house, she felt so bad about it. They later moved the body, she did not say when at that time. Did she say who helped to move the body, the prosecutor asked. She said it was George Hunter. Then they started to search, many people being there. When they wanted to go toward the body, Hunter would lead them off in another direction, because he did not want them to find it. She said she wanted to tell the whole thing if that would help her, she would tell it so that the sheriff and prosecuting attorney could hear it. She told the story over again and a stenographer took it down. After the officers went away, she said I did not tell the prosecuting attorney about taking the body before moving to Carson City and laying it out so that if anybody should find it, it would look like he had strolled away. Did you tell this story to anyone. Yes to Detective Kennedy of Grand rapids, last Friday. He called me up on the telephone, said he had a job for me. He asked me to come to his home. I went. then he began to ask me questions about Big Rapids and I saw what he was after, that he wished to make some money and I though I would help him. On cross exam, Attorney Worcester questioned her closely and severely. From this it developed that Mr. Worcester had engaged Detective Kennedy and that the detective arranged a meeting with the witness and that Mr. Worcester was screened behind the door, and heard the whole conversation. Mr. Worcester asked, "What tactics did you use". Didn't have to use any. Didn't you say to Mr. Kennedy that you first tried to read palms, then cards. The witness would not admit this. Then you launched off into religious subjects. The witness said she did not launch, but did use religion. Didn't Mrs. VanTassell talk freely on religious subjects. I think she did. Didn't you say that nothing seemed to reach her until you talked religion and the she jumped that high. (Indication; nearly three feet) The Sunday that the Salvation Army was there she did seem quite affected, and did bounce up a bit. the Saturday following her confession she had the only good rest, she said. Didn't you say that if she had done such a thing, that if you were in her place, you would say so and say it was in self defense. No sir, I didn't. Didn't you say, that if she were guilty, she should tell it and say she did it in self defense. No Sir. I said if she first said she did it in self defense, it would be a great help to her now. When she said she finally wished to make the statement to the officers, did you call the officers. She told me to call the sheriff. Didn't you say several times, if I wasn't guilty I would own it, but if I was guilty, I would say I did it in self defense. No sir. Mr. Worcester brought out the point that Mrs. Dailey is a widow, divorced from her husband, getting the divorce several years ago, on the second attempt. One of her connections with detective Kennedy was a scheme, as he called it, to get Kennedy to take a woman with whom her divorced husband was keeping company, out for a taxi ride, get her drunk, and leave her on the sidewalk so that officers could arrest her and thus humiliate her husband. She admitted this and added that she wanted it done to get even with him for humiliating her. Aren't you known as a fortune teller. I do those things only when necessary. She now", she asked. "You can if you want to, but it may not help you at all", I told her. She told you about some troubles one lady held about that, said the prosecutor. She said she wanted to take some of her furniture away, and told Bobby so. She said she was poor and she had to use her pension money to support him. He didn't earn anything and was getting childish, and was kind of jealous of a man named Hunter and did not want her to go to town with him. He told her if she stayed, he would leave the farm to her when he died. The quarrel was continued, then he hit her in the eyes, but it did not get black until Saturday. Then he began to ask me questions about Mis Kapins and I saw what he was after, that he wanted to make some money and I thought I would help him. On cross exam, Attorney Worcester questioned her closely and severely. From this it developed that Mr. Worcester had engaged Detective Kennedy and that the detective arranged a meeting with the witness and that Mr. Worcester was screened behind the door, and heard the whole conversation. Mr. Worcester asked, "What tactics did you use". Didn't have to use any. Didn't you say to Mr. Kennedy that you first tried to read palms, then cards. The witness would not admit this. Then you branched off into religious subjects. The witness said she did not branch, but she was religious. Didn't Mrs. VanTassell talk freely on religious subjects, I think she did. Didn't you say that nothing seemed to reach her until you talked religion and the she harped that hope. (Indications nearly three feet). The Sunday that the Salvation Army was there she did seem quite affected, and did bounce up a bit. The Saturday following her confession she had the only good sleep, she said. Didn't you say that if she had done such a thing, that if you were in her place, you would say so and say it was in self defense. No sir, I didn't. She admitted this and added that she wanted it done to get even with him for humiliating her. Aren't you known as a fortune teller. I do those things only when necessary. She admitted that she was employed by Jake Johnson, who was paid $6 a day for her services of which she got one-half. The attorney tried to have the witness say that her pay depended on the outcome of this suit, but she said and stuck to it that she was paid for it already. Mr. Worcester also asked her whether Johnson did not want to drag her stay in Big Rapids out longer so that he would get more money, but that the prosecutor wished to hurry her. Then he asked her if she had been at Benton Harbor visiting a relative, a deputy sheriff, and there talked freely about the case. The witness admitted she did some talking, but did not say that she would not come up to Big Rapids to testify. Detective Kennedy was next placed on the stand for the defense. He is a man passed middle life. He said she first called him up some two weeks ago about a scheme she had, and then having this for an excuse, he called her up and made the appointment for last Friday. Mr. Worcester tried to prove by this man's testament that the woman detective told him about how she worked her case in Big Rapids and that she repeatedly told Mrs. VanTassell that if she did it, she did it in self defense. The last witness called was Alphonsus Thompson of Remus. This afternoon after two o'clock, Prosecutor butler began his opening argument. He went over the testimony, point by point. Linking the whole together into a chain of strong evidence. Mr. butler expected to take up most of the rest of the afternoon, giving Mr. Worcester a chance to make his argument tomorrow, after which he would make his final speech to the jury.

Mrs. VanTassell's Fate In The Hands Of Jury

This afternoon at 2 o'clock, Judge Barton began his charge to the jury. Judge Barton defined a reasonable doubt, murder in the first degree, in the second degree and manslaughter. He took up the claim of the defense of the woman's former good character, the testimony of George Hunter Jr., which was contradictory, and which the defense claimed should therefore not be considered. This, he said, was not according to the law, and the jury could consider it. The confession, he said, if voluntary, should be considered, but if made in hope of benefit or fear, should be disregarded. The judge said that in order to convict, every link in the chain of testimony must be clear, and if it appears that two conclusions are equally probable, law, justice and humanity alike demand an acquittal. The defense had submitted to the judge 24 propositions on which they asked that the jury be charged. Judge Barton charged on about half of these, and refused to charge on the others. In conclusion, he said the jury had four possible verdicts before them; murder in the first degree, murder in the second degree, manslaughter which could be done in the heat of passion and acquittal. The case went to the jury at 2:40. The following is a part of Prosecuting Attorney Butler's address to the jury, a verbatim report.

Prosecutor Butler's speech;

"The defense in this case has emphasized the fact that this respondent was coerced, subdued and driven to everything she did. They say she was taken up in my office, where there are two rooms, it appears, and told to waive this exam and "you shut up", there is the term they used, throwing upon the shoulders of the prosecuting attorney of this county the charge that I have been unfaithful to the duties of that office, and unfaithful to the duties of an American Citizen, and unfaithful to a human being. Gentlemen of the jury, I want to say in connection with that statement and I submit to you the evidence upon that proposition, it has been shown to you, not only by our witnesses but by the witnesses for the defense, that Mrs. VanTassell was taken to my office and where the office of the justice was also, she was taken into the main room and that room was packed with people. They were asked to step into the other room, in order that Mrs. VanTassell might have room without annoyance. Mrs. VanTassell took a chair in that room and even their witness, that they had hoped to prove we coerced that woman into doing something against her own free will, sat near her a few feet away, in a rocking chair. Mr. Smedley, an attorney from Grand Rapids, who had dropped into the office, Mrs. VanTassell sat there and did not know whether she wanted to have an exam or not. That I then told her, if you don't know what you want get an attorney. I can't advise you in this matter what to do. That Mr. Smedley then said, "Madam, when you are sick you want a doctor, if you are in trouble you want a lawyer, now if you don't know what to do get a lawyer before you take another step. The evidence further shows, gentlemen of the jury, that I then turned toward her and said to Mrs. VanTassell, I cannot advise you. This is Mr. Smedley, an attorney from Grand Rapids. If you don't know what you want to do, heed what he says and follow his instructions and get an attorney. This woman, gentlemen of the jury, when she came into my office, came in there, in the eye of the law, purged of crime as much as you or I. She is not guilty until proven guilty, and she is entitled to every courtesy which the law gives to you and me. Why should she, if she is innocent, the way counsel attempted to thrust upon the shoulders of an officer of this county, such a charge. They couldn't produce evidence to sustain their charge. They tried it upon cross exam. Mr. Kethum told you the same as Mr. Henderson did, in the language as I have told you, and that finally she says, "Well I will waive the exam" and as she passed out through the door in the presence of the faces of her friends from Mecosta, or those who had gathered there, who ought to be her friends, she turned and in a sneering remark she said, "Did you ever get left". Now gentlemen, there is a condition of facts, and I challenge my brother upon this record to show you that I have made a misstatement. I call your attention further to the fact that they had charged the prosecuting attorney of this county of going to the jail and wringing from that woman a false statement. Gentlemen, if I am that kind of a man, I am not fit to occupy a position in human society. The record shows that I came over to the jail in response to a telephone call and that I took with me my stenographer, employed in my office for two years. And when I went into that cell, the first thing I said to Mrs. VanTassell was, "Anything you say here must be of your own free will. I have no promises to make to you". That not only then did I speak those words, but I said it more than once. The record here shows I did that. That when we had this statement made to my stenographer, it was taken to my office and there transcribed or reduced to typewritten form, taken back to that jail and presented to this respondent, and there she signed that in the presence of Mr. Henderson and Mrs. Lyle and myself. The evidence shows it was read over to her. She signed it and I passed out. Do you see anything in my trip there to the jail that was not a part of the duties of the prosecuting attorney of this county. And yet by way of a defense or pretended defense, this defendant comes into this court and attempts to escape all responsibility as to the trial by trying the prosecuting attorney. Whose bounden duty it is to prosecute offenders of the law. Now, going back to the scene in Morton Township, there we have these people, Mrs. VanTassell, the respondent in this case, who now refuses to allow you to look upon her face, and has for all time gone by in this trial. I want to call your attention to the fact that through this trial the respondents eyes have rested in that corner and not upon the audience here, nor upon that of yourselves. I call your attention to it now, that her eyes are over there and not to your view. Going back to that home and to little George Hunter and the statement she made to William Boroff, and the statement she made to little George Hunter, coming in there as he did about 11 o'clock in the morning and found the old man sitting in the chair with his head on one side, this cane beside the chair, this broomstick. Mrs. VanTassell then upon the spur of the moment says to little George Hunter, I hit him.

The law says that statements made by a respondent at that time, or very near the time an act is committed, is evidence of the offense. It is taken the same as though the person was there, she told it to, and saw it himself. She said, "I struck him" and he died without speaking. After this had happened, and I say the evidence shows by Mrs. Lydia VanTassell, they took him out of that chair and carried him to the bedroom. Where this woman and he had occupied this bed and placed him in that same bed. There you have the character of this woman, living there with the old man, sharing the same bed with him in that isolated region of Mecosta County. After she had covered him, little George Hunter tells us that they took the old man by the shoulders and by the feet and carried him off down around the barn to the woods, until they came to an old tramway or old road, and there he says we placed him and covered him over, and that is the last I ever saw of that old man until I saw him in Mecosta that day. It is showed here that some two weeks after this that there was a searching party down there through these woods, that between the 23rd day of August last and the 21st day of November that there had been almost continuous searching of that locality. Sometimes there were few and sometimes there were 200 or more people searching these woods and the byways, swamps and crevices and isolated spots in that community. For what? For the remains of Phillip Henry Ackley. Those who were there in that search say they were unable to locate those remains and only one man has come forward here and told you that he did, and that was William Lowrie, who produced the goods in a very badly decomposed condition. One of those searching parties, while going down around on this old unfrequented logging road, came to and passed by a disturbance in the soil. He turned about and made an exam with a stick and he found he could run this stick into the ground for 18 inches or so in one place. But around there he could not run it down at all. He became suspicious right away. He got two or three other men that were there that day. They ate their dinner and went to the barn and got a spade. They came back and went to digging and right here I want to read you the dimensions of that grave. In the first place in giving the dimension of that grave, I want to say there were two roots at each end of this hold or grave and beaten the two roots it measured five feet and four inches on the outside of both roots and at the end the ground broke away. About half way down the depth or distance, it measured five feet and eight inches. This grave was about three feet and a half to four feet. I didn't measure it only by the handle of the spade, which I would say is three feet. Others tell you that hey took out the soil, put it on the bank and examined every shovelfull minutely as they took this soil out. And they found fern leaves and grass distributed down through to at least half the depth of the grave. There we are in the woods. We dig this hole and we throw out the ground. The first earth we take out passes down and lays on the leaves, the grass and ferns. We dig on and on and you know the top of the earth we take off and throw it back in there and it will be free from earthly deposits. But that which we scrape off from the ground, around the edges, will continue those elements and they were found here in this soil, we found those elements. Is there any question in your minds that that grave was not dug and replaced previous to this time. They haven't brought upon this stand one man to show that this grave was dug for any other purpose than that set forth in George Hunter's testimony and substantiated by this respondents testimony that she took that man out there and put him in that grave herself. And I want to say to you that there is no better evidence in the world than the statement of the individual who did it under ordinary conditions, and the court will charge you as to those conditions and as to the law applicable to them.

Mrs. VanTassell Freed by Jury
Fate Hung In Balance For Nearly Twenty Hours

STATEMENT BY ATTORNEY WORCESTER;

Attorney A.A. Worcester, the attorney of record, asked for a statement, said;
"I think the verdict was right. I thought so all the time and I think so yet. I am perfectly sincere in my belief."

MR. BUTLER'S VIEW;

"I don't like to make any comment. Mrs. VanTassell is now a free woman. But I want to say this, that before I issued a warrant, I made a full investigation and was morally sure that the woman was guilty. Of course the case was a hard one. There are several things however, that look strange in view of the verdict. One of these is the fact that the stories of the boy George Hunter, idiot though he may be, should correspond perfectly with the woman's confession, which she swore to. I can't hardly explain that for myself, if she is innocent, how she and an idiot boy could make up the same story."

Mrs. Lydia VanTassell is a free woman. After considering and arguing the case from every standpoint, from 2:40 yesterday afternoon until 19 o'clock this morning, the twelve men, "good and true", returned a verdict of "not guilty". Ray Maxson was elected foreman of the jury. The first ballot stood six for conviction and six for acquittal. Then it began to veer in the direction of acquittal. Altogether, something like twenty ballots were taken. The jurymen worked constantly all the time trying to get a verdict, except for the two meals that they took time to eat. At 11 o'clock last night they asked for the judges charge and read that once more before making the decision. Mrs. VanTassell was immediately released and so was George Hunter Sr. who was held as accessory after the fact. The prosecutor dismissed the case against him as soon as the verdict was rendered.

ATTORNEY WORCESTER'S DEFENSE

The following is a part of Attorney Worcester's address to the jury;

"As my brother has already said, now comes to you one of the greatest responsibilities that was ever placed on an American citizen, that of determining from the evidence here on this stand, the guilt or innocence of a fellow being charged with one of the highest crimes known to the law of this state or any other, the result of which will determine whether or not this woman, who sits here before you, and who took the stand here before you in her own behalf, goes out into the world expunged from guilt, a free woman. Or whether she for the rest of her life, or for some years to come, shall be taken to a felon's cell. And so I say to you, gentlemen of the jury, that it behooves you to remember that your responsibility is great and you cannot for one instant overlook one iota of evidence as presented from this witness stand. You have said upon your oath that you believe in the presumption of the innocence until it is proven beyond all reasonable doubt, that the defendant is guilty. And so from the outset, you remember that it does not devolve upon this woman, sitting here, to prove her innocence, but it does become the burden of the people to show that she is guilty, and that beyond all reasonable doubt. You have also held up your right hand and sworn that you believe in the principal that when a case is won on circumstantial evidence that every fact, every circumstance, must be proven beyond all reasonable doubt. If you find one link in the chain of evidence that is lacking, that is not proven beyond all reasonable doubt, that has not been shown by the evidence here, one link, which to substantiate, you must go out into the realm or speculation and say "it might have been so and so" in order to establish that link, then it becomes your duty to say that this woman, sitting here, charged with this crime, is innocent. Now at the outset, we must outline the theory of the people and the theory of the respondent. The other day you said to me that you believed in the theory that if there was any innocent theory under the sun by which the respondent could be declared innocent of the crime and be consistent with the facts, given from the witness stand, that you believed in that principle. You held up your right hand and said you believed in the principle that it devolved upon the people to show substantially as a part of their own case, that there was no other theory under the sun by which the woman could be declared innocent before you could convict. Now then, right in this connection, I want to say that it is not for us the burden, it is not for this woman to show that there is some theory by which she is innocent. The burden is on the contrary is upon the people to show that there is no theory which is consistent with the facts, proven from the witness stand, which you could say beyond all reasonable doubt, that she is innocent. Now then, what is the theory of the people. Here I submit to you, if you have followed this evidence carefully, that it is a fantastic theory, that it is a theory born in the imagination of a few people, living over there in that country, which I will show later have a motive for trying to fasten the guilt upon this woman. Their theory is upon the 23rd day of August last, this woman got up in the morning, that she had an altercation with this old gentleman with whom she had been living for four years. That during this altercation a blow was struck by virtue of which the old man came to his death. That they then tried to prove to you that upon the arrival of George Hunter Jr, the witness placed upon the stand here, that she and little George took this old man and put him in his bed, covered him up, hitched up their horse and went to town and left him there on that bed until they returned. That when they returned in the evening, that boy took this old man by the shoulders and the woman took him by the heels and they took him by this cranberry marsh and buried him in the road. And they tried to show you, and it is a part of their theory, that on the night of the 25th which was on Sunday, that George Hunter Sr came along on the scene, took up this old man and put him there in the cranberry marsh in the water. Now why is that a part of their theory. Because, when they opened what they called a grave, they did not find anybody there. They did not find anything there, so they had to find some way to show you that this old man had been killed and they could not do it simply by showing that there was what appeared to be a hole in the ground, because there was no body there. So they outlined to you the theory that on the night of the 25th, that is the only proof they have in the case Sunday night, some time between then and Monday morning, that this body was taken out of the ground by old man Hunter and put out there in the cranberry marsh. Well they searched the cranberry marsh and they couldn't find him in the cranberry marsh. Now they searched this country, they claim, far and wide. That is their theory. And finally they came upon the old man out in the woods, about 40 rods from the road, running east and west out of Mecosta, and about 38 or 40 rods from the road that turns in northwest from this road, there they found him. Now they have sought to show you the motive for this. They have here a conglomeration of motives. One is that they got into a quarrel over ten dollars and she struck him a blow that resulted in his death. This is one theory. Then the other one is that she knew she was going to get this farm and she wanted to hasten things along, and tapped the old man on the head and caused his death. This is another one of their theories. They have tried to show that because she had a black eye that was some evidence of this woman's of evidence that is lacking, that is not proven beyond all reasonable doubt, that has not been shown by the evidence here, one link, which to substantiate, you must go out into the realm of speculation and say "it might have been so and so" in order to establish that link, then it becomes your duty to say that this woman, sitting here, charged with this crime, is innocent. Now at the outset, we must outline the theory of the people and the theory of the respondent. The other day you said to me that you believed in the theory that if there was any innocent theory under the sun by which the respondent could be declared innocent of the crime and be consistent with the facts, given from the witness stand, that you believed in that principle. You held up your right hand and said you believed in the principle that it devolved upon the people to show substantially as a part of their own case, that there was no other theory under the sun by which the woman could be declared innocent before you could convict. That when they returned in the evening, that they took this old man by the shoulders and the woman took him by the heels and they took him to this cranberry marsh and buried him in the sand. And they tried to show you, and it is a part of their theory, that on the night of the 25th which was on Sunday, that George Hunter Jr came along on the scene, took up this old man and put him there in the cranberry marsh in the water. Now why is that a part of their theory. Because, when they opened what they called a grave, they did not find anybody there. Now they searched this country, they claim, far and wide. That is their theory. And finally they come upon the old man out in the woods, about 10 rods from the road, running east and west out of Wanecks, and about 35 or 40 rods from the road that turns in northwest from this road, there they found him. Now they have sought to show you the motive for this. They have a conglomeration of motives. One is that they got into a quarrel over ten dollars and she struck him a blow that resulted in his death. This is another one of their theories. They have tried to show that because she had a black eye that was some evidence of this woman's guilt. On the other hand, while it does not devolve upon the defense in this case, to show any theory whatever, as to how this man came to his death, yet we have this theory. And I submit to you that it is the true theory. That is, upon the morning of the 23rd of august this old woman wanting to go to Mecosta, went to the house of Gail Everett and tried to get him to hitch up the horse because it was getting late and little George Hunter had not yet appeared on the scene. That she finally came back. Gail Everett did not come over. Georgie came up from town and together they hitched up the horse. That the old man stood right there while he was doing it. And he watched him hitch up that horse and when they had that horse hitched up it was so near noon that she suggested that they go in and have something to eat. They went in and got something to eat and that the old man Ackley, the old man whom people are trying to show you was feloniously killed by the hand of this woman, sat down at the table with this witness, George Hunter Jr, and this respondent and ate his dinner. That after the lunch they went out to the buggy, where it was hitched, untied the horse and went to the village of Mecosta. And as they were untying the horse there was the dog and to avoid his following them to town, she asked Mr. Ackley if he would not put the dog in the house. And the last that this woman, the respondent her, saw of the old man he was not as the people say, lying in bed, covered up, but he was taking that little dog into the house. That when they came in the afternoon, or along in the evening, the old gentleman was not there. That they went down to the cement bridge and walked in the water to see if perhaps the old man had not gotten down there and fallen into the creek. Not finding him there, they went back along the road until they came to the bridge leading up towards Mr. Sapp's place and they looked there and he was not there. That they went up and hunted some more that night and in the morning the first thing after breakfast, little George Hunter started for town and she tells him to go and notify Joe Wending that the old man has disappeared. And what does she do. Why she goes up to Bill Boroff and tells him. Now our theory, gentlemen, is this. that the old man, 86 years of age, after these two people had left for Mecosta that day, had wandered off and from exhaustion or we don't know what, and nobody knows, and nobody will ever know, dropped down there on the ground and died. And that he laid there, gentlemen of the jury, from the time that he dropped there on the day until he was found on the 21st day of November. Now that is our theory. Now I am going to take a few minutes, maybe longer, in trying to show you which theory is more consistent with the facts as shown from this witness stand and which theory is more probable." Mr. Worcester then examined the evidence in detail until court adjourned at 5:30 and Friday morning took it up again.

point. On the other hand, while it does not devolve upon the defense in this case, to show any theory whatever, as to how this man came to his death, yet we have this theory. And I submit to you that it is the true theory. That is, upon the morning of the 23rd of August this old man, wanting to go to Manteca, went to the house of Gail Everett and tried to get him to hitch up the horse because it was getting late and little George Hunter had not yet appeared on the scene. That she finally came here. Gail Everett did not come over. Georgie came up from town and together they hitched up the horse. That the old man stood alone there, while he was doing it. And he watched him hitch up that horse and when they had that horse hitched up it was so near noon that she suggested that they go in and have something to eat. They went in and got something to eat and that the old man Ackley, the old man whom people are trying to show you was feloniously killed by the hand of this woman, sat down at the table with this witness, George Hunter Jr, and this respondent and ate his dinner. That they went down to the cement bridge and waded in the water to see if perhaps the old man had not gotten down there and fallen into the creek. Not finding him there, they went back along the road until they came to the bridge leading up towards Mr. Kipp's place and they looked there and he was not there. That they went up and hunted some more that night and in the morning the first thing after breakfast, little George Hunter started for town and she tells him to go and notify Joe Manning that the old man has disappeared. And what does she do. Why she goes up to Gail Everett and tells him. Now our theory, gentlemen, is this, that the old man, 86 years of age, after these two people had left for Manteca that day, had wandered off and from exhaustion or we can't know what, and nobody knows, and nobody will ever know, dropped down there on the ground and died. Mr. Forcester then examined the evidence in detail until court adjourned at 5:30 and Friday morning took it up again.

Dear Helen,

Thanks a lot for sending me the news about the storm in Ottawa Co. It is a shame that so much was lost and lucky that no one was injured. I hate to read about those old buildings being blown down. My great grandfather James Saddoris had a barn near to the Hemmingers and that might be gone now too, if it hadn't already fallen down from old age. Vernon Hemminger's uncle built grandpa Saddoris' house there from a Sears kit.

One strange thing that I keep forgetting to write to you about is a bunch of mentions of Nicholas Root in Genealogical Abstracts of Revolutionary War Pension Files, Virgil D. White, 1992, the big compilation of pension applications in four volumes. These guys, listed below, all in CT, seem to have sold their land warrants to a Nicholas Root.

p263 Judah Bills BLW #12835-100-15 Sep 1790, assignee Nicholas Root, Pvt in the Invalid Regt, 1003 Gersham Dorman BLW #5721-100-15 Sep 1790 to N.Root, pvt in Sheldon's Dragoons (CT), lived in Sharon CT,
1263 Jack Freedom BLW #5795-100-15 Sep 1790 to Nicholas Root, srv as a Pvt in the CT Line
1360 Eleaser Gilson BLW #5862-100-15 Sep 1790 to Nicholas Root, srv as a Pvt in the CT Line, 1893 Alexander Judd BLW #6029-100-15 Sep 1790 to Nicholas Root, Pvt CT Line, 3677 Amasa Warner, BLW #6655-100-15 Sep 1790 assignee N.Root, srv as Pvt in the CT line, 3736 Isaac Welding or Wilding, BLW #6659-100-15 Sep 1796 assignee N.Root, srv as pvt in Sheldon's Dragoons (CT)

None in Columbia Co NY or Chenango Co in 1790, 1800 census

The only other Nicholas that I've found was a younger fellow who first shows up in the 1820 census in Claverack, Columbia Co. From the name of his wife and children, he sounds like a Dutch or German immigrant and he went to the Dutch Reformed Church.

I don't know just how to look into this, except to order copies of some of these warrants and look for clues such as where the land was. If you have any ideas, please give them a try.

Yes, a lot of the CDs aren't worth buying, as you check them once and that is the end of it. But I do like the census indexes. I use those over and over. And a CD with Jacobus' Families of Ancient New Haven is useful. The new Revolutionary War records for New York is a good one too, as it has lots of extra stuff like signers of Articles of Association and 1779 tax records that are hard to find otherwise.

After an unusual cool spring, summer finally set in this week. Too bad, I was enjoying the nice weather. I installed Windows 98 last week and all went well. It cured some of the problems I was having, but it still seems overpriced. At least most computer hardware keeps getting cheaper.

Charlie

I don't think that it makes much difference what kind of computer you have as far as choice of modem. As with other products, modems are distinquished by FEATURES, most of which we don't really need. PCMagazine reviewed modems about a month ago and rated 3Com U.S. Robotics Courier V.Everything Modem as tops. This costs about $290 external, $250 internal, and should be a good one! Their rating is based mainly on how well the modem can cope with poor phone connections. There is nothing that I do that needs such perfection, so I don't pay much attentions to these ratings.

Maybe you'll have warm weather for Christmas in TN. My Christmas won't be as pleasant as usual. I usually spend a week then with my sister and b-i-l, but she being operated on for breast cancer tomorrow, the 15th, and we don't know what happens next. Our Christmas dinner will be at her daughter's home this year. Her two sons live in the East, but one or the other often is in Los Angeles for Christmas. My two sons will be there, as usual. They both live in Los Angeles too.

Dear Helen,

Little news from this end. I'm still busy with genealogy, but almost entirely with the Footes - what a complex family! I'm in the process of reading the 1855 census for Chenango Co. This was a very informative census and I'm finding some earlier generation people still living to be included, good stuff, but I haven't worked it over yet to see if there is anything really helpful. This would be just families in collateral lines like Parker, Jones and Baylis.

I learned of the Friends of Mt Hope Cemetery via CompuServe and was told that they can be a big help. You can tell from the enclosed letter that they do try, but it seems that Sally Sprague Root's grave is going to stay lost. Every couple of months someone new turns up with a Root line that starts in western NY about 1840. At least some of these must be related to our line, but we need something like a family bible to make any progress in straightening all this out.

It may be that both Crippen newsletters are out of business. I haven't heard from the one published in Michigan for about a year and the good one put out by Donna Logan is about 6 months late. I exchange e-mail with her regularly, but now she has been silent for several weeks. She has been successful in locating some new family records that added a lot of new information. Without her newsletter it is a lot less likely that we'll ever identify Eunice.

No word from Donna Gyde. Do you ever have reason to go to the Ottawa Co Genealogical Soc meetings? I wonder whether she is doing anything with them now. What a shame that all those good photos just sit there. Some of them include your Dilleys so I don't understand why you aren't knocking on her door. I want to go back to reading those old Oak Harbor newspapers again soon. That was one of the most enjoyable things I've done with genealogy. Fun and informative too. Lots of the family came back to visit Grandma Williams in those days and got written up in the paper.

Yours, Charlie

Dear Mr. Tieman:

I'm happy to reply to your inquiry of March 19, 1996, but must return your check. The thought is greatly appreciated, but I'm unable to offer $10 worth of assistance.

Mt. Hope has no records of its own concerning removals from the West Brighton Rural Cemetery other than the lot drawing for 175 Section W, which is what you undoubtedly saw when you were here. And that drawing was put together in 1957 on the basis of a field inspection; the data are all from inscriptions on the few markers there. 175 W is the lot purchased in 1893 by the removal commissioners and contains only remains that no one else could be induced to transfer. As you know, there is no marker for a Sally Root.

The removal list you mention is undoubtedly the one given to the Town of Brighton historian by a Mrs. Morgan Klock. It is our supposition that it's probably reasonably reliable affirmatively, but that absence of a name doesn't mean very much. I would say that if your usually reliable family records place her at Mt. Hope, she's probably here, but proof is impossible.

The only other thing I could do was check the roster of the WBRC compiled by Richard T. Halsey of the Rochester Genealogical Society; he did the definitive work on the subject. But his list includes no Roots. I also checked Halsey's lists for the "East" and "West" cemeteries (Monroe St. and Buffalo St. respectively), without any luck.

A last resort was Mt. Hope's list of lot owners here, but that didn't turn out any Root.

None of this, I can assure you, took much time; if it had, or if we had somehow found Sally Root, we would accept your donation and add it to the restoration fund.

Dear Helen,

I'm sure late in responding to your last letter about going to western Michigan. It's been a long summer. I'm really getting too old for this business and everything takes longer than it used to. The harvest still isn't over. All the crops are late this year and that is causing problems because our rainy season is starting now. I've had my house repainted and hope to have it on the market by the end of the year. The harvest is so late that I couldn't plan a trip east this year.

Old Lorenzo Dow Root has been eluding you for quite a few years now. Better watch out over Halloween that he doesn't play some tricks on you. His family must be the most tangled of any that I've seen. Seems that he must have had a third wife Mercy after Amanda dumped him. I can understand why his descendants aren't doing genealogy, would rather forget the whole thing. I'll bet that someone in the Hiram Lee line will turn up eventually, though.

The Cass Co Roots are connected with Eber Root #1432, descended from Thomas Root of Hartford.

I heard from Donna Gyde a few weeks after the big storm. She said that my grandfather's old home was completely destroyed, all gone now. Of course, I followed up with a plea for the photos, but she said no more. I have no idea how her mind works.

Most of my time is still devoted to the Northamptonshire records. I've checked 49 films so far. The families related to the Roots are interesting to follow, but there just aren't any records for the Roots themselves, only four wills in the whole county before 1700. But I keep hoping that a Root will be mentioned in one of the other wills. I'll soon check the wills in the adjoining county, Warwickshire. Our distant Rushall cousin (about 12th cousin) over there still hasn't collected all her papers in order to send me her family story, and now she's been laid up with heart problems. I hope she hangs in there a while more.

If you have any ideas on the Spragues let me know. I correspond off and on with a few others working with their Spragues and everyone is discouraged. The families in New England are covered pretty well, but after they move west the lines fizzle out real soon. If I had the time, I'd go back to reading the Sprague references that have been indexed by the Mormons. It is tedious, because most of them end up as just snippets copied from a standard source. You have to order each film and read it to find this out. But you never know whether something new will turn up. I don't expect to find our Sally in any public record.

There used to be two Crippen newsletters. The original one disappeared about four years ago.

And now the other one, which was really a good one, seems to have gone out of business. The publisher, Donna Logan, had visited the Shay family and had copied all of their files. This family spent a lot of money hiring people to do research starting long before I did. Donna was going to publish this stuff, but I think that health problems have done her in now. That's one problem with genealogists, too many of us are already on the verge of becoming history ourselves.

I sure hope that Dave has found something by now. I remember from my working days how worrying job security can be. My two sons are hanging in there, not happily, but at least they don't seem to be on the verge of any disaster, for now anyway. Having been through divorce myself, I can understand somewhat why your son would be "whacked out". Time cures slowly.

Yours,

Charlie

Dear Helen,

I was hoping that you already had a modem. You certainly don't need a modern, state of the art modem. Mine is several years old and does fine. It is only 28.8K, not the latest 56K V.90, but I don't have 56K service available anyway. If you are willing to open up your computer and put in a modem on a board, those are cheaper. It is much easier to install an external one that just plugs into one of your serial ports. Those cost more because they have a case and their own power supply. You can get them around here for under $50. If you have a friendly local dealer, or know people like in a computer club, you should find old models under $30, or for free. There must be 100s of modems like mine thrown in the trash everyday by people upgrading to the latest kind.

I buy most of my computer stuff from Computability (in Milwaukee, 1-800-554-1638), good prices, good service. Their cheapest modem in the latest catalog is $58, 56K V.90 for an internal modem, but they often have them on special. I also like computer road shows, where you pay $5 to enter a big room containing a bunch of dealers. These shows have the best prices. There will be one in Toledo Dec 26 & 27 at Great Hall, Stranahan Theatre, 4645 Heatherdowns Blvd.

It is hard to recommend any particular ISP, the people you pay a monthly fee to for access to the service. Of course, if you use Juno you don't need this. Becky Guess uses Juno for e-mail, as do lots of genealogists around here, but there are disadvantages to it too, the main one being that you can't access the Word Wide Web, and that is where all the neat stuff is, the shopping, the support pages for various companies and all the genealogy sites for counties around the country.

Most ISPs charge about $20 a month, although a few around here go as low as $15. The most important thing is reliability. Will the ISP stay in business? You don't want to lose your e-mail address after using it for a year. If you lose it, your correspondents can't find you anymore. The other reliability issue is that the ISP can handle the load of traffic. If it breaks down or is overloaded, you can't get on line and it is useless. My ISP is run by AT&T and you'd expect it to be first rate, but we, locally, still only have 28.8K service and no signs of a bump up in speed to 56K any time soon. My sister in Los Angeles used AT&T Worldnet, but the problem there was poor access. They had trouble getting on line, something I never have trouble with. So they quit AT&T and went to a local service. AOL around here has poor service, lots of complaints. So it all depends on local conditions.

It would be nice to have two phone lines. Some people get irritated that they can't call me when I'm on line for an hour at a time. My sister had two lines for a couple of years, but they don't now. I guess it depends on how many calls you'd expect to receive that would be interfered with by being on line. My phone bill is usually around $30, but I don't make many long distant calls. I don't have any experience with using the Internet phone services, the voice stuff. I'd sure check it out if I had relatives with computers that I called a lot on the phone.

I get very, very irritated with Internet genealogy. There are too many people looking for instant family history, people who have never read a family history book, a county history or even looked at a map. I used to enjoy helping people, answering queries, but no longer. I don't see why I should spend my time helping them when they have done nothing themselves. But, I suffer through all this garbage looking for the exceptions, the few other people out there who are serious about the business. All of this e-mail exchange is via the Lists. These you subscribe to; all messages to the List are sent out to all subscribers. For example, I subscribe to local Lists like for Ottawa, Sandusky, Holmes Co, OH. Of these, Sandusky has messages almost every day. Holmes & Ottawa not more than one a month. Somerset Co, PA, has several a day. I also subscribe to surname lists, Foote, Crippen, Lewis, Graves, Rutherford and so on. Most of these only have a few messages a week and 75% are for people in the southeast, like TN. There sure were lots of families lost in the south! Some lists have knowledgable people as subscribers. A fellow who has published books on Graves history is available at their list. The Tubbs list had no one but me who had ever even seen a Tubbs history. I quit that one. On the Foote list, there are a few people who actually own the Foote books, but most seem to have never even heard of them.

The information at the county web sites varies widely. Monroe Co, NY, has almost all their cemetery records on line. Many other NY counties have none. It all depends on how many volunteers the owner of the site has been able to recruit to enter all that stuff.

I'm looking forward to getting some e-mail from you!

Here is a message fm John Root, one of the Cleveland bunch:

Subject: Update to Root Family
From: "John Root" <JAROOT-895@worldnet.att.net>
Date: Wed, 13 Jan 1999 19:08:23 -0500

Charlie,
I recieved you last e-mail and read it to my father. His mother, my grandmother, Etta Mae Engler died around 1976. The story you were told was incorrect. I remember my grandmother very well.

The reason the children were put into an orphanage was because my granparents had split up and my grandmother could not take care of them. This is what my father told me.

As for William, dad said his uncle Bill had moved back to Missouri, somewhere in the Ozarks, and passed away at the age of 109.
Do the Root's that live in the San Francisco area remember my father Otis? Everyone calls him Pete.

Richard Root lives somewhere in our neighborhood. No one in the family associates with him. He was in trouble with the law sometime back. Dad doesn't know where Robert is.

I don't know where in California you live, but my cousin Mikki lives in Sacramento. I wrote to her and told her that I was corresponding with you. Here is her e-mail address mikki4art@aol.com. She's a lawyer and her husband is a dentist. She can tell you a little more about our grandfather Francis Marion, he used to live with them.

Is there any information you would like to know about any of the immediate family?

Please write if you have anymore information for me, I do appreciate it.

John

I don't remember why I thought that Etta Mae had died, unless it seemed logical because they were sent to the orphanage. His Quigg cousins that the "orphans" moved in with, Martha Quigg's family, remember the bunch because they were such trouble makers. One of them attacked one of the Quiggs with a knife. After that incident, they were sent back to the orphanage. I don't intend to tell John that story <g>.

The Quiggs remember Otis because he took on the Peter/Pete name when he became Catholic! The Richard and Robert that he mentions were sons of his father's uncle William Root. I know nothing about them except that his cousin Wayne Root mentioned them to me. Frankly, I'm not real interested in tracking down all these more-recent generations. Let them find us if they are interested.

William Root is the fellow who ended up with Simon B.'s box of papers. He then gave it to Bertha (Quigg) Claucherty, saying that his family had no interest in it or him. Of course, all of the above is hearsay, and not very reliable. I wonder whether his sister has any interest in family history.

Good evening,

If you've searched the Internet for mentions of ROOT, you may have run into Jay Root, who lives in Dexter, MI, <Rootcj3500@aol.com> Last year he started an informal mail list of people he's found who have an interest in the name. He picked up my list of ancestors, that seems to be circulating around, and said that he'd add it to his collection. I replied ok, but leave out the English ancestry that he is reporting and that I think is mostly fictitious. But he put it in anyway under my name, to my disgust. I don't think that Jay does anything you could call research.

Another guy, named Haak if I remember right, has a very large listing of names and dates on his web site. I seem to have completely lost any reference to his name and URL. He is a long-time researcher and we used to exchange messages 6-7 yrs ago on GEnie about the Roots. I think that he actually visited England and the area around Badby, but didn't do any research there. For reasons I can't fathom, he has some really bizarre stuff in his pedigrees for the English families. Surprising that he is not more conservative.

You'll remember Abigal or Lovisa Hewitt who m1 C.O. Leiter and m2 Frank Leslie (according to Martha Quigg). I have an Index to the 1880 census for Wood Co pub by the Wood Co OGS and in there is a Frank Lesslie in Plain Twp. I finally got around to ordering the 1880 OH soundex a few weeks ago to check this. Turns out that it actually was Frank Legally ae 16 with his father Myron. So it goes. Can't win sometimes.

Hi again Helen,

>It was a bit exciting waking up this a.m. to an e-mail - now I know it works!

It works, it works good!!

>Yes, I am using a month trial AOL. I have had no trouble getting on line when AOL must work pretty well considering how many people are using it.

You also could send a message to Becky asking how she likes juno.com.

For genealogy, there is nothing to compare with rootsweb.com
http://www.rootsweb.com/ You can get practically anywhere in the genealogy world from there. You'll find a list of options on the left border of the opening page. I mostly use the one called "Mail Lists".
If you click on that, you'll start exploring the 1000s of lists, the surname and location lists being most interesting. You just send e-mail to the list to subscribe and after that it all is automatic.
For example, to subscribe to the Rowley surname list, send a message to ROWLEY-L-REQUEST@ROOTSWEB.COM You don't need the caps, I only used caps to show it is "L", not "1". The word "request" is only used when subscribing and unsubscribing. You leave the Subject blank and just put "subscribe" in the Text part of your message. Nothing else, don't need to state your name or address.

I subscribe to lots, rowley, graves, parker, rutherford, evans, lewis lee, foote, etc. And for places, Ottawa, Sandusky, Medina, Holmes Co, OH; Southwest MI; Berks, Bedford, Somerset Co, PA; Columbia, Chenango, Monroe, Orleans, etc, NY;

The Crippen list is run differently. You subscribe by sending e-mail to majordomo@intrepid.net , with "subscribe crippen-news REHelen@aol.com" as the message, leaving out the " ", nothing in the Subject line. The mail, not much, will come from crippen-news@intrepid.net

If you change your address, you'll need to unsubscribe and resubscribe to your lists. These lists are monitored and usually you don't get any garbage, but it sometimes leaks through anyway.

The only other thing I access through rootsweb are the State sites.
Some of these are really getting useful. For example, at the Orleans Co, NY, site you can find readings of most of their cemeteries and much of their censuses, not the indexes but the whole census!! I haven't had time to read all this, but intend to as there were several interesting old Root settlers there.

>Did I send you copies of the census which shows Charles C. Lee is living with

Hi Helen !! Congratulations on starting out the New Year with a new project. This will use up the last of your free time, as if you had any <g>

Why use Juno if you are already on AOL? But perhaps you are using one of those trial offers of xxx hours of free service.

(copied from someone's message)

Get completely free e-mail from Juno at
or call Juno at (800) 654-JUNO [654-5866]"

I think that you only get e-mail for free. For access to the WorldWideWeb, I think that they charge. Double click on the above URL, the part that starts "http://..., and perhaps you'll be taken to that site for more information. "Perhaps", because these things don't always work right.

Now that I've heard from you, I realize that it has been weeks since hearing from Becky Sager Guess, bsguess@juno.com. But this happens a lot. People exchange messages for a while and then, for unknown reasons, disappear again.

A couple of weeks ago, I heard from John Root, <JAROOT-895@worldnet.att.net>, one of the Cleveland bunch. His father was Otis Evan son of Marion Francis son of Simon Beebe Root. He doesn't know any family history, but did ask his father, now ae 80 and mostly blind, about photos. He has some and is trying to find them.

No reply from my latest set of begging letters to Gerald Root and Darlene DeBres. Nothing recent from Donna Gyde, unfortunately, donnagyde@rocket.nwohio.com >so haven't explored much but was anxious to try an e-mail. We are having first >snow of the season and it is a blizzard!

I saw on the news tonight that you're being hit with bad weather. I hope that it improves by the time you have to go back to work.

Charlie

>John Wallace Lee in MO? I think I did because I was critical of her research.

I don't remember hearing about this census.

I'm also sending an attachment, a scan of V.S. Root photo called vsroot03.jpg. This is for you to practise with, if you wish. Most people using AOL can't open attachments without first downloading another program. I'll send instructions for doing this if you get around to wanting or needing it.

I see that in the latest Marshland to Heartland, Donna Gyde's address is now donnagyde@nwohio.com and that she includes Foote and Root in her surname list. That's surprising considering that she tells me when I ask for her help that those were Beryl's family, not of interest to her.

Laverne Root's address, if you are interested, which I doubt <g>, is vernroot@t-one.net

Charlie

Dear Charles,
I have an Ephraim H. Root married to Hezzy Streeter in my family tree. Hezzy died in 1913, and was born between 1813-1838, in Edwards [St Lawrence Co], NY. Her father, Warren Streeter moved to Calhoun Co., first, and then to Ottawa County. The youngest son of Warren, Guy Streeter bought land in Wexford Co., around Manton in 1873. My mother was born up there in 1920, so the family stayed around that area for a number of years. Unfortunately, I don't have any other information about Ephraim Root other than his name. If you come across any, please reply. Thanks!! Margie Roti Roti

Dear Charlie,
I really don't know anything else about Ephraim Root. Hezzy Streeter (daughter of Hezzy Foster Streeter) died in Ottawa Co., Michigan, Feb. 21, 1913. She is supposed to be buried in the Wright Advent Cemetery, which I think is now called Maple Hill Cemetery. I haven't heard from my sister (who recently went to Coopersville) as to whether or not she ran across any info concerning them. Of course, they were not the primary individuals I asked her to look for, so I am not particularly hopeful.

Since Hezzy Streeter Root was buried near Coopersville-Wright area, I assume she probably lived in the region. But, her husband could have been old enough to have fought in the Civil War, so guessing on a time for his passing isn't worthwhile. I don't have access to census records, so I can't easily find the bits and pieces to put the puzzle together, sorry.

If you come across a reference for Ephraim, please let me know. Thanks!
Date: Sat, 12 Sep 1998 17:50:37 -0500

Dear Charlie,
Thought I would let you know I found a reference for Root surname--in the Chronicles of Coopersville (Ottawa Co.)--"Emma Stiles, a daughter of Chauncy S. Stiles and Emily Averill, married George Root, the implement dealer pictured on page 44." My sister photocopied the page (106)-so I don't have page 44, or a good reference to the time period for this-except that Chauncy's father's wife was born in 1823--so I would add at least 40 years--maybe around 1860? for birth of Emma. Take Care!

Dear Helen:

I am SO relieved! I just found my negatives of the pictures of Henry Wallace Lee, son of Sophia Root. I was very concerned and had resigned myself to their loss--the negatives strips had pictures of other ancestors which would have been an additional loss.

I haven't done anything recently on genealogy--I've had other "irons in the fire" as my dad used to say. I will have these copied and send them to you next week.

Has the snow let up for a while? When you wrote to me you said that you had been snowed in.

Happy Trails, Becky Guess

Hey there!!

Glad to hear from you!! Great that you are on line!! I'm sorry that I have not responded to your latest communication, but with the holiday, entertaining and the trip to Ark for 4 days I've been so busy.

I am glad that I found a copy of the picture of Henry Wallace Lee, Sophia's son, to send to you. I still can't find my negatives, but next week I will have the picture copied and send it to you. Haven't done anything in the way of genealogy for the past two months, and I can't wait to get back in to it.

We went to Arkansas to work on the house and the weather was very cold. It was eighteen degrees Sunday morning. Luckily the rain didn't start until after we got there and cleared up Saturday afternoon so that the roads were dry and free of ice for our return trip. Thank Heaven. The only ice we saw was the chunks falling off the Allied Moving Van from Michigan. BBBBrrrrr!!!!

I hope that you had a very Merry Christmas and I wish you a very prosperous and happy New Year. Thanks again for all that you have shared with me. Do I have anything that you would like to have--anything that you have asked for and I have forgotten to send to you? My memory is terrible. Is there anything that I could check on for you on any of your family lines here in Houston at Clayton Library? Be glad to do it for you because of your kindness and geneousity to me.

You have a great day and keep warm!

Best Wishes, Becky

That has never happened to me. I suspect some glitch in your system. The web page is really just a bunch of text that calls up some graphic files. If you save a web page and look at it with a word processor set to show the HTML coding, you can see all this background stuff.

>When a site wants me to join or register, what am I obligating myself for?
>Most don't show that I need to pay anything and a few want me to register >before I can see actual records.

The only pay-to-view site I can remember is Ancestry.com. I think that it is safe to register for the month free use. I signed up over a year ago for a year of paid viewing, but it was so slow then that I never used it. Then they extended my membership a couple of months ago without asking me. That led to phone calls, e-mails, etc, but I think/hope that it is straightened out now. Ancestry has changed owners yet again, and they seem to be trying to be friendly for a change.

When I download a trial version of a program, or some upgrade, the company often asks for name and e-mail address. I feel that they deserve to know this. I order software and hardware on the Internet and have never had a problem. I think that it is as safe as giving out my credit card number at the local hardware store.

>I am always amazed how people met the people they married. Sometimes it seems

Other interesting stories and mysteries are why people happened to move to where they did. My favorite is how come Jane Saddoris, sister of Elias Saddoris, my gg gfa, happen to be in Sandusky Co in 1831 to marry Edson Davenport? They later moved to Carroll Twp, my earliest relatives there.

>I received a contract from Ancestry yesterday for permission to put my >article on their web page. I wrote the article in 1995 and was paid for it >then and they will pay me again for this permission.

I'm glad to hear about this.

If you want a reliable opinion of AOL, ask our almost-cousin Sheila Johnson, SheilaAnnJ@aol.com She lives in Grand Junction CO. Her ancestor Christian Lacy lived with Enos Williams as a boy for a couple of years around 1870. She is a serious researcher. We've been exchanging messages for over a year.

I'm reading "Democracy in the Connecticut Frontier Town of Kent" by Charles S. Grant. It is a very interesting reconstruction of the social structure 1740-1800. Kent is next south of Sharon, where the Foote and Crippen ancestors lived. I'm thinking of giving up on the Northamptonshire records and going back to Connecticut. The author of this book found much interesting info in the County and state archives and I'm going to look at them too. Perhaps none of the earlier Crippen researchers never looked there and something new might be found.

Dear Helen and Charlie:

I'm sorry that it has taken a while to get these pictures to the both of you. I was very relieved to find the negatives and I hope that the two of you will forgive my delay in exchanging information with you. Please accept my apology in writing a "form" letter, but I wanted to save time and get this in the mail to you as quickly as possible.

The wedding picture of Henry and Virginia is actually a photograph of an old tintype that was in a scrapbook that had belonged to my great grandmother, Lucy Ann Lee, their oldest child. They were married August 24, 1867 in Crawford County, Arkansas.

There was no date on the later picture of Henry and Virginia. To help you date it, Henry died in Neosho, Newton County, Missouri on March 15, 1923, at the age of 81. He appears, at least to me, to be younger than 80 years old in that picture.

I've thanked the both of you repeatedly for your generousity in sharing you information with me, but I do want you to know how much I appreciate your kindness in sharing your hard work with me.

If either of you need any research done in Clayton Genealogical Library in Houston, please do not hesitate to contact me and I will be glad to help you.

With Very Best Wishes,

Becky

Helen,

I spent last Thursday at the Sutro library, but didn't learn anything much. I've worked on my own family so much, so long, that I never expect to find anything useful. But I look for everyone with the family surnames anyway.

I check all the new books that they get in and check indexes in county histories, the Michigan ones being most productive. This trip, I looked up some of my aunts and uncles in the old Los Angeles area city directories. Maybe someday I can drive by some of their old homes and see if I can recognize them.

One of our Root cousins is trying to identify her John Root who died in Tionesta, Forest Co, PA. That is where Sharon Shulin lives, who is descended from Tryphena Hewitt, and who has yet to send me her information. But she stays in contact.

Anyway, this other person, Paula Gruginski, has found an obit that says that her John Root was b Madison Co, NY. There was a known John born there, but he is said to have moved to Monroe Co, MI. He patented land there in Ash Twp in 1835. The War of 1812 vets who died in Michigan pages that you sent me long ago have this John as dying in Grafton, Monroe Co. But hope springs eternal! The interesting thing is that Paula is on a crab boat in the Bering sea at present. She is hooked to the Internet via their radio system. They just went through a big storm and one of their small boats was lost, including some people. It sounds like some sea story of 100 years ago.

Alt Bukow is far from where my great grandmother Lena (Marien) Walters came from. Too bad. There is an 1819 census for Mecklenburg, very handy to identify which village to look in, if the name isn't real common, like Wolter. My experience is that most people identify the home town of their German ancestor in the IGI. There is not much else to turn to.

My e-mail to auntboo@wordnet.att.net came back, wrong address. That is Becky Pegorsch, 1426 Prouty Ave, Toledo, 419-381-6895. She lists Ramm & Leiter surname interests. Do you happen to know her? I guess I could check the queries on the Ottawa Co web page to see if she has a listing there. If that gen soc ever has a meeting topic that sounds half-way interesting I hope you go to it and ask Donna about the glass plates. There surely are some Dilley pictures among them.

One son is coming up late next week for a visit and then the other a couple of weeks after. I'd better start cleaning house <g>

All the storms that have come through central Calif have gone north of us and I'll have to start irrigating in a week or so if nothing shows up. I hate the first irrigation because stuff gets damaged every year during almond harvest and it is a pain to get it running again.

Helen,

I suspect that some of my e-mails are not getting through to you. In any case, I sold off 10 acres of my farm, still have 13 acres. I bought the 10 originally in 1976 and then the other parcel about ten years later. The 10 is fairly flat and has the good almond trees, while the 13 is hilly and the trees don't grow very well. I had my storage buildings on the 10 so the unpleasant task of moving all my collection of junk ("collectibles") resulted from having to empty them.

My house and the 13 ac is off the market now. I'll probably try again in the spring. The house is under 1600 sq ft and people around here seem to need at least twice that size.

I sold some of my old farm equipment and put lots of stuff in the trash. But I still have lots of stuff in my remaining storage bldg on the hill by my home. I shoe-horned my old grain binder into the bldg so I can work on it any time.

There are a couple of new CDs of Canadian records out now. I wonder whether they would have anything on the Howe family that was supposed to be living in Leamington.

I'm slowly dropping out of most of the genealogy lists on the Internet. I think that they are a good resource, but there is way too much chit chat and unrelated stuff being posted. But the county web sites get better and better, more cemetery and church and census records being put on line.

Thanks for the article about Grace Luebke. That woman in Toledo probably related to me via a Parman-walters marriage said in her phone call that the Elmore library has a letter written to them from Germany asking about the Parmans. She said that she'd send me a copy, but that was about two months ago and I'm still waiting.

PS
Here is a message I just got from Rick Hulvalchick, gg son of Marion Root, son of Simon B. Personally, I'm not interested in these recent generations.

Dear Helen,

No tricks from this end! As soon as I received your letter with the news about Becky Guess, I e-mailed her. She can receive my WordPerfect files by e-mail, so it was easy to send FGS to her. It looks like Sophia Root moved from Rochester along with V.S. and then married Hiram Lee in Erie Co, OH. There was only one Lee living there in 1840, James Lee, and he's probably the James that you found buried in Decatur near the other Lees and Lorenzo Root. Bennett Lee married Erie Co 9 Sep 1849 Lucy Ann Lee. I hope that Becky follows up by researching in Erie Co, because we've never found John Root in 1840. That's still a mystery.

The Internet makes finding people a lot easier than it used to be. Another cousin showed up in the last couple of weeks. This one is descended from Colista Hewitt's daughter Triphena who married Joseph John Rahm. She doesn't know much, hasn't sent me anything so far. Sharon Shulin, HC 2 Box 266, Tionesta, PA 16353 (dipata@penn.com). She is really out in the middle of no where, but not far from Olive Mae Lindel, descendant of one of Nicholas Root's brothers, who has a copy of the Root history book, which is a blessing! I don't have to send copies of all that stuff.

Another relative of mine turned up in Sandusky Co, a Clapp. Lovica (Foote) Root's sister Charlotte married Edmund Clapp, who died young. Their daughter Clara Clapp lived out her days in Clyde. This new correspondent is desc'd fm Edmund's brother Robert Clapp and her family remembers Clara!

That is really good news that Dave has his job back, whew, I'll bet you sleep better now. National prosperity and stock market records don't mean much when you've been bumped out of your job.

A lot of my genealogy friends here use Juno.com for their e-mail. It seems to work well and costs nothing, except that you need a modem. I sure wish that you were on line. Today I wrote to Darlene de Bres and to Jerry Root, asking whether they know anyone with a scanner who could send copies of their photos to me by e-mail.

Hello Helen,

New and interesting items on our history are getting harder to come by, but here are a couple of things.

The first are these interesting court records regarding Ester Root. First she is beat up by S.A. Wade in 1859 (who was he??) and then by her step-son John M. Root in 1860. She couldn't come up with any witnesses for the latter event and had to pay court costs after the case was dismissed. These court records are mostly really dull, just suits for bad debts, but once and a while there are some good ones. The only Wade I've heard of was George Wade who married in 1875 Mary Jane Parker, daughter of Simon Beebe Root's wife Elizabeth Ann Thatcher from her first marriage to David Parker.

I'm also reading the early Rochester tax lists starting 1827 and, as expected, John Root is there in 1827 & 1828 in the 5th Ward. These two lists are alphabetical, unfortunately. In 1829 he only has 1/4 acre in the center of the old lot, the rest owned by J. Downs. This fits his history, as he and Sally sold the 1 ac to Joseph Downs in 1828, moved to Brighton where she died. Then he bought back part of the lot from Downs in 1829. This is as far as I've gone with this microfilm.

Donna Gyde is living in an apartment in Oak Harbor and says that she still has the glass plate photos. But no one has been able to get her to do anything with them She is a strange bird.

It appears that one of Eunice Crippen Root's sisters may have lived in Sandusky Co. In a round about way, I learned first that her probable sister Polly married Jedediah Graves in Columbia Co, NY, in 1778. She died in Chautauqua Co, NY. Then I learned that Jedediah's brother Increase Graves married Mercy Crippen, probably Polly's sister. They later lived in Washington Co, NY, and moved to Sandusky Co about 1820 where he was an attorney. He died abt 1826. He had at least two wives, the second Susanna Stetson according to the Graves history, so Mercy probably didn't make it to Ohio. One Sandusky Co history says that Increase married a Herring just three years before he died. All this is unclear right now. Do you ever visit the Hayes Library? This would be a good thing to check there.

There also was a Selden Graves, early physician in Eden Twp, Seneca Co, OH, who is some kind of cousin of these other fellows. His wives were Louisa Savin and Clarissa Brown. I think that there are more family connections with these Graves families.

I've been working over the Parkers of Chenango Co. Simeon Parker was part of a large clan that moved there early on from New Haven Co, CT. His wife was Polly Sprague b 30 Dec 1774, possibly sister of our Sally. This was the first marriage in Coventryville. But no clue to the ancestry of Polly has turned up among the Parker histories. I had thought that this Polly Sprague was a niece of the Polly Sprague who married Simon Jones, but a will has turned up that suggests that Polly Jones was a White, not a Sprague. This is a tough thing to figure out, because there were too darn many Whites in Chenango Co and it has been impossible to sort them out. Of course, Nicholas Root probably had a daughter Eunice who married a White too. There were at least five Eunice Whites in Chenango Co, and practically none any place else in the world!

Otherwise, things are about the same here. I'm not much closer to selling this place, although I'm slowly moving that direction. I've enjoyed all the rain we got this winter and I'm sorry that it seems to have come to an end. I'm not looking forward to the start of summer.

Dear Helen,

I just got delivery on a new washing machine. My old one was close to 40 yrs old and I finally lost interest in repairing it any more. My old dog of 14yrs died last week and I'm wondering what kind of dog to get next. It is hard to lose an old friend like he was. But our weather is a lot better now. Although it is a record breaking year for rain, the flooding around here is less than last year. Most people flooded are in locations where they should expect it.

I think that I've mentioned before that I'm corresponding with Sheila Johnson, of Grand Junction, CO, who is working on the Lacy family of Carroll Twp. She got me in touch with Marjorie Lacy who lives in Locust Point. She's passed on some interesting odds and ends, mostly about my Saddoris people. She also got me in touch with Marian Rapparlie who is descended from Lyman Green of Locust Point. Unfortunately, none of these people have anything new on the old settlers there that we didn't already know.

Margie Lacy knows Donna Gyde pretty well and I had hoped that Margie could get Donna going on the old glass plate photos, but no luck so far. Margie says that the old Williams home has been torn down now.

I still have hopes that we may learn Eunice Crippen's ancestry. A year or two ago I got in contact with Charles Davis who is descended from Polly Crippen who married Jedediah Graves at "her father's house in Spencertown", Columbia Co, NY, in 1778. Her brother was Asa Crippen, assumed to be s/o Joseph & Tabitha (Rowley) Crippen. It was this Joseph's gravestone that I looked for on my last trip to Berkshire Co, guided by Edna Garnett, the West Stockbridge historian, who is descended from Lovisia Varney, the widow of this Asa Crippen. Spencertown now is a village there, but in those days it referred to a large area now called Austerlitz.

The diary of Edna Garnett's great grandfather Varney tells about Huron his trip to Ohio where in Seneca Co he visited a D. Graves. I checked the Seneca, Sandusky & ~~Holmes~~ Co histories for Graves and found that there were some early ones there who came from Columbia Co, NY. So to speed things up, I joined the Graves List on the Internet and asked about these families. It turns out that the present project of the Graves Family Ass'n is the writing of a book on this line. I also learned that another Graves, Increase, brother of Jedediah, married Mercy Crippen! This fellow may be the Increase Graves who was an early attorney in Sandusky Co, but he was b 27 Jul 1752 while the Increase of Sandusky Co died about 1830? leaving widow (daughter of Israel Harring) & one child. He is not in the book on Ottawa, Seneca & Sandusky Co Obits, my only source for Sandusky Co deaths.

I think that Eunice was a sibling of Asa, Mercy and Polly. They all were neighbors of Nicholas Root, none of the daughters of Joseph & Tabitha Crippen are known, and there are gaps between the sons in which to fit these daughters. Also, Tabitha had a sister named Eunice. Many of these Graves families ended up in Penfield, Monroe Co, near John Root. They stopped off in Herkimer Co for a few years on the way to Penfield, and I plan on reading more of the records there in case John and Sally (Sprague) also settled there first.

I'm hoping that one of these Graves families will have some old document that mentions Eunice.

You sent me a letter you rec'd from Joyce Vrchota. I gave her the names of two other people I had heard from who working on this family, but I had no answer for her.

You mention your buying and selling of trailers. Before I built this house I lived in a trailer for about 4 yrs. When I went to sell it my neighbor said it was the wrong time of the year, etc, etc, but the first people who looked at it paid cash in green backs right off, for more than I had paid! Same thing as happened to you. They said that it was the off-season and hardly any trailers were on the market, and they needed one.

Charlie

Dear Helen,

The hard part of the almond harvest is over now and I can try to catch up with letter writing. There are a few odds and ends to mention. I've been reading probate records from Northampton and am enclosing that of our 15th ggma where she mentions Anne Roote. There are lots of Rushall probate records but practically none for Root. I suppose that that means they were too poor to have anything to pass on. I suspect that nothing definite will ever be found to positively identify our English ancestors. But I'm checking all the Roote, Rushall, and Cowper wills in any case.

Richard Root has reappeared, after three years of silence. Sanford Root, son of Edward M., was his grand father. He has moved back to Michigan, to Evart in Osceola Co, says he has retired from the Navy, has time to do genealogy, but he writes in pencil on lined paper so I don't expect much from him.

I've been corresponding with Charles Davis, descended from Polly Crippen who married Jedediah Graves in Spencertown NY in 1778. They eventually settled in Penfield, not far from where John Root lived. Someone sent this fellow part of a Graves history that has some good oral history on early life in Penfield. I'd like to see the whole story in case it mentions our Root family. This book, Genealogy and History of My Graves Line by Bertha Bruner Brown, Fairport NY, 1937, is not at Salt Lake. I suspect that Polly Crippen was Eunice's sister, children of Joseph and Tabitha (Rowley) Crippen. Tabitha was daughter of Jabez^4 & Tabitha (Harris) Rowley, son of Shubael & Catherine (Crippen) Rowley. Donna Logan's Crippen newsletter is still coming out. She just got way behind because of family illnesses. She has a Crippen web site on Internet too.

I don't remember whether I sent these Jones and Parker group sheets before, but here they are, a couple of the more interesting ones. A case can be made that Simon Jones married Polly Sprague, and Simeon Parker married her niece, daughter of her brother Phineas. Then our Sally was the other daughter of brother Phineas. The problem here is that Phineas is said to have been killed in 1777, while our Sally was born in 1779. Phineas had a brother Dyre, but what little I've found about him doesn't fit the Dyre Sprague who lived next to Simon Jones in Coventry. There are a lot of Sprague families with inconsistent histories, many more than I've found with the Roots and Footes. Maybe you can see something here that I've missed.

Charlie

Dear Helen,

I didn't get away on a trip east this month. Every year it is hard to get started planning a trip, and committing to it, when I'm in the mood to do nothing after the harvest, and this year I decided to concentrate on cleaning things up so I can put the place on the market. The economy here has picked up so the chances are a lot better than last year.

You mentioned using MS Word and also Word Perfect. I tried out WP7, but went back to 6.1 as the search feature in the new version is not at all as convenient and useful as the old one. And I really need that for my genealogy. I just got the Windows version of TMG, The Master Genealogist. It looks good. Some people on CIS who are using Roots IV say that they are moving to TMG. I wish you'd get online somehow. Then we could keep in touch easier. AT&T offers six hours a month of free service & software, which is a lot if you use an off-line reader. All you have to supply is the modem.

I started using the genealogy newsgroups on Internet a couple of weeks ago. It has cut into my time a lot, but some interesting people have shown up. At first I got about 25 messages asking for free info on Roots and Footes, which is OK when it appears that they've done a little looking on their own, which most of them didn't seem to have done. I was ready to quit the newsgroups, but since then ~~most~~ more knowledgeable people have turned up.

One of them is Sheila Johnson of Grand Junction, Colorado. She has researched the Roots, Saddoris, etc people in Ottawa Co like you wouldn't believe! She, and some of her cousins, are working on the Lacy family. Hezekiah Lacy and wife Jane Lindsley came from NJ, possibly part of the big migration of Ogdens, Whiteheads and Lindsleys in 1838. Their son Jesse Lacy, and wife Roxanne Moore, had three children, Jennie, Christian D., and Elihu Jephtha, all born 1857-1861. These Lacys lived right across the street from my Elias Saddoris, wife Melissa Root, and next to Luther Lindsley, wife Nancy Lacy, and that big gang. But something mysterious happened around 1865. Jesse and wife disappeared and the children went to live with relatives or neighbors. Christian lived with Enos Williams for maybe 10 yrs and then took off to Butler Co, OH, and Kansas and Arizona and finally Colorado. His descendants are trying to clear up this mystery. They also suspect that Christian's brother Elihu was really someone else's son.

This Elihu stayed in Carroll Twp, had a store there, had son Barley who married an aunt of Donna Gyde. Because of all the intermarrying there, both Beryl and Donna are related to the Lacys all sorts of ways. Sheila and her cousins wrote to Donna a long time ago, but she told them she knew nothing, which I don't believe for a second. There is some connection to Saddoris because Elias posted bond for Jesse Lacy in 1859 in a suit by the estate of Luther Lindsley. Elias Saddoris had just declared bankruptcy so this is hard to understand.

Elihu Lacy married Mary Ellen Wilkins, dau/o Charles Wilkins. In the 1870 census, Charles Wilkins has a Jane Short, so you are connected to this mystery too (ha ha); I wonder whether you have heard something about all this. I just wrote to my cousin Vera Sarnes, descended from Albert Saddoris, the younger son of Elias Saddoris, who had married Edith Winnie. Edith was first married to James Wilkins so I thought that she may know something. It is a very complicated business.

One neat discovery is that Sheila has a letter written by Enos Williams in 1911 to Christian Lacy, who apparently had written for the first time in many years. Enos sounds very warm and friendly, calls him “dear long lost boy”. I’ve had to adjust my opinion of grandpa Williams.

I finally got around to reading some Rev. War muster rolls in order to get a realistic view of the service of some of these ancestors. I’m enclosing the single reference to Nicholas Root. I’m not sure of the identity of the Moses and Joshua Root listed there also.

Charlie

>I've been filling in censuses and found a Curtis Floro b. 1899 living in Lucas Co. in 1930. Do you have any identifying information other than his parents names?

I used to hear my mother talk about Curtis Floro but don't remember anything. I only have the idea that he was a spoiled kid. I have some photos of him as a child and maybe some old letters that mention him. He was b 1898 and died after 1951; that is all that I have recorded. He was the only son of my aunt Mary Saddoris and her second husband James Winfred Floro. A long time ago I corresponded a bit with a Floro, who called him uncle Curt I think, but he never told me with much, and then disappeared.

>I am also just about ready to sign up for cable for my internet. I think the price is outrageous ($55 per mo.)

I pay about $50 but it is worth it seeing as how slow dial up is here.

I've been working more lately on the darn Crippens, this time on some in Washington Co, NY. I had read a couple of will abstracts that named a lot of names, including Nathan Rowley Crippen, the will that of Henry Hatch in 1817. Several Hatches had intermarried with Crippens and other relatives. The abstracts didn't agree so I ordered the microfilm of the wills. I had hoped that I could untangle some of the confusion if I could make a connection with the names on the will. But it turned out that Henry's wife was not right in the head, so he named several of his neighbors to oversee the estate and keep track of the underage children. So the extra names didn't refer to relatives as I had hoped.

Mainly I'm back reading German church records where everything is stated clearly and you don't get frustrated chasing loose ends.

The half-brother Ebenezer lived in Oxford and then Guilford, Chenango Co. He was the "honest miller". His descendants still live there. The other witness was Levi Pier, whose daughter Sally married Nicholas' cousin Aaron Root.

I thought that I'd better send copies of the other deeds too. This first set is for Joshua and has more of a description of the property. Next I'll send that for the second family, Rebecca Culver and Ebenezer Root. Then that of Isaac Root who stayed behind in Berkshire Co.

Hi,

I forgot to note that the "Deon Root" mentioned in the Joshua Root deed stumped me for a long time. But now I think that it is Decon, ie Deacon Root, Israel Root 2860. He had lots of land there near this other land being sold. He is the one who built the "famous" wolf trap behind the country club.

Isaac lived in West Stockbridge for a while, then saw the promise of better things out west and ended up in Victor, Ontario Co, NY. One of his kids lived in Adrian, MI! I wonder whether all these other distant cousins are uninterested in genealogy, or maybe the lines died out.

An interesting deed of a slave between Stephen Root of Farmington CT and his son was sold on ebay a few days ago. It sold for $276, 10 times more than these deeds cost, so way outside my budget or even of that much interest. Slave items attract a special group of collectors.

ers. The surface is slightly undulating, and is generally inclined to a level. The northern portion is heavily timbered—the central and southern portions are mostly oak openings. In the south-eastern part are several sections of low, unimproved lands. With this exception, the township is in a good state of cultivation. It has a rich and varied soil, partaking of the characteristics indicated by the timber in the different localities. There are no crops raised in western Michigan but what Hamilton produces in abundance. Like all the neighboring towns, it is well adapted to fruit growing. The northern part is watered by a branch of the Paw Paw river, on which the flouring and saw mills of Robert Nesbit are located. The south-eastern part is watered by a branch of Dowagiac creek, which rises in Lake of the Woods, a beautiful sheet of water about one and a half miles in diameter, lying between Hamilton and Decatur. The township also contains several smaller lakes or lakelets, the most important of which are School-lot lake, Knickerbocker Pine and Foster.

The old Territorial road from Detroit to St. Joseph, built more than forty years ago, passes through Hamilton. Upon this road the first settlers located as early as 1832. Zebina Stearns located on section 17; Lewis Johnson on section 16, and Philotus Hayden on section 16. In 1834, Aaron Barney located on section 30; Reason Comley on section 28, and Robert Nesbit on section 4. Soon after Calvin Fields and James Brooks located on section 33. In 1836, James Lombard located on section 15. Robert Nesbit built the first saw mill, in 1834. He also built the first grist mill, in 1856. The first school was opened near what is now known as Brown's tavern, in 1837, with twenty pupils.

Hamilton and Keeler were originally organized under the name of Covington, about the year 1837. In 1839 they were divided into separate townships. The first town meeting in Hamilton, was held at the house of Henry Coleman, who then kept what is now known as Brown's tavern.

Of the above named early settlers, Lewis Johnson, Reason Comley, Robert Nesbitt, Calvin Fields, James Brooks and James Lombard still survive; Aaron Barney died about 1857.

Philotus Hayden was a man of large means and extended influence. During the late civil war, he distinguished himself by his active patriotism and lively sympathy with the cause of his country. As a politician, his influence was felt in the politics of the State. As a neighbor, he was noted for his kindness of heart, and active benevolence, and when he died in 1866, he carried with him the benedictions of the poor.

Pine Grove Township.

This township derives its name from the extensive pine forests it contains. It is a heavily timbered region; pine, oak, beech and maple predominating. Whitewood, walnut, ash and cherry are distributed sparingly.

The surface is rather broken, the soil of a sandy loam, and adapted to the production of grain and fruit. It is well watered by numerous small lakes.

Pine Grove was first settled in 1841, by Jerome Thresher and John Hawks. on section twenty-one. D. C. Lockman came in in 1842, and S. N. White in 1843. About 1845, Henry Veley located on section four. Henry Van Tassel, Harvey M. Babbitt and John Southard were among the next comers.

In 1848, the township was organized. The first town meeting at which 23 votes were polled, resulted in the choice of C. M. Morrill. Supervisor; D. C. Lockman, town clerk, and Smith Dyckman, treasurer.

Judge Dyckman and C. M. Morrill built the first steam saw mill, in 1847.

The township has now one water and six steam saw mills, one steam shingle mill, and one extensive stave factory. The staple product is lumber, and will be for some time to come; but Pine Grove will ultimately take rank among the agricultural towns of the state. It has a population of 800.

Porter Township.

The township of Porter is situated in the south eastern corner of Van Buren county, and is bounded on the east by Prairie township, Kalamazoo Co., and south by Marcellas, Cass Co. It was originally heavily timbered with oak, beech, elm, basswood &c. It has a rich, sandy soil, and is perhaps excelled by no township in Van Buren county, in the production of cereals and grasses. It is watered almost wholly by small lakes with which it is most abundantly supplied. Scarcely a farm but has one or more of them. The larger and more important of them are named Banksons, Huzzys, Grass, Cedar and Gravel. Porter was set off from Decatur, and became an independent township in 1845.

In 1830, Abner Mack made the first settlement. His house was then the only one between the two prairies. The next settler was Elijah Kinney. In the immediate neighborhood of Mr. Kinney, was at that time an Indian village, containing a population of about one hundred souls. With these Indians, Mr. Kinney always lived on the most friendly terms, and exercised over them an influence for good—settling their little disputes and differences. The white population soon began to increase. Among the early settlers the names of Elizabeth Gibson, a widow; Benjamin Reynolds, Stephen Kinney, Roderic Bell, Daniel Alexander and Matthew Lewis stand conspicuous.

The township now contains one house of religious worship, built recently by the Methodist denomination. It has ten school districts, and an average number of fifty pupils to each, and an entire population of 1,500.

Dear Mr. Lieman,

I hope this finds you. Its been a very long time since I aquired your name as a grandson of the Root line. You were refered to me by the Reed City Genealogical Society President Betsy Randall after I inquired of them for information on my Great grand Mother Ester Elizabeth Root.

I am just starting on this history and not very proficient as yet. I would appreciate any help in this search that you may offer.

I wish to do church work for those that have passed on and need all the information I can obtain.

My Cousin Jean THoman of Zeeland Michigan informs me that the Root Clan meets every year there and I plan to go to this years gathering. If you are one of those that

d this family get-together I hope to eet you there.
If you incur any expense for my benefit it please let me know so I can re imburse you.

Sincerly a distant Relative,

Dear Helen,

Here are all the rest of the Root deeds, with transcripts (including those for the deeds I sent earlier) and a summary of them all. It looks like we'll be able to find those plots of ground some day with that information. I've spent some time with an 1870 atlas of Chenango and can find some of the names, but they don't fit together right so far. It looks like Nicholas and Eunice bought land from Jukel that eventually was partially sold and the rest divided between the children. But deeds to show all that seem to be missing. I would have had the will by now, but the surrogate's office wrote first saying that it only listed property, something that the lady in Norwich had already mentioned. But that's fine with me, more background on the fellow. I'm still reading Chenango histories, but no mention of Nicholas, although some of his cousins are mentioned.

Like Caniff, Manwaring

I've written to the Texas address of the Roots Root family history group, but no response yet. Maybe they are out of existence. There should be lots more known by now of the Root genealogy. I went to Sutro library last week and read a couple of partial Root genealogies, but they just repeated the Pierce information. I've written twice to the genealogy group in Great Barrington sending information and asking for help. Nicholas is in the IGI with his birth date (in Pierce book) given as date of christening, if I remember correctly. I think I'll write to Chenango again and ask them whether they have any personal knowlege of the Jukel grant. I suppose this Jukel was an land speculator living in the big city, far from the Indians and bears. I was wondering how many Root deeds you've sent for from Monroe Co and whether you covered neighboring counties? Did you do the Footes too? At the moment I can't think of anything else to write for, although I guess more Root deeds might show something. But that is too much work seeing how many there are. I think the prospects are better right now to tie into some existing Root family history.

So there must be a church record

I'll check into Joshua's will. Have you checked for John Roots will & deeds in Ottawa Co?

Here are the rest of the photos I copied from Aunt Nina's album. I am disappointed that my mother can't recognize anyone. If we'd had the pictures even a year ago, she would have known them. I'm going to xerox the whole bunch and send it to Beryl to fill in what he knows. I wasn't able to get it all written down while I was visiting with them. He may be able to decipher some of Nina's handwriting too. I just hope he will take the time to do it.

I didn't know whether the photo you sent was for me to keep or copy, so I copied it. The label you sent for it earlier seems to leave out Grandma Williams or calls her Clarissa Nehiser. I'd guess they are Root child, Mrs Simeon Root, Aunt Vic, Grandma Williams (not on your label), Mary Marlowe and son. I don't know who Mary Marlowe is, but she could be the person in the 6-photo picutre I'm sending that I call Della Williams. Is "Simeon Root" the same as "Simon Root"? Maybe it is Clarissa Stults Nehiser instead of Aunt Vic. She is too young to be Aunt C.

Some more notes: spent the day in libraries, LDS reading Foote material and Family Registries; County reading Sprague book. My entries in the Family Registry for John/Vandosto and Calvin/Lovica Foote have been out since Apr, but no inquiries yet. I'm disappointed! I copied out people working on Joshua Root 2815, Sarah Crippen b 1748 MA, Barrett surname group, Sprague surname group and Woodward group. I'll write to all of them. I'll also write to the Sprague researcher in the Rochester Gen Soc. I ordered The Gilbert Family book and two Kilbourn books. But the one Wolcott used was pub 1856 and so is probably too old to circulate. Sutro doesn't have the Chenery book.

I read the Sprague book again (the one written by Warren V. Sprague, there are other ones that I don't know whether I've read or not) and am guessing that Sally dau James 33 is our Sally. She comes from CT and her only sibling, bro Adolphus lived near Rochester. I'm going to pursue that thought in any case, even though her birth date is wrong.

Chas.

FAMILY HISTORY

1. Huldah Kellogg, ninth of twelve Children of Enos and Abigail (Seymour) Kellogg, was born October 31, 1781 at Sheffield, Massachusetts. She removed with her family after 1790 to Hubbardton, Vermont and then on to Batavia, New York. Amzi Wright accompanied the Kellogg family on the trip to Batavia and less than a year later, in May 1804, he married Huldah.

2. Enos Kellogg, second of nine Children of Deacon Silas and Ruth (Root) Kellogg, was born December 24, 1742 at Sheffield, Massachusetts. He removed to Hubbardton, Vermont after 1790 and on to Batavia, New York in 1803. Enos was a Revolutionary War Veteran, serving as a private in Capt. Roswell Downing's Company, Col. John Ashly's regiment in 1777 and again in 1780. He was a farmer by trade.

3. Abigail Seymour, second of eleven Children of Sergeant Elisha and Abigail (Sedgwick) Seymour, was baptized January 19, 1746 at West Hartford, Connecticut.

4. Deacon Silas Kellogg, ninth of eleven Children of Ensign Stephen and Lydia (Belden) Kellogg, was born April 7, 1714 at Westfield, Massachusetts. He removed to Sheffield, Mass. shortly after his marriage in 1739 to Ruth Root.

Deacon Silas was a farmer. A man of high social and religious character; a deacon in the Congregational Church; a delegate to the Convention in Stockbridge, 6 July, 1774, to take into consideration the right of the British Parliament to tax America. He was clerk of the land office established by the proprietors of Sheffield and Great Barrington.

He was a Revolutionary War Veteran, serving in a detachment of General Fellow's (Berkshire Co.) brigade in 1777 and also in a detachment commanded by Lt. Paul Dewey of Brig. John Fellows (Berkshire Co.) brigade. He also served a short time in 1780.

5. Ruth Root, sixth of nine Children of Joshua and Margaret (Gilbert) Root, was born March 25, 1722 at Westfield, Massachusetts. Ruth is described as a dignified lady of imposing appearance, a godly woman, and withal possessed of great energy of character. She retained a clear mind and memory until the day of her death. After she was 80 years of age, she frequently visited, on horseback, her daughter, Eleanor, who lived six miles away. She often related to her grandchildren how she rode through the the forest from Westfield to Sheffield following "blazed" trees when there were only two frame houses there. Their furniture was on horses and her horse carried a feather bed on either side. She said she knew she was too young to be married (being only 17) but thought her husband needed her then as much as he ever would.

She died 24, January 1817, in Sheffield, her death was caused (as was supposed as she was alone in her room) by her falling in a fainting fit into an open fireplace and being so badly burned that she died in a few hours. She was 94 years of age.

6. Sergeant Elisha Seymour, third of nine children of John and Lydia (Mason) Seymour, was born March 25, 1722 at Hartford, Connecticut. He was a sergeant in the Revolutionary War. He, also, was a second cousin of Noah Webster, the renowned lexicographer.

7. Abigail Sedgwick, second of seven children of Ebenezer and Prudence (Merrill) Sedgwick, was born December 2, 1722 at Hartford, Connecticut.

8. Ensign Stephen Kellogg, first of eleven children of Lt. Joseph and Abigail (Terry) Kellogg, was born April 9, 1668 at Hadley, Massachusetts. He was a weaver; removed to Westfield in 1697. His gravestone is now (1901) standing in the cemetery in Westfield.

9. Lydia Belden, eighth of nine children of John and Lydia (   ) Belden was born March 1675 at Wethersfield, Connecticut. Following the death of her first husband, Stephen Kellogg, she married 1/17/1734, as his second wife, Benjamin Lewis. He died in Colchester, Connecticut September 6, 1753. She died there January 6, 1759 in her eighty-fourth year.

10. Joshua Root, seventh of eight children of John and Mary (Ashley) Root was born November 23, 1682 at Westfield, Massachusetts. He married Margaret Gilbert about 1712 and was one of the original proprietors of the Lower Housatonic township (granted in 1722), embracing the present town of Sheffield, and a larger part of Great Barrington. The very earliest settlements within this tract were made in 1725 or 1726 and Joshua Root, no doubt, located there between 1726 and 1730. His tombstone, a low square block of rough limestone still (1870) stands in the South burial ground.

11. Margaret Gilbert, eighth of ten children of Thomas and Anna (Bancroft) Gilbert was born March 27, 1693 at Springfield, Massachusetts. She married first about 1712 Joshua Root and second December 6, 1747, Benjamin Stebbins, as his second wife. They lived in Westfield where he died about 1755, leaving her a widow for the second time.

12. John Seymour, first of eleven children of John and Elizabeth (Webster) Seymour, was born December 25, 1694 at Hartford, Connecticut. Mr. Seymour settled first at Hartford where eight of his children were baptized at the Second Church. Shortly after 1730 he removed to (now) West Hartford where

He was Constable in 1741, hayward in 1740 and several times an inspector of Staddle-Wood, inspector of Wood and Leather-Sealer. About 1750 he removed to New Hartford, then a frontier settlement, where his father owned a large tract of land that he gave or bequeathed to his son, John.

Mr. Seymour married twice, firstly 4/25/1718 to Lydia Mason by whom he had nine children and secondly 5/7/1733 to Hannah Ensign by whom he had eleven children.

He died in 1758 and the location of his grave is unknown.

13 Lydia Mason, last of seven children of John and Hannah (Hawes) Mason was baptized August 2, 1696 at Hartford, Connecticut.

14. Ebenezer Sedgwick, third of eleven children of Captain Samuel and Mary (Hopkins) Sedgwick, was born February 25, 1695 at Hartford, Connecticut. He was a second cousin of the noted Theologian, Samuel Hopkins.

15. Prudence Merrill, first of eight children of Abraham and Prudence (Kellogg) Merrill, was born December 22, 1700 at Hartford, Connecticut. Following the death of her first husband, Ebenezer Sedgwick, she married secondly 7/28/1767 David Whitney of Canaan, Connecticut. She died February 1, 1793, presumably at Canaan, Connecticut from falling into a fire.

PART II.

DIVISION II.

The Farmington Line.

FIRST GENERATION.

2800. Farmington, Ct.

JOHN ROOTE, believed to be the son of John Roote of Badby, Northamptonshire, England, who married Mary Russell in 1600 (and the register of whose children, baptized in infancy, includes the names of Mary, Susannah, Thomas, and John), was born in Badby, according to the parish records, Feb. 26, 1608. The following note made by Mr. Jesse Root, deceased, who was a school teacher in Berlin, Ct., where his ancestors had lived from generation to generation, and not many miles distant from the old homestead in Farmington, Ct., and who, being an invalid for many years, spent some leisure time in investigating the family history, reveals the English origin of the family, and has been confirmed by investigations abroad. [See preface to Part II, Division I.] He writes: "John Root, our Puritan ancestor, emigrated from a place in England called Badby. His father was deceased, and he lived with an uncle, a brother of his father, and was adopted. His uncle was a man of wealth, advanced in years, and a zealous opponent of popery, and it is my impression one of the nobility. He insisted that John, our ancestor, should go into the Parliamentary army under Cromwell, to fight against Charles I, and the Catholics. He had an aversion to war, and chose rather to join a company of Puritans who were coming to this country. When he arrived he came to Farmington, and was one of its first settlers, in 1640. He married Mary Kilbourn about that date." The emigrants locating in Farmington were mainly from the neighborhood of Boston, Newtown, and Roxbury, in Mass. They began the settlement in 1640, and among them John Root was a prominent citizen. As above indicated, he married, soon after his settlement, Mary, daughter of Thomas and Frances Kilbourne.* She was born in the year 1619, at Wood Ditton, England, and came to this country in the ship Increase, in 1635. They were both in full communion with the Farmington Congregational church. He d. Aug., 1684 [æ. 76], leaving a good estate valued at £819. She d. in 1697 [æ. 78]. He appears to have been eleven years older than his wife at their marriage, and she survived him thirteen years.

SECOND GENERATION.

FARMINGTON LINE.

Westfield, Mass.

JOHN ROOTE, son of John Sen., of Farmington (2800), b. a. 1642, in Farmington, Ct. His father, John Root Sen., subscribed the articles of settlement adopted by the planters of Mattatuck, afterwards Waterbury, Ct., and was accepted in behalf of one of his sons, as original proprietor, Jan. 15, 1678. The father, called Goodman Rote, "was one of the committee, in 1677, to take into consideration the expediency of changing the village site. As to the son (John) his name is among those who had a division of fence in 1680, but he is spoken of no more."* He probably never lived in Waterbury. He was m. by Rev. Fayette Chapin, Oct. 18, 1664, to Mary, daughter of Robert Ashley, who located first in Roxbury, Mass., and afterwards removed to Springfield, Mass., with Hon. Wm. Pynchon and his company. She was b. Feb. 6, 1644.† John Roote Jr.,

* As much confusion has arisen respecting the origin of the Westfield families of Roots, and because John Roots of Woodbury, instead of John Roote of Westfield, Mass., has been supposed to be the son of John Sen. of Farmington, it is proper to give some of the facts by which it is clearly proved that John, Samuel and Thomas of Westfield were sons of John Sen. of Farmington.

1. John Roote Sen. deeded to his son John of Westfield in 1684, the year the former died.

2. Joseph Roote of Farmington, in 1721, sold to John, son of John of Westfield, deceased (1687), land which belonged to his father John, in Southington. [See provision made in will of John Sen., concerning the sale of land.]

3. Caleb Root (son of Caleb who d. 1712), sold in 1730, $\frac{1}{6}$ of right which descended from his grandfather John Sen. [The six were John, Samuel, Thomas, Stephen, Joseph and Caleb.] Samuel, son of Caleb, sold $\frac{1}{12}$.

4. The will of Samuel Root, son of John Sen. (deacon Samuel Root of Westfield, see No. 2802), did not give satisfaction, and his property was equally divided by mutual agreement of all the heirs, among the children of his brothers and sisters, and a like portion to John Davis, his adopted son. The names appended to this agreement are those of the children of John and Thomas Root of Westfield, and Stephen, Joseph and Caleb Root, and Isaac Bronson of Farmington, as their attorneys.

was made freeman in 1669. He held for a time the office of commissary at Westfield, as the General Court of Massachusetts allowed him £14 in 1680, for his services. He d. Sept. 24, 1687, æ. a. 44 or 45, leaving an estate valued at £505. She d. March 9, 1702. On his gravestone is the following:

Deacon Samuel Root, son of John Sen., of Farmington (2800), b. a. 1644, in Farmington, Ct. He removed with his brothers John and Thomas to Westfield, Mass. He was made a freeman in 1680, and united with the parish church in connection with his wife Mary the same year. He was chosen deacon of the church in 1703. There is no record found of his marriage, but his wife was in all probability a daughter of Thomas Orton, who, in the division of his estate by himself, in 1688 (to escape the great expense of administration during the tyrannical reign of Andros) mentions the name of one of his children as Mary Root. She was b. May 16, 1650. Deacon Root died Nov. 27, 1711. His wife survived him, but they had no children. John Davis, however, was his adopted son.

His will did not give satisfaction, and his property was divided, by mutual agreement, in equal shares among his brothers and sisters, leaving also an equal share (the seventh) to John Davis. This mutual agreement, recorded in Northampton and signed by all the children or their attorneys, is a sufficient proof in itself of what has been doubted, that John, Samuel, and Thomas, were brothers of Stephen, Joseph and Caleb. The following inventory of the library and armory of this first Deacon Root on record, furnishes an interesting catalogue of the literature current in that generation, as well as some indications of his military prowess. He was evidently one of the Cromwellian stamp, who both "trusted God and kept his powder dry," and probably held some military office:

The very earliest settlements within this tract were made in 1725 or 1726. Joshua Root, no doubt, located there between 1726 and 1730. He is the first white person known to be buried in that town. His tombstone, a low square block of rough limestone, still stands in the South burial ground. Contrary to the present custom, the stones indicate that he was buried with the head to the north and feet to the south. His sons Joshua, Thomas and Israel continued to reside in Great Barrington, in its south-westerly portion, known as Root street. He d. Sept. 28, 1730. His estate was valued at £519.

In his will he left his house and homestead to the ministry of the church in Westfield, after his wife should have deceased. His estate was valued at £279 10*s.* 11*d.* [See will in Appendix.] This homestead was situated in what is now a central portion of Westfield village. In 1816 the Mass. legislature created a corporation by the name of the Trustees of the Ministerial Fund in the town of Westfield, and this estate, together with perhaps some other grants from the legislature, was converted into money by sale of the land from time to time, the last sale being made April 26, 1862, and the fund now amounts to some $6000.

A History of the Town of Greene Chenango County, New York

GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY OF THE CHURCH OF JESUS CHRIST OF LATTER-DAY SAINTS

From the first, hogs running about unfenced land caused as much trouble to the settlers' sparse crops as did wild animals, and year after year complaints were made to the Town Board. First it was voted that they wear yokes, especially where the river served as one fence, and that they only run at large from November 15 to April 15. Then it was found that the river was not a good fence and that rams caused a lot of trouble in the fall. In desperation, all rams found loose were forfeited, and the owners of all hogs without yokes for 24 hours were fined 50¢.

Bountys of $5 to $15 were paid for wolves killed, as they were such a menace to the livestock. The child of many a settler helped scare them away at night with firebrands or by beating together tin pans or jingling bells.

The farmers' cleared areas were enclosed by stone or log fences as soon as possible and cultivated for crops, and whenever the domestic animal of a neighbor broke into it and caused havoc, it was a near calamity. So at the 1807 Town Meeting it was voted to build four pounds of logs, 80 feet square, with a gate and lock to each, one at or near the house of Eli Mead, X one on the farm of Nicholas Root, one on the farm of Zachariah Whitmarsh and another on the old farm of David Fitch. Here stray animals were kept until reclaimed by their owners.

this; when the first settlers came in they took small farms, 50 acres apiece. The man that got his paid for first was ready to buy out his neighbor, who had not paid for his, so you see the first farms grew larger, and the families diminished. In 1855 there were 12 school districts with the attendance of 640; an average of fifty-three and one-third while today there is less than 100.

The first settlement in the town of Coventry was made in 1785 by Simon Jones who came from Coventry, Connecticut, and located on the old Chenango road near the center of the town on 100 acres now owned and occupied by Ray Parker. Jones died there childless, January 12, 1817, aged 67. William Goodsell and Andrew Clark settled near Mr. Jones, on the same road the following year, the latter on land which now forms part of Ray Parker's farm. They remained but a short time and but little is known of them. Benjamin Jones, cousin of Simon Jones, came in from the same place in 1788, and settled on the same road, one and one-half miles south east of Coventry village, on the farm known as the Thomas Tifft farm. He took up 250 acres of land and kept there that year the first inn in the town, in a frame building which was in use till about 1850, when it was moved across the road for a horse barn. He kept the hotel but a few years, being principally engaged in farming. He was for some years, the agent for the sale of land in this locality. He removed about 1833, with a portion of his family, to Wellsville where two of his children resided a number of years; Zenas H., a lawyer and Clarissa, wife of William Gifford. Two of his sons remained here; Benjamin John Lewis and Laman P. The latter carried on a boot and shoe business in Coventry for about 40 years. The former settled about two miles east of Coventry on the farm now owned by Edgar Pearsall. He subsequently moved to Susquehanna where he died June 22, 1858, aged 52 years. Sylva M., his wife, died February 16, 1875, aged 63 years. He was the father of C. F. Jones, deceased, of Church Hollow, well known in Harpursville and vicinity. Benjamin Jones, Sr., joined the Revolutionary army at the age of 18 years, and served until the close of the war. During his residence here, in 1806, he represented this county in the Assembly and during his legislative term was instrumental in securing the formation of the town of which he was one of the first officers and in giving it the name of his native place in Connecticut. He was the first member of the legislature from this town, and was one of the first assessors of the town of Bainbridge in 1791. The first postoffice was kept in his house and was removed to Coventryville on the establishment of the hotel there. This town has been represented to the State legislature by seven different men, viz., Benjamin Jones, William Church, Rufus Chandler, Romeo Warren, William Kales, Charles Pearsall, and Edgar Pearsall.

Burrige Miles came from New Haven, Connecticut, in 1789 and took up 200 acres comprising the whole of the site of Coventryville, where he settled. Having kept a hotel in New Haven, Connecticut, his native place he erected a frame house in which he kept hotel. In 1811 he built the present hotel in Coventryville, which he kept until his death, September 12, 1848, aged 83 years. He married in New Haven, Elizabeth, sister of Ozias Yale of Cheshire, Connecticut. She died September 15, 1832, aged 68 years. His children were Betsey, who married Augustus Martin; Luman, who kept hotel in Coventry a good many years, and Burrige, who lived in Coventryville, and died, July 23, 1829, aged 24 years. The children were all born in Coventry, and Luman who was born in a hotel, kept one nearly all his life. When Miles came into the town, Royal Wilkins had squatted on the creek, one-fourth mile south of Coventryville, and had made a small clearing and built a shanty; but he moved soon after to Afton where he settled and raised a family. His location here was near where Frank Pearsall now lives.

Ozias Yale and William Stork made settlements in 1792, and Deacon Richards about the same time. Yale came from Cheshire, Connecticut, and settled one-half mile north of Coventryville, where T. M. Williams now lives, and where he died, May 26, 1853, aged 86 years. He was a farmer and held the office of justice several years. He was twice married. Hannah, his first wife died, December 23, 1810, aged 55 years, and Agnes A., his second wife, March 8, 1875, aged 88 years. Two sons, Thomas, who lived at Nineveh for a good many years, and Robert, who lived in Norwich, Evaline, wife of Nathaniel Smith and Hannah, wife of Seth Beckwith, were daughters of his. The deaths of his daughter, Hannah and son H——, both children by his first wife, the former October 3, 1796, at the age of 3 years and the latter July 9, 1800, at the age of 6 years were among the earliest in the town; and the birth of the former, must have been among the first, if not the first in the town. William, son of Moses Allis, born in 1794, is credited with being the first white child born in the town.

Deacon William Stork was also from Cheshire, Conn. He took up one hundred acres in the east part of the town, where he and his wife died, the former December 3, 1822, aged 52, and the latter, Rebecca Parker, March 17,1832, aged 59. He was a carpenter and joiner, and carried on that business in connection with farming. He had eight children, only four lived to grow up; two were born in Connecticut, but died in infancy, as also did the other two who died young. The four who lived to maturity were Julia, who was born in Coventry September 16, 1799, married Don. C. Parker of Cazenovia, where they settled afterwards, removing to Greene where he died November 2, 1862; Anna, who died a maiden lady on the homestead in Coventry; Lauriston, who married Pheby, daughter of William Clark, of Cazenovia, where they settled and where he died; and William L., a lawyer who lived in Cazenovia.

Deacon Richards settled on the old Chenango road; also Harden Bennett about 1792-5. Roger Edgerton settled about four miles south of Coventry, where Charles Seymour now lives, and was killed there by falling down stairs. He came as early as 1790, in which year a son of his died, his death being the first in the town. One son, Hial, kept a store in Nineveh, his son Franklin followed him in the store. Several great grandchildren are living.

I was named after Judge Jesse (?) Root of Guilford. I have heard my father say that he was a relative but I don't now remember how we were connected, but think the connection came through my father's mother, who was a Delano(?). About 64 years ago, I knew two of the Judge's brothers in Roots Town, Portage Co, Ohio [still there, east of Akron]. One was a Dr, I forgot his first name - I never saw him often, think he went back to New England. The other David had no profession - he was a finely educated man,. of disipated habits & lived by farming. His wife was a Buel (?) & a first cousin of my father. She was an accomplished lady, but lived poor all her life. She had a son David about three years younger than I was. I saw him 25 years ago in ?? he then lived at Chagrine, near Cleveland, Ohio. I wrote to him a few days ago, for information to enable me to answer some inquiries by Rev. J.P. Root of Perry Center, Wyoming County, NY. If he is still living there I will expect an answer from him soon.

This I believe is all that I can tell you on this subject. I might say however that my son Orvil now living at Chicago (?) got his name from the Novil (?) called (?) Lord Orvil. I am now just 74 years of age, but enjoy good health & expect to attend the National Convention at Chicago the 20th of May. Would like to see you there.

~~H+~~ Gen. of Central N.Y 7.88

June 30, 1846, Maria Muir, who died August 27, 1891. Children: De Alton, De Elbert, De Azro, Alice Esther, De Elwin.

(IX) Alice Esther, daughter of Menzo W. Porter, was born April 18, 1861. She married, November 26, 1889, Edmund H. Austin (see Austin VII).

SWAN The first of the Swans of whom we have record are of old New York stock, namely the parents of William G. Swan, of the town of Albion, Orleans county, New York. Mr. Swan's parents were Coddington W. and Susan (Gere) Swan, both natives of Saratoga county. C. W. Swan was born there June 13, 1797, and his wife one month and a day later. In the year 1835, the Swan family moved from Saratoga to Albion, Orleans county, and there settled permanently. The senior Swan engaged in business as a general merchant there, and so continued until his death which occurred in 1843. His wife survived until 1875.

(II) William G., son of Coddington W. and Susan (Gere) Swan, was born in Galway, Saratoga county, February 9, 1822. He was the elder of two children, the other Mary J., died in November, 1839, when she was fourteen. William G. Swan was educated in the schools of Albion and also at Lima, Livingston county. He was about eighteen when he began clerking in his father's store in the village of Albion. He had been reared to habits of thrift and frugality; and soon began to display excellent qualifications for a business career. He early won and has ever retained the confidence of his fellow townsmen. He engaged in business on his own account a short time before his father's death, entering into a partnership with Joseph M. Cornell, under the firm name of Swan & Cornell, which concern continued and flourished for about ten years. In the year 1855, Mr. Swan received the appointment of superintendent of the Niagara railway suspension bridge at Suspension Bridge, New York. This position he held until October, 1893, some thirty-eight years, when he retired permanently from business. He received, on his withdrawal, the recognition from the company, and from the press, which his long and faithful service well merited. Mr. Swan had retained, from 1835, a residence in Albion. In 1877 he built himself a fine brick residence there, a commodious mansion on the corner of Main street and Mt. Albion avenue. Mr. Swan has always taken a warm interest in the town of Albion and has given hearty support to all measures calculated to advance or improve it. In the matter of education, and toward the churches and charities, he is liberal and public spirited. He is a popular man and has had conferred upon him a number of local honors. He is treasurer and one of the commissioners of Mt. Albion Cemetery; also treasurer and one of the board of directors of the Niagara Falls International Bridge Company, and president of the board of trustees of the Baptist church of Albion.

Mr. Swan has been twice married. His first wife was Catherine C., daughter of Lemuel C. Paine, of Albion. She died September 28, 1854. On October 16, 1860, he married (second) Emma M. Etheridge, of Hastings, Minnesota. Mrs. Swan, like her husband, is actively identified with the charitable, religious, and literary work and movements of their home town.

ROOT This name is said to have originated in Normandy, and was originally spelled Routes, pronounced with two syllables, the "s" being silent. Thomas Roote was one of the earliest settlers and selectmen of Hartford, Connecticut. It is said of the family "that since the earlier days they have held an honorable position among the multitude of characteristic New England families." Thomas Roote was born about 1605, and came to America about 1637. He "went to Pequot in 1637 as a soldier." He became one of the founders of Northampton, Massachusetts, in 1653-4, and one of the "pillars of the church," at its organization in 1661. He died July 17, 1694. His wife's name is not known. They had six children.

(II) Joseph Root, son of Thomas Roote, was born at Hartford, Connecticut, about 1640, died April 19, 1711, at Northampton, Massachusetts, where he had lived for over fifty years. He married (first) December 30, 1660, Hannah, daughter of Edmund and Hannah Haynes. She died January 28, 1691. He married (second) Mary Holton, widow of David Burt. She died 1713. They had eight children.

(III) Joseph (2), son of Joseph (1) and Hannah (Haynes) Root, was born in 1664, died at Northampton, Massachusetts, October 23, 1690. He settled in Northfield, Massachusetts, but the settlement was broken up by the Indians, and he returned to Northampton. He married Hannah ——. They had two children.

(IV) Joseph (3), son of Joseph (2) and Hannah Root, was born in 1686, died February 9, 1728, leaving an estate valued at £540, which was at that time the largest in Sunderland, Massachusetts. He was one of the first forty settlers of Sunderland, and the first school teacher employed by that town. He married, February 16, 1710, Mary, daughter of Philip Russell, who survived him. At a town meeting held December 2, 1734, it was "voted to give Widow Root for tending the Flagg on the Sabbath days and on other occasions for the year, one pound ten shillings." Seven children.

(V) Joseph (4), son of Joseph (3) and Mary (Russell) Root, was born June 16, 1713. He removed to Hunting Hills, Massachusetts, as early as 1740. He was selectman, captain of militia, justice of the peace, representative, 1767-8. In 1759 it was voted by the town of Montague "to buy the Shell of Lieutenant Clapp for one pound ten shillings, and to allow Captain Joseph Root twenty shillings for blowing the same on the Sabbath for one year." He married (first) November 11, 1736, Abigail, daughter of James Bridgman; she died April 24, 1781. He married (second) November 5, 1782, Widow Mary Bascom. Eight children.

(VI) Elisha, son of Joseph (4) and Abigail (Bridgman) Root, was born in Montague, Massachusetts, June 7, 1739, died January 1, 1812. He was a surveyor and a magistrate. He married, October 30, 1776, Lucy Mattoon, died September 22, 1817, aged seventy-seven years. Five children.

(VIII) Zadoc, son of Arad and Mary (Severance) Root, was born in Vermont, February 20, 1786, died, 1863, in Busti, Chautauqua county, New York. He settled in Busti, range eleven, lot forty-seven, and lived there until his death. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and helped to build the first log church in Jamestown. He married (first) November 7, 1800, Rachel Skinner, born in Vermont; (second) in 1815, Polly Parmenter, born November 7, 1796, died aged seventy-six years. Children by first wife: Almira, born June 10, 1809, died 1851; Samantha, born November 13, 1810; Zadoc (2), May 25, 1812, died, 1848. (IX) William, son of Zadoc and Polly (Parmenter) Root, was born April 10, 1825, died January 24, 1898. He attended district schools and was reared a farmer. When a young man he made a purchase of fifty acres of land to which he added from time to time until he was the possessor of several fine farms aggregating several hundred acres. He was noted for his well-kept and productive lands and the fine quality of his dairy and farm stock. He also dealt largely in live stock and made a specialty of dairying. In his later years he moved to Jamestown, but after a few years returned to the farm. He was a Republican, and always maintained an active interest in town affairs, and served as road commissioner and in other of the town offices. He married, November 17, 1847, at Westfield, New York, Nancy Draper, born in Bridgewater, Connecticut, February 29, 1832, daughter of Joseph and Martha (Farnham) Draper, a descendant of Edward Draper, of England, and Boston, Massachusetts, who was a private in Lieutenant Colonel Jabez Hatch's regiment, guarding stores in and about Boston by order of the council, May 12, 1777, service five weeks. He had sons: Joseph, Sanford, Nathan, William, Henry and Harry. Joseph Draper was a farmer and a Universalist. (X) Harry, son of William and Nancy (Draper) Root, was born in Busti, Chautauqua county, New York, November 6, 1860. He was educated in the Jamestown schools and in bookkeeping under a private tutor. He has followed agriculture all his active life, making a specialty of stock raising and dealing. His farm, about two miles from the heart of Jamestown, has been his home since he was two years of age. It consists of one hundred and seventy-three acres of the best kept and productive land. He has another farm of one hundred and twelve acres near Boomertown, and a ten acre tract close to the city line. Besides his farming interests Mr. Root is a member of the firm of Donelson & Root, conducting a storage and general dray and heavy trucking business in Jamestown.

He is interested in the work of the Patrons of Husbandry, belonging to Union Grange. He is strictly independent in his political views, and is an attendant of the Methodist Episcopal church. MERRILL

The first of this name which was originally Merle and signifies "black bird" was a native, or at least a resident of France, and took his name from the figure of a blackbird displayed on a sign over his door. The earliest generation of the family in France used a seal on which is displayed three blackbirds. In the persecutions following the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, a Merle, being a Protestant, fled to England to save his life and cast in his lot with the Puritans. Some of the family still remain in France, the most distinguished member in recent years being Merle D'Aubigne, the historian. As the Huguenots were of the best blood of France so their descendants in England and America have been regarded.

(I) Nathaniel Merrill, emigrant ancestor of the Merrills of Cattaraugus county, New York, was born in England, 1610, died in Newbury, Massachusetts, March 16, 1655. With his brother John he emigrated from England and came to America, settling at Ipswich, Massachusetts, about 1633. In 1635 he removed to Newbury, at the first settlement of the town, and settled on land at the junction of the Parker and Plum rivers, which until recently was owned by a descendant, Tyler Merrill. In his will dated March 8, 1655, he gives his farm to his eldest son upon payment by him of five pounds each to his brothers, and furnishing a residence for his mother and sister. He married Susannah Wellerton, also spelled Wilterton. She survived him and married (second) Stephen Jordan or Jourdain. She died January 25, 1673. Children: John, Abraham, Nathaniel, Susannah, Daniel, Abel. These children all grew to years of maturity, married and reared families. Among their descendants are many ministers and men of mark in every walk of life.

(II) John, son of Nathaniel Merrill, went when young to Hartford, Connecticut, where he was taken into the family and legally adopted by Gregory Wilterton. He married Sarah Watson. At the death of his benefactor it was found he had left his entire estate to his adopted son. Children: Nathaniel, John, Sarah, Abraham, David, Wilterton, of whom further; Susanna, Abel, Isaac, Jacob.

"Don't worry, ma cherie, I know practically every stone on the trail by now".

"Oui, but there is always the unforseen. And you work too hard, and worry about those people as if they were your own".

"They are my own. I brought them here and am responsible for them".

"But they are like children, and so dependent on you".

"I know, I know. They hire things done instead of doing things themselves, but that has been their way of life. It takes time to change people".

What would happen now? When Malachi Treat died the previous summer, Samuel Treat had inherited his interests, and he was less lenient. Already he and William W. Morris had divided their communal property, each taking alternate lots, and were impatient to get their money out of the lands which had stood idle for ten years. Yes, foreclosure would result. The thought was more than Boulogne could bear.

With his death the titles of the colonists were immediately jeopardized as Boulogne's accumulation of maps and papers pertaining to the area were lost with him. Within two months two men appeared with credentials from Treat and Morris and said they were re-claiming the land Boulogne had bought, and they gave the French settlers until spring to leave. But the latter had had enough and they did not wait until spring but started making preparations to leave at once in such boats and canoes as they could procure. The first canoe to reach Azilum, the French colony on the Susquehanna, with the news, had a boat sent back up the river to the mouth of the Chenango, at Chenango Point, to meet them and take them to Azilum, where they stayed until other arrangements were made.

Madame D'Autremont and Jean Claude Brevost and their families were the last to leave Greene, a year later, when they sold their properties to Captain Joseph Juliand and Peter Garnsey. Simon Barnett remained but had to pay another $150 in 1809 to William W. Morris for his property (as the previous payment had been lost), so bought only 100 acres (Lot 8) instead of the 200 purchased the first time.

Madame D'Autremont and her sons went to Angelica, near Olean, in 1806, where she lived well, and was quite the aristocratic lady she had been in her native country.

Antoine Le Fevre, said to have operated a cafe in Paris, for years kept an inn famous for its cuisine at Lime Hill, near the Sullivan Trail. Both daughters married in that area.

dau of Nicholas/Lois ??

Jean Claude Brevost (later spelling - Bravo) was the last to leave Azilum, according to records in the Wilkes Barre Library, apparently removing to Havre de Grace, Maryland from there. A descendant in Binghamton, Mrs. Katherine Corbin, states that her grandfather, Joel Root Bravo (born about 1845) was the son of William Bravo (born in 1800) of Havre de Grace and Louise (or Lois) Root of Chenango County. There is a tradition in the family that this William walked all the way from Havre de Grace to Greene, where he spent the winter with the Root family. At this time (1824) he and Louisa were married - in Tioga County. Since this was during the rafting years on the Chenango and Susquehanna Rivers, William Bravo may have been engaged in this business, and thus made the acquaintance of the Root family. The Bravos took up residence in Smithboro and later, Wellsboro, New York.

Greetings;

ROOT, Nicholas
CRIPPEN, Eunice
married ca: 1774-1777

The Crippen family lived in Egremont but the Root's were from Great Barrington.

If this marriage is found, and/or the record of the births of their children, I would like a certified copy of it. A certified photocopy would be fine as long as it is a readable copy.

Thank you for your time and assistance.

Sincerely,

Helen E. Read

Comptroller.

To the Commissioner of Pensions, Present.

To the Honourable the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled

The petition of Benjamin Jones formerly an inhabitant of the Town of Coventry in the County of Windham in the State of Connecticut and at this time a resident of the Town of Coventry in the County of Chenango and State of New York Humbly Sheweth that your petitioner voluntarily turned out in the alarm at Lexington of the 19th April 1775 and returned and enlisted in the company Commanded by Capt Israel Putnam Junr attached to the Regt raised and commanded by his father Genl Israel Putnam — and returned home the 13th Decemr following regularly discharged. And further that your petitioner marched on the 9th day of September 1776 for New York under Capt Eleazer Hutchinson Junr in Coln Haffords Regt and returned home the 13th Novemr regularly discharged — And in the year following viz 1777. your petitioner served (under Capt Daniel Tildens in Col. Samuel Chapmans Regt) at Newlondon during the term of two months in the months of June July & August and returned duly discharged — And on the 8th day of September after being at home only a few days your petitioner voluntered & took up the line of march in Capt Skinners Company and in Coln Lattimores Regt and after a rapid & fatiguing march Joined Genl Gates's army at Stillwater and was actually in the engagement that took place on the 19th same month and participated in the several actions which took place betweene that period and the surrendering of Genl Burgoyne at Saratoga and your petitioner solemnly avers that after being in the memorable actions which resulted in Genl Burgoyne overthrow and final capture he (your petitioner by the blessings of divine providence) was preserved through the perils of those days & was actually present when Genl Burgoyne surrendered his sword to Genl Gates and saw them take the first Glass of wine together. And further that your petitioner was in 1778 at Fort Griswould two months in the Summer Season a non commissioned officer under Capt Elias Bliss and in 1781 I was on the New York lines at Horse neck and discharged the duty of a Quarter Master in Col. Meads Regt (~~[illegible]~~) for the term of two months and Returned duly discharged. And in 1779 Enlisted as a Corporal in Capt Paul Brighams Company attached to Col Chandlers Regt (in the three year service) and after serving a short time on account of ill health hired a man to take my place and left the service & returned home. And your petitioner would further beg leave humbly to represent to your Honourable body that he voluntered in the alarm (occasioned by Genl Arnolds burning Newlondon and taking Fort Griswould) under Capt Thomas Fuller

And now however painful & disagreable it may be to your humble petitioner to contrast the ~~[illegible]~~ past with his present circumstances yet the hard hand of necessity seems ~~[illegible]~~ to compel him so to do in presenting to your honourable body a true and faithful picture of his present deplorable and indigent circumstances. Your humble petitioner will not for a moment withhold from your Honourable body the fact that he has been in comfortable circumstances but owing to some unavoidable incidents which it was not in his power to controll has been in an instant as it were reduced from the condition of a good and comfortable living to abject penury and want. Yet under these distressing circumstances and although bourn down with the galling pressure of heavy debts your petitioner was determined to struggle against the whole current of his misfortunes & if possible to maintain himself & his family of young children without calling on his Country for assistance or aid — And has by the blessing of God so far succeeded as to have Maintained (under those circumstances for a Number of Years) his family with calling for assistance from any Quarter But your humble petitioner would beg leave further respectfully to represent to your Honourable body that owing to the total loss of all his estate and to an old bodily infirmity which he has been labouring under for this great Number of Years and which was no doubt brought on by your petitioner lying on the Ground and by the Many hardships and privations he endured during the Revolutionary War he has found himself unable any longer to strugle against the severe pressure of his Misfortunes And therefore has come to the Resolution Frankly to make his condition known and to ask at your hands that consideration and that assistance which your Honourable body has heretofore thought proper to confer on a poor destitute old worn-out decrepit Revolutionary Soldier

Your humble petitioner therefore begs leave to present himself to your Honourable body really as he is poor and destitute reduced to actual penury and distressing want ~~And~~ labouring under one of the Most Severe and relentless Maladies that ever afflicted Mankind also born down with the weight ~~and~~ infirmities of 68 Years which entirely disable him from labour or any kind of business Add to this the more distressing (if possible) circumstances of the total loss of all his Earthly Means of Support And what he would Respectfully ask but an object of Charity does your Honourable body behold

Your petitioner could not sustain himself in reviewing this distressing picture nor in this appeal to your magnanimity were it not for the consolation and support he derives from the reflection and consideration that the morning of his life and the best part of his days were Spent in the Service of his Country and

in the achievement of its Independence In this appeal your humble petitioner need not remind your Honourable body that under the pressure of Missfortunes & the accumulating infirmities of 68 years your assistance cannot be long Called for nor needed Therefore he is confident with what proofs he shall be able to make in support of the above facts that your honourable body will not nay cannot hesitate nor for a moment withhold that Support and assistance which this trembling and feeble voice most earnestly Confidently Humbly & Respectfully Solicits at your Magnanimous hands

petitioner in duty bound will ever Pray

nified, reserved yet courteous demeanor. Grandfather in particular was a very exemplary character. Our fathers have uniformly been men of intelligence. They have likewise, I think without exception, been men of large stature and great physical power. Father was six feet two inches and well proportioned; our grandfather still taller, and I believe larger; great-grandfather not quite so tall, but of remarkable personal size and power."

Hon. Joseph M. Root of Sandusky, Ohio, thus describes the older members of the Westfield branch: "The old stock of the Westfield Roots were Puritans of the straitest sect, sober, taciturn, God-fearing men; tall, spare, but strong, dark, lank-haired, temperate, and long-lived. They lost much of blood as well as of property in the Indian wars, and were ever ready on call, and sometimes without human call, to 'gird up their loins and smite the heathen hip and thigh.' They were nearly all husbandmen, but occasionally they educated a son and devoted him to the Ministry. The good, and wise, and valiant Samuel, who gave his patrimonial fields to his native town, Westfield, out of which has grown the handsome clerical and educational funds of that town, has always been regarded as the brightest name in our line."

Mr. Warren Root of Burlington, Vermont, writes concerning his grandfather's family, consisting of nine persons (in the Hartford and Northampton line): "I recollect of a gathering of the family at his house. All of the children were there with their wives and husbands, except an aunt who always lived with my father, and was never married. They were all very large, fine-looking men and women, all weighed over two hundred pounds, and were over six feet high, except the girls, and they were all large women. I was then young, and the sight of so large a family, and so large, good-looking men and women, made an impression on my mind which I shall never forget. They were all men who commanded respect, and were useful members of society."

Mr. Joel Root of New Haven, Connecticut, says of his branch what is to a great degree characteristic of all the branches:

"These eight sons of Samuel by second marriage were in stature, with two exceptions, above the medium height, measuring from five feet nine to six feet, and in their prime weighing from 150 to 180 pounds; were quick and active in their movements, and some of them very athletic; of a bilious temperament, and subject to frequent attacks of headache, which in the case of some was uncommonly severe. In consequence of this constitutional tendency they could not pursue a sedentary employment, and those who learned trades of this character, so uncongenial to their natures, were obliged to relinquish them and engage in employments requiring active exercise in the open air. They were naturally ambitious and self-reliant; whatever business they undertook that required prompt action and physical force they could accomplish with great expedition, and few could accomplish more in a given time. They were very systematic in their operations, the bump of order being very predominant. A place for every thing and every thing in its place was their theory and practice. They were fond of traveling, and were more or less engaged in business that occasionally called them abroad; were observant of men and things, and to their intercourse with mankind rather than study, they were indebted for their general knowledge of human nature and practical ability in business matters. They were of a sanguine temperament, quick-tempered, and according to the saying, quick over it. They were ever ready to respond to any demand for their services to protect the injured or relieve the distressed. They were social and rather jovial in their intercourse, hospitable in the entertainment of friends, and uniformly received them with much warmth of feeling."

Mr. A. I. Root of Medina, Ohio, bears the following testimony: "The Root family have always been characterized by a great amount of energy and perseverance, and great mechanical powers; have always been in comfortable circumstances as far as this world's goods are concerned."

"This family," says Mr. Frederick P. Root of Sweden, Monroe county, N. Y., concerning the brothers of Gen. Erastus Root, "and most of their descendants, were tall and athletic men, many of them six feet, and some above in height. They have been characterized by a sound mind and business capacity. Farming has been the favorite pursuit, though some have followed other pursuits. All have been men of means and competency, none very rich, but of good character for morality and integrity."

Mr. John H. Root of Buffalo, N. Y. (the sixth John in the descent from John Root of Badby, England) writes: "It is said in the account which one of the family gives of its history, that John Root (of Farmington) was from the nobility in England, and that his wife was a descendant of the King's sister. I think, however, that the family have never prided themselves to any extent on these pleasant fables, though without doubt there are some of the Root family who would creditably fill any position, and give lustre and dignity to any family, however exalted." He also speaks of the great strength and courage of his ancestors, giving facts that are elsewhere noted.

Hon. Ira Root of Newport, Ky., says: "All the Roots that I have known who were public men have been remarkably good speakers."

Rev. Lucius I. Root of Upper Alton, Illinois, gives the following reminiscences: "My grandfather used to say that he never met a Root that he could trace no relationship with. He used to tell about going to an uncle's (a tory, and the only one, so far as I know, in the connection) and taking pewter plates to run into bullets in the time of the Revolutionary war. The Roots were all tall on his side; characterized by shrewdness, noted for sarcasm; a strong anti-humbugitiveness; were generally good mathematicians and musicians; not peculiarly spiritual so far as I know; yet all my father's brothers died in good hope."

Respecting Timothy Root (the second) and his wife, Jemima Wood of Somers, one of their descendants, an aged mother, writes; "They were most excellent people, devotedly pious, and worthy to be among the number of those who were called in God's Providence to lay the foundation of a town. Before the building of the first meeting-house, the people used often to meet for public worship on the Sabbath at Mr. Root's. How grateful should we be for an intelligent, pious ancestry! How expressive the lines of Cowper:

> 'My boast is not, that I deduce my birth
> From loins enthroned, and rulers of the earth;
> But higher far, my proud pretensions rise —
> The son of parents pass'd into the skies.'"

Dr. Bennett Field Root also refers to his parentage, speaking of his father who at the age of seventy-four retained almost the mental and bodily vigor of youth, his irreproachable character and piety, and ardent patriotism: "Often in relating incidents of the Revolution, the big tear would drop from his eye, and

THOMAS ROOTES. He was a brother of Richard and Josiah, and probably of Joshua also, as all these names have the peculiarity of being spelled with s final. He lived in Salem, Mass., arriving there as early as 1636. In the year 1655, in a document that was acknowledged and recorded in June, 1683 [See Sup. Doc. No. IV], and a copy of which is in the Register Books, he deeded to his nephew Thomas, son of Josiah, all the land that was given by the selectmen in 1636 to his mother "the widow Mason," to his brother Richard and himself, — in all sixty acres. In the year 1657 he bought a dwelling-house and two acres of land adjoining his property, from one John Wilson, by the deed of which it appears that he followed the occupation of weaver, probably in addition to his farm labors. In 1663 he was among those chosen to fence in the land of the town. In 1679 he united in a deed with George Hodges and wife in the sale of some land to John Lovett, from which it appears that his wife's name was Katherine. [See Sup. Doc. No. I.] In 1680 Thomas Rootes, Sr., and wife made a "covenant and agreement" with George Hodges and wife, wherein it is stated that the former were unable at that period, by reason of age and weakness, to provide for their comfortable livelihood. An agreement was therefore made with said Hodges to board Thomas Rootes and wife, and provide for them necessary comforts during their lives, and said Hodges was to have the use and improvement of Roots' whole estate. A lot of land was reserved for the daughter Catherine Hodges, and the movables also were to fall to her. This was signed by Thomas Rootes and his wife Katherine, and by George Hodges and his wife Sarah. [See Sup. Doc. No. II.] In 1681 the two parties exchanged their dwelling-houses and adjoining lands, and Mrs.

the state militia. After the expiration of his senatorial term he was somewhat withdrawn from active political life, but still retained a prominent influence. He had played a conspicuous part in the history of New York state, and few men were more widely known. The town of Root, Montgomery county, N. Y., formed from Canajoharie and Charleston, Jan. 27, 1823, was named after him. "For half a century he was a zealous politician, but was never known to use dishonorable means in prosecuting his designs. As a friend he was sincere and frank, zealous and trustworthy, ever ready to perform a service for others. While very severe upon a political antagonist, he was a noble-hearted man, and generous in his benefactions. His personal appearance was much in his favor, being tall, stout, and of great physical power." "His intellect and tastes," says Lanman, "were highly cultivated." "In debate he was bold, ready and convincing. He outlived most of his political colaborers in early life, attaining to the venerable age of 74 years." He gave by deed the public square for the use of the court-house and other county buildings at Delhi. He was the first master of Cassia Lodge of Masons in Delhi, and the charter granted by De Witt Clinton, as grand master, to Gen. Root, is preserved, and bears date March 1, 1809. He was very fond of his garden, and devoted much of his time there, in studying horticulture. He also prepared with a great deal of care and labor, considerable information with respect to the early history of the notedly "tall and portly race of Roots." Gen. R. died Dec. 24, 1846, in New York, on his way to Washington, D. C.

Dear Helen and Charlie:

The two of you have been so generous to me and I am glad to have a chance to share an important genealogy document with you.

When I found Hiram and Sophia on the 1850 Michigan Census, I wondered then whether Sophia was Henry's mother because of the difference in Henry and Charles' ages. Several weeks ago I had the opportunity to meet my distant cousin Ron Lee, the grandson of Henry Lee and Virginia Grangeen. Ron had this handwritten document entitled, "The Life of Henry W. Lee". Henry is saying that he ran away from home (c1853) because he didn't get along with his stepmother and, at that time, Hiram was married to Sophia Root.

Henry's death certificate states that his mother was Lina Root--this is the reason that I assumed that Sophia Root was his mother--thinking that Lina was a nickname. If Henry's mother was a Root, there still could be a connection.

I think that it is very important that every possibility be investigated even if the facts discovered disprove long held beliefs. The two of you are experienced researchers and I am sure that you feel the same and would want access to every fact available. Please let me know what you think about the new discovery and what you find out.

I hope you and your families are well. This weekend I am not feeling very well--I think I've come down with a cold, but not too sick to do genealogy :o).

Very Best Wishes,

Becky

Nancy (in here) W. Root

Rochester, Sept. 30th

This sampler measures 16¾" x 25" and is full of very finely done and intricate crossstitch work for a young girl of 12 years. The colors are yellow, green, pale blue and pink, though it is somewhat faded (Being 115 years old at this copying). There is a wide border completely around the sampler in a conventional design, in green and yellow. The family names are in blue and the verse is in pink, the flowers and other designs in various colors. The "Rochester" is Rochester, N.Y. as this branch of the family were from New York State, My mother tells the story of Nancy Root's meeting her future husband. The Beach family were snowbound somewhere around Buffalo, I believe, and sought to stay overnight at Nancy Root's home and were welcome as was the custom in those arduous days. A romance ensued from this meeting, culminating in marriage. Nancy W. Root was my great grandmother, she being the mother of William Benona Harris Beach, who was my grandfather on my mother's side. Grandfather was left an orphan at 12 years old. Nancy W. Root's first husband (Beach) died and she remarried and died in childbirth. The beautiful and carefully done handwork on this sampler is an evidence of the fine, lovely and intelligent girl and woman Nancy W. Root must have been. Her son, William Behona H. Beach, my grandfather, became a minister, taught Greek and Latin at Starkey Seminary in Lakemont, N.Y. besides being able to read many other difficult languages. He was quite a brilliant man.

This sampler is in possession at present of Mrs. Elizabeth Albin, 9501 Milton Ave., Overland (St. Louis) Missouri. She has two daughters, Margaret Elizabeth Albin, 24 yrs. old, and Dorothy Ann Albin (DiDi), 14 yrs. old.

Christmas 1998

Dear Helen, (+ Dave)

Thank you so much for thinking of me concerning the SHORTS + GOLDENS - I really appreciate all the help available. Our computer is in the "shop" - Rusty put in a new "Windows" + the computer said "Hey, you are overloading me!!" Ha! Should get it back sometime this week or knowing him, he will go buy a newer + better one.

Have you did much traveling with the new rig? since we bought the place in Fla., we haven't used our trailer at all. Since the accident when we hit "black ice" in Arizona, pulling the trailer scares me or at least makes me a "nervous Nellie"! We just use the Car + motel it going down to Fla. - (spend Jan, Feb + March - then return to do our income taxes in April)

May 15, 1999 we are flying to Australia for 5 weeks to spend some time at the Great Barrier Reef + outback + 9 ~~nights~~ days with our friend in Brisbane. She is a stewardess with Ansett airlines + is like a daughter to us - we just love her!

Met her at the coffee shop where I worked; that was back in 1967. She comes over here quite often & last year, she & her sister stayed with us in Florida. You talk about being crowded - us 4 in a small 30 ft. trailer - thank goodness we have a nice large screened porch/patio area.

So glad Dave got a recall on his job - its scary with the high cost of living to think of not having an income, especially when you know 65 yrs is a little way down the road. Tell him to "hang in there" & the final day will arrive. Barney worked 33 yrs at Chevron - would have worked longer but the stress was too much! He's been retired 13 yrs - rides his bike down to Redondo pier each morning & fishes with "the gang" — the regulars ——

Just finished the overseas Christmas cards & thought I'd get started on some of the "back east" group — please excuse the scribbling - probably should have typed but - Oh, well!! Have a great holiday & 1999 - with love, Betty

Re: Root/Lee

Dear Helen and Charlie:

Thank you! Thank you! Thank you! How kind and generous of you to share all this wonderful information with me. I'm afraid that my records on Sophia and "High" are very scant and that I don't have that much to share with you, but I'll send you what I've got.

John Root was very distinguished looking and I have seen his nose in my family. I especially enjoy collecting pictures of my ancestors, my other hobby being photograpy. What I have done in the past is to have ancestors pictures, that I have received xerox copies of, copied on the machines in K-Mart or Wal-Mart that reproduce photographic quality copies in 5 or so minutes. I have had very good results with this technique, and this is what I plan to do on the picture of John Root.

I am going to send you a picture of Henry Wallace Lee and his wife, Virginia Grangeen--a photograph of the original tintype--supposedly their wedding picture (who knows, Henry may resemble his Uncle Vandosto Root). They were married August 24, 1867 in Van Buren, Crawford County, Arkansas. It seems unusual to me that, at this time period, a northerner and a southerner married. It is my theory that they may have met through Virginia's father, Oliver Grangeen, a southerner who served with the Union Army.

On the subject of military service, Henry enlisted in the 12th Michigan Infantry in 1861 at Decatur, and his mother died the same year. It must have been a very difficult year for him.

Speaking of marriage records, I wrote to Erie County, OH and they said that they didn't have a license on record for Hiram and Sophia. Hopefully, one of us will run across it someday in some collection of records or other.

I will close now to put together the information packet that I intend to send to you. Please do not hesitate to contact me if I can be of any assistance to either of you in the future.

The very best of wishes,

Hi again:

Reading through your letter again, I noticed that you included some personal information on your self, so I will do the same. By the way, congratulations on the 40th anniversary. So often we only hear of the many marriages that don't last, so it is refreshing to me to hear of a successful one.

My hubby and I don't have any children (unless you count the flea-bitten, four-footed kind). On November 29th, my 47th birthday, we will be married fourteen years. Carl is a wonderful guy and these past fourteen years have been the happiest years of my life. I am currently unemployed and Carl is a two-color pressman at Champagne Printing Co. in Houston. Much of the printing he does is Compaq computer manuals.

This summer we bought a house in southeastern Arkansas--my hubby's grandparents old house. It was built in 1944 from lumber from two older houses that were torn down. We found antiques in the house--punched-tin pie safe, hoosier-style cabinet, eastlake-style parlor table, dresser, an old ice box that uses a block of ice as the refrigerant and there is more that we haven't had time to go through yet. I'm so excited--I love antiques. The house itself is a real project, but we've got a lot of plans for it and it was such a great deal that we can afford to sink some money into it.

We intend to move to Warren, Arkansas in about two years.

I enjoyed talking to you on the phone. We certainly have some of the same interests, collecting and antiques. Charlie, I enjoyed reading your e-mail. Will close now to get your info in the mail.

Please note: I have not been able to find the picture of Henry Wallace Lee--the storage room is topsy-turvy right now. I will continue to look for the picture and send it to y'all when I find it.

A disastrous fire in 1888 swept the south side of the public square and East Church street, destroying the Presbyterian church, the town hall, Cline's Hotel, and two business blocks. The work of rebuilding is rapidly progressing. The town hall and business blocks are nearly completed, and Louis Cline is erecting a fine brick hotel in place of his Park House, so justly popular with traveling men before the fire. Will Blair, his genial son-in-law, will still continue as clerk. Provision is being made against the recurrence of a destructive conflagration by the introduction of a system of water works. Let us hope that there may never be an occasion for testing their power amid such terrifying scenes as accompanied the last disastrous fire.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

HISTORY OF OXFORD TOWNSHIP.

TOWNSHIP number five, in range twenty-three, is bounded on the north by Perkins, on the south by Ridgefield, east by Milan, and west by Groton. Its general aspect is not unlike those adjoining, being level, and diversified with three streams of water, the largest of which is the Huron River. This flows through the southeast corner of the township from the west, and passes through the corner of it on its way to Lake Erie. Pipe Creek and Crab Apple Creek are the only streams, beside the Huron River, in this township, and the latter empties into it. The township was first colonized in the month of February, 1810, by six families from Conneaut, Erie county, Pa.

These early settlers were Jonathan Sprague, an old man who had served in the army of the Revolution as lieutenant. He built a cabin on the east bank of Pipe Creek, a quarter of a mile from Bloomingville. His son's family and three families of Dunhams settled between him and the present Bloomingville, and Linas Ensign settled a mile southwest of Bloomingville, on the farm occupied by John Paxton. In the month of July of the same year Thomas James and James Forsyth moved into the township. During that fall three others (named Nathan, Standish, and Wood) came, and were followed the next year by Thomas Hamilton, Dr. Hastings, John Dillingham, and Samuel McGill.

The survey of the township was made by Jabez Wright and Almon Ruggles, assisted by Benjamin Drake as chain bearer, in 1810, and throughout the year there were large accessions to the township, but the following year this was checked by war with Great Britain and the cowardly surrender of the [illegible] which it offers in the way of educational facilities and social re- [illegible].

CHAPTER XXVIII.

HISTORY OF OXFORD TOWNSHIP.

TOWNSHIP number five, in range twenty-three, is bounded on the north by [illegible], on the south by [illegible], east by [illegible], and west by [illegible]. Its general aspect is not unlike those adjoining, being level and diversified with a few streams of water, the largest of which is the Huron River. This flows through the south-east corner of the township from the west, and passes through the center of it on its way to Lake Erie. Pipe Creek and Cold Creek are the only streams, beside the Huron River, in this township, and the latter empties into it. The township was first organized in the [illegible] of [illegible], by the families from [illegible], [illegible] county. [illegible]

Its early settlers were Jonathan Sprague, an old man who had served in the army of the Revolution at Lexington. He built a cabin on the east bank of Pipe Creek, a quarter of a mile from Bloomingville. His son's family and three families of Chaffees settled between him and the present Bloomingville, and [illegible] settled a mile southwest of Bloomingville, on land occupied by John [illegible]. In the month of [illegible] of the same year [illegible] and James [illegible] moved into the township. During the fall [illegible] families [illegible], Sanders, and Woods came, and were followed the next year by Thomas [illegible], [illegible] Hastings, John [illegible], and Samuel [illegible].

The survey of the township was made by [illegible] Wright and Almon Ruggles, assisted by [illegible] as chain bearer, in [illegible] and throughout the year. [illegible] were the [illegible] of the township, but the following year [illegible] was elected [illegible] and the [illegible] of the traitor Hull at Detroit, leaving the scattered settlements of Northwestern Ohio exposed to the depredations of the Indians. The panic among the settlers became so great that many of them fled to older settlements for safety. The greater part of those who fled went to Mansfield, conveying their household goods and families on horseback and in wagons. We cannot picture the discomforts of that time with fear, sickness and suffering on every side. Fever and ague was almost as bad as the Indians, and the women and children suffered greatly by exposure during their journey. Those who remained behind proceeded at once to build a block-house for their protection in Bloomingville, and later a second one was built near it, and both enclosed with pickets as a better method of general protection. After this, until the close of the war, there were few additions to the settlement in Oxford. In an account written by F. D. Drake, whose father was prominently identified with the new country, is found a graphic description of those early days, from which the following extracts are taken:

"On the 16th of April, 1815, my father and his family, consisting of mother and four boys, left Erie, Pa., for our future home in Oxford township, where we arrived the 4th of May, having performed the journey of one hundred and sixty miles in nineteen days. My father had provided himself with a span of fine horses, a light wagon covered with linen stretched over hoops. All heavy articles were left to be forwarded by water to the mouth of the Huron. The road was so bad that, with the addition of a yoke of oxen which my father purchased in Cleveland to hitch ahead of the horses in bad places, we were unable to travel more than six or eight or ten miles a day."

He proceeds to describe the process of making new roads, cutting underbrush, laying a corduroy through marshy places, and at length tells of his arrival at their journey's end:

"We stayed at Jabez Wright's, who lived at that time on the west side of Huron River, about a mile from its mouth. He was surveyor and land agent. He was afterwards an associate judge of Huron county. His house was crowded that night with settlers on business connected with a sale of lands. Among the number was Major Joseph Strong, the first permanent settler of Lyme township. The major and my father had been neighbors in New York State, and as every vestige of a road had disappeared, he volunteered to guide us to his house. We started early next morning, the major ahead on horseback as advanced picket, the team following; and the three boys, driving the oxen, bringing up the rear."

He then continues to give us the details of that eventful journey, of his impressions of the broad prairies, covered with tall grass of the brightest green, and their first trials as pioneers. There was little or no money in circulation in those days. A man might raise large amounts of grain, and own large numbers of cattle, and still not be able to raise money to pay his taxes. After this, until the close of the war, there were few additions to the settlement in Oxford. In an account written by F. D. Parish, whose father was prominently identified with the new country, is found a graphic description of those early days, from which the following extracts are taken:

"On the 18th of April, 1815, my father and his family, consisting of mother and four boys, left Erie, Pa., for our future home in Oxford township, where we arrived the 4th of May, having performed the journey of one hundred and thirty miles in nineteen days. My father had provided himself with a span of fine horses, a light wagon covered with linen stretched over hoops. All heavy articles were sent to be forwarded by water to the mouth of the Huron. The team with us had that, with the addition of a yoke of oxen which my father purchased in Cleveland to hitch ahead of the horses in bad places, we were unable to travel more than six or eight or ten miles a day."

He proceeds to describe the process of making new roads, cutting underbrush, laying a corduroy through marshy places, and at length tells of his arrival at their journey's end:

Among the number was Major Joseph Strong, the first permanent settler in Lyme township. The major and my father had been neighbors in New York State, and as only a trace of a road had been opened, he volunteered to guide us to the house. We started early next morning, the major ahead on horseback, as a blazed guide, the team following, and the three boys, with the stock, bringing up the rear."

He then continues to give us the details of that eventful journey, of the impressions of the broad prairies, covered with tall grass as the brightest green, and their first trials as pioneers. There was little or no money in circulation in those days. A man might raise large amounts of grain and own large numbers of cattle, and still not be able to raise money to pay his taxes.

borrow a dollar or even fifty cents was almost an impossibility, and whoever had it was looked upon as a rich man. In 1817 a man named Charles Lindsay moved from Dayton to near the head of Cold Creek, and having been connected with a wild cat bank in Dayton, he suggested to some of the most influential men that they might start a bank at Bloomingville. It was just what they wanted, and a public meeting was called, and attended by most of the men of the township. It was resolved at once that a bank be established, and Abner Young should be president, and Charles Lindsay, cashier. The necessary amount was subscribed, and Lindsay was employed to go to Cincinnati to get the bills struck off, and attend the Legislature and get a charter. While he was gone, some of the others erected a banking house, which is still standing. Lindsay promised everything necessary to do a bogus banking business, except a charter. The Legislature was not doing that kind of business, and the thing was no go. A sale was therefore made, and Major Faley bought the banking house, and Shirley and Youngs bought the balance of assets, consisting of notes, plates, etc.

Early troubles came to the settlers in many forms, and perhaps none was more distressing than the milk sickness that affected the cattle. It came simultaneously with the attempt to have a bank, and the cause of it to this day remains a mystery. There are still places in our country where this is common, and the United States has offered a generous reward of many thousand dollars to whoever discovers the secret cause of its prevalence. In Oxford township they believed it was the result of the animals drinking from springs of mineral water, but this was disproved by the fact that a flock of sheep belonging to Thomas James, of Bloomingville, were pastured in a field where there was no stream, and yet a number of the flock were affected by it. Its effects on animals was known as "trembles," and it was quite customary to see a fat calf, after sucking, walk a short distance, then begin to tremble, and in a little while fall down and die. The superstitious believed in witchcraft. Many people died from this poison, and their remains are buried at the forks of the roads a short distance east of Bloomingville, with no monument to tell the story of their lives in the new country to which they had come full of hope.

The first mill was always the most important step in the history of progress of a township, for upon the mills all families depended for food. In 1817 there was a mill in Venice, and in 1820 one at Milan, and one near the head of Cold Creek. A man named Powers had built one on the Huron River in Greenfield township. This was built in the woods, and the lower part of the house holding the machinery was not enclosed. Mr. Drake gives us a graphic description of this mill as he remembered it, when he took a grist there in his boyhood. He says: "The floor of the second story was five or six feet from the ground. About half way from the front door was a platform six feet high, on which the stones were placed. The presiding genius of this establishment borrow a dollar or even fifty cents was almost an impossibility and whoever had it was looked upon as a rich man. About half way from the front door was a platform six feet high on which the stones were placed. The grinding gains of this establishment was a very cross, lame man. Millers were then autocrats, and no appeal could be made from their decision, and one of their rules was that the person who brought a grist should bring it in and take it out. The state of the roads made it necessary to stay one night at the mill, and the night I stayed, ten or twelve others were there also. The clicking of the hopper, the sound of the water, the noise of people talking, and the singing of mosquitoes, precluded the possibility of sleep."

Bloomingville is situated in the northwestern part of the township, on the line of an Indian trail, near Pipe Creek. The ground is high and dry, and had been a favorite place as a camping-ground with the Indians before a white man's foot had touched it. The village was started in 1811, and laid out in 1817 by Abiathar Shirley and Abner Young, and its future was then very promising. It has ceased to grow much, and still remains a pleasant village, the centre of interest to the township. It was here that the first post-office was established in 1810, with Aaron Bigsby as postmaster. The first store was opened the year following by Nathan Wood. The first hotel was started in 1812 by Abiathar Shirley.

Election precincts were almost boundless in this township, owing to the sparsely settled country. What is now embraced in the townships of Oxford, Groton, Perkins, and a part of Margaretta, was then one precinct, and all elections were held at Wheatsborough, since called Bloomingville. It was not until 1826 that Groton effected a separate organization.

Churches do not abound in Oxford township. There was no regular church organization until within the last twenty years, but there were religious meetings held long previous, and Father Gurley, an earnest Methodist, who settled early in the township, did much toward keeping alive an interest in religious things. Somewhere near 1869 a Lutheran Church was formed near Prout's Station, and this has since grown to be a strong church and is in a very flourishing condition under the care of Rev. Enzling, of Sandusky. He goes to Prout's Station every second Sabbath, and is heartily in earnest in his work.

Schools were attended to when money was still a minus quantity, for these pioneers came from a land of books and knowledge, and whatever else must be sacrificed, their children must be educated. Ohio owes much of its prosperity to this principle, and a traveler passing through its various townships is always impressed by the spacious and substantial school buildings that are seen in every township. In Oxford, the first school-house was built in 1810, while forests were still untouched and savages at home upon the soil. It stood half way between Pipe Creek and Bloomingville, and a term of school was kept in it during the winter of 1811 by Joseph Alby. There are now fine brick buildings throughout the township, and children never stop to contrast their surroundings with those of their ancestors.

Oxford township seemingly furnishes light material for the historian, but with her history have been interwoven the lives of some of Ohio's most prominent persons. Notably among these names is that of Eleutheros Cooke, father of the well-known Jay and Pitt Cooke, of national reputation as bankers. Judge Caldwell's name is also interwoven with this township by incidents in his early life, so that, although Oxford has no large city or town, or even village, honor comes to it through the individuals that have belonged within her borders. In an oration delivered before the pioneers at their celebration in 1857, Hon. Eleutheros Cooke reviewed the causes of our country's growth and development, and then proceeded to speak of the changes wrought by fifty years in the Firelands. He went back to the year 1790, when Moravian missionaries made a settlement on the Huron River, and then traced the rise and growth of prosperity, of institutions and military organizations that he had known. He pictured in graphic language the sufferings of the forefathers, and the wild alarm that was felt when Hull surrendered in 1812. He gives an incident of law in his own career, which cannot fail to interest the reader of primitive customs. We quote his own words:

"Until after my settlement among them, the ordinary log-cabin, as well for the dwelling of the rich and poor as for the church, school-room and court-house, constituted the proudest architectural monuments of pioneer taste and extravagance. I well remember that the richest and most highly self-prized laurels I ever won at the bar were plucked at a little seven by nine temple of justice built of logs, at the old country seat, three miles below Milan. If my honorable friend, Judge Lane, were here to-day, he would at once call to mind a suit in which he and I were pitied against earh other, and which we brought to an amicable settlement by a little cyphering on a huge log, breast high, which lay near the doorway."

Then he spoke of the lack of markets for their produce, and the beginning of the Erie Canal. He describes the raising of the first shovelful of earth just forty years before, near Rome, N. Y., when the enterprise was begun, and all the glorious prosperity that followed its completion, only to be excelled by the advent of steam and rapid transit, thus showing the march of empire and transformations wrought by fifty years. He also speaks of an account he had recently seen of the coming of Mr. Nathaniel Deane to Cleveland in 1798, when it took ninety-two days for himself and family to make the journey from Chatham, Conn., and then Mr. Cooke contrasts this with the statement that his son had just left Sandusky for Philadelphia, and the next morning, before breakfast, he had heard of his safe arrival. This was in 1857, when steam and electricity were recognized factors in all progress.

, aged years, a resident of , in the County of and State of , whose Post Office address is well known to be reputable and entitled to credit, and who, being duly sworn, declared in relation to aforesaid case, as follows: I first became acquainted with Harry W. Lee the above Claimant, in Van Buren Ark. about 1876. I being there at that time on a visit. About the year 1878: the said Harry W. Lee moved to this place - Neosho. Mo. And I have known him intimatly ever since. When I first saw him his eyes were very much swollen, distended and inflamed, and he was complaining very much of pain and misery in his head and right arm. Since he moved to Neosho. I have lived near neighbor to him nearly all the time a part of the time working with him. during all this time I know that he has suffered a great deal from his eyes. being obliged for days, and sometimes weeks at a time to quit work on account of it. At times he would be entirely blind. and, at no time since I first knew him could he see without bringing the object close up to his eyes. His right arm is weakened more than the left. so that it is easily noticed when working with him:

At no time since I have known him has he in my opinion been able to do more than 2/3 the work of an ablebodied man.

He always said and it was generally understood that it was caused from a severe cold contracted while in the Army.-
